Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ARTHUR HOLLAND, of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., Boston, was recently on his annual inspection of seed stocks at Wethersfield, Conn.

ALBERT HOPKINS SMITH, treasurer of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, celebrated his forty-seventh birthday anniversary this week. He was born August 16, 1874.

ON the steamer Fort Victoria, which arrived at New York August 6 from Bermuda, were 110 cases of lily bulbs consigned to R. F. Downing & Co., and 216 cases to Maltus & Ware.

Conditions seem to be shaping themselves for an improvement in the seed business, but a good many seedsmen who thought the corner had been turned last autumn are unable now to see the signs of betterment.

GEORGE W. KERR, superintendent of trials for the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, was in Chicago last week. He reports that recent advices from California indicate that the bright promise for a sweet pea crop is rapidly fading away.

THE warehouse and cleaning plant of the California Seed Growers' Association, about a mile south of Coyote, near San Jose, Cal., was totally destroyed by fire at midnight, August 9. Large quantities of beet, carrot, lettuce, radish, onion and other seeds were lost. J. W. Edmundson said he was unable at the time to indicate the value of the warehouse and its contents.

CARL MANGELSDORF, of the Atchison Seed & Flower Store, of Atchison, Kan., has resigned and sold his interests in the business to Ernest Mangelsdorf. He has been in charge of the store for six years and has been successful and popular. Ernest has been in charge of the greenhouses and will now take charge of the store. Mr. Mangelsdorf plans to rest up for a few weeks.

DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

The first sizable shipment of Dutch bulbs arrived in New York on the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, from Rotterdam, August 6. There were 619 cases of bulbs on board. The steamship Florence Luckenbach docked July 30 with twenty-seven cases and the Ryndam arrived August 1 with a small consignment of bulbs.

The shipments this year are arriving about the same time as they did last year, when the first arrivals came on the Noordam July 29 and numbered 337. August 5 the Nieuw Amsterdam and one of the Luckenbach steamers arrived with combined consignments of 593 cases. The total number of cases received last year by August 6 was 932, not many more than have been received at that time this year.

August 13 two steamers docked in New York from Rotterdam. These were the Hattie Luckenbach, carrying 246 cases of Dutch bulbs, and the Noordam, carrying 358 cases. This brought the total received thus far this year up to a few more than 1,223 cases.

ONION SMUDGE.

A pamphlet of interest to seedsmen dealing in onion sets is G-218, reprinted from the Journal of Agricultural Research. It shows the magnitude of the smudge as a factor detrimental to the onion set business by causing a reduction of the market value of the white varieties, a shrinkage in storage and the premature sprouting of the sets while in storage.

The nature of the disease and its morphology are explained in detail. It is stated that the disease develops most rapidly in the field when the mean soil temperature range lies between 20 and 30 degrees Centigrade, and is accompanied by abundant rainfall. Extremely hot, dry weather during July has a tendency to check the progress of the disease. The presence of moisture favors the progress of the disease during the curing season, but the immediate artificial drying of the sets after harvest checks it.

The writer states that the important measures of control are the protection of the harvested crops from rain, a rapid and thorough curing and the provision of well ventilated storage, kept at a temperature of about 33 to 36 degrees Fahrenheit.

TESTS UNDER NEW YORK LAW

Under the new New York seed law 144 purity tests and 480 germination tests were made between July 1, 1920, and January 1, 1921, reports the director of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, at Geneva, N. Y. The new state seed law, which went into effect July 1, 1920, requires that all agricultural seeds sold within the state shall be labeled in such manner as to show

Burpee's Sweet Peas

Burpee's New Sweet Pea MRS. KERR The Best Salmon

FLORISTS and Commercial Growers all over the world have come to realize the importance of Burpee's New Early or Winter Flowering Spencer Sweet Peas. Burpee's Sweet Peas are famous, and the house of Burpee is recognized the world over as American headquarters for Sweet Peas. The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy Seed

No.

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE. I have improved this strain by selecting and saving seed from the best shaped flowers of the most gorgeous color for many years. It is of the blocked Masterpiece type. The plants distinguish themselves by their robust growth and healthy-looking foliage; they are deep rooted and stand the hot, dry weather better than most other varieties. The large flowers on long, thick stems are carried well above the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size and of good substance. The petals are exceedingly broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double. The border of each petal being conspicuously undulated and curled, the gorgeous and varied colored blossoms of velvety texture, perfect form and giant size, frequently measuring 3½ inches in diameter; the ground color such as yellow, white, deep orange, mahogany brown, bronze blue, and endless variations. Most petals are beautifully marked with a large blotch, a few are self-colored. They are specially fine for planting under glass or outside for cut flowers at all seasons. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; ½ oz., $5.00; 1 oz., $10.00; 4 oz., $35.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00; 4 oz., $35.00.

19. TRIMARDEAU GIANT PANSY, improved; it is far superior to the ordinary run of Trimardeau that is sold. It is a very showy class of vigorous, compact growth. Flowers of enormous size in all the self colors, blocked, striped, margined, etc. It is very doubtful if any other pansy will give as good satisfaction as the improved Trimardeau for all general purposes. 1000 seeds, 30c; 3000 seeds, 75c; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00.

GIANT TRIMARDEAU No. 2, while not equal to the improved, is a good mixture containing all colors and will give good satisfaction where a mixture of moderate price is desired. 1000 seeds, 20c; ¼ oz., 80c; ½ oz., $1.50; 1 oz., $3.00; 4 oz., $11.00.

20. PRINCESS, the New Upright Pansy. This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture, on heavy stems, carried well above the foliage. Attractive by the brilliancy of its colors. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are 3-inch. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, medium or dark mixtures. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW is undoubtedly the largest flowered Pansy in the world; the immense flowers are of circular form. A beautiful collection of colors and markings. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

THE EARLY FLOWERING OR WINTER BLOOMING GIANT PANSIES in all colors or mixed. 1000 seeds, 60c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50.

No.

26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 6 or 7 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type, the curled wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50; 4 oz., $27.00.

30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous, the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00; 4 oz., $21.50.

40. GIANT BATH'S EMPRESS. The finest of fancy English Pansies. Flowers are very large, mostly frilled and blotched and of great substance and the colors are brilliant and varied. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.

70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois. 1000 seeds, 30c; 4000 seeds, $1.00; ¼ oz., $1.30; ½ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $5.00; 4 oz., $18.00.

AN EARLY ASTER KING.

A great many of the florists in the vicinity of the Cleveland market have given the title "Early Aster King" to William J. Kramer, who grows asters in his fields at Rocky River, O. Sweltering weather, overdry weather, overwet weather—Mr. Kramer has met them all successfully for the last ten years and this year he has picked his asters three weeks earlier than in any previous season. He has had the first cut of asters in the market for years. This season his first cut came July 17, when he sent in between 40,000 and 50,000 blooms—that in spite of the heat wave which threatened to work havoc and which constant care and timely watering on Mr. Kramer's part defeated. He has selected his own strain of seeds from Snowdrift and Queen of the Market.

PERENNIAL PEAS.

Are there colors of perennial peas other than that of the sample sent you under separate cover? This is the second year that I have had the vine that the sample came from. Last year it had a few blooms and no seeds. It died nearly to the ground during the winter, but it needed no winter protection. I made a circular frame of stiff fencing wire and drove long iron rods into the ground and fastened the wire frame to these anchors. The vine has now completely filled that circle, which is forty-six inches high and nearly sixty inches in circumference. The vine has had thousands of blooms and it is still full of blooms, notwithstanding the fact that many seed pods have ripened. They bloom in bunches, with from six to twelve on a stem. Plenty of water while blooming is all the attention that the vine requires. The blooms make beautiful decorations when the whole tip is cut out with the flowers. M. W. H.—Miss.

There are several colors of the perennial or everlasting pea, including pure white, rose-striped, blue and purple. They do not always come true to color

SNAPDRAGON
Philadelphia Pink

Originated about seven years ago at the Allman Nurseries, Holmesburg, Pa., has been improved by reselection until now it has become one of the best and most popular with the retail trade of any variety now grown.

Color: Beautiful shade of Bright Pink, produces exceptionally large spikes, displaying the flowers to fullest advantage, particularly suited for decorative work.

This variety grown from Seed comes almost 100% true to color and type.

from seed. These are splendid flowers for florists and, as they are perfectly hardy even in the north, it is somewhat surprising that they are not grown more. One thing that they resent is root disturbance. Give them a good soil, plenty of water and a fence or trellis to ramble over and they will grow rampantly and bloom profusely.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was the dullest experienced in the New York flower market in a long time. The supply of stock was particularly light and the demand of the poorest. Had the arrivals been normal, the result would have been sadly disadvantageous to growers. Gladiolus is the chief item, and there is plenty of it. The quality is fair, although some arrivals show the effects of heavy rain storms.

Asters are now a close second; the later varieties are of fair quality, having escaped blight and much of the drought. Dahlias are coming in more heavily, but growers might better keep them at home, as they do not sell for sufficient to pay the express charges and do not seem likely to until asters wane.

Roses are abundant and, as the demand for them has not improved, prices have declined.

Cattleyas are scarce, and are likely to be until the variety labiata comes in next month. A few oncidiums are coming in and clear because they are so few.

White lilies are plentiful enough for the small demand, and the quality is good. Lilies of the valley continue on the short side, but strong effort is required to clear such as come in at prices which show a slight advance.

The list of perennials is augmented by strelitzia, which is bought for show window purposes at prices varying according to quality. Zinnias are rather too plentiful, as also are delphiniums, and bargaining in these two lines is easy for purchasers. Calendulas, French marigolds, cornflowers and hydrangeas are principal among other offerings and meet moderate demand.

Various Notes.

Philip F. Kessler, in the Coogan building, has been spending a week in the Adirondacks.

Theodore Outerbridge, of Sunnylands, Bermuda, was in town last week. The advance shipments of his Easter lily bulbs are arriving and he claims that the quality is the best he has shipped for a long period, the growth this season having been remarkable.

The New York Florists' Club party to the S. A. F. convention numbered thirty-four. It left the Pennsylvania terminal at 11:08 a. m. Monday. Washington was reached without incident. The cool temperature at leaving was considered propitious for cool weather at Washington.

Among those who motored down were C. H. Totty, W. H. Duckham and Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J.; Wallace R. Pierson, A. M. Henshaw, A. L. Miller, F. H. Traendly and Fred Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J.; J. K. Allen and J. Van Mater, of Jamaica; Walter Reimals and William Kessler. Several were accompanied by friends.

C. A. KUEHN WHOLESALE FLORIST 1312 Pine St. ST. LOUIS

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—The business of F. Koch, at 2924 East Jackson avenue, has been purchased by his son, P. Koch.

Carlsbad, Cal.—L. L. Gage, for years in the florists' and nursery business and lately with the H. N. Gage Co., of Montebello, is starting a small bulb farm of his own at Carlsbad.

Pendleton, Ore.—S. H. Forshaw has acquired five additional acres adjoining his new place on the outskirts of the city. He plans to add another 250-foot house to his range and to embark in the propagation of such decorative shrubbery as is adapted to extreme winters.

Elma, Wash.—The Holcomb Gardens, formerly of Aberdeen, Wash., have been moved to this place, in order to give more room for growing perennials and bulbs, their specialty. They are building a house, 20x60 feet, to take care of the local trade in cut flowers and bedding stock.

Fullerton, Cal.—T. D. Robertson has purchased additional land and has built lath houses on it to extend his nursery business. Landscape work is one of Mr. Robertson's specialties and he has much good territory to work in around this rich and fertile slope. The new land is centrally situated and valuable.

Palo Alto, Cal.—A. Groves is just starting to build a range of greenhouses for the purpose of growing asparagus and other stock for the wholesale and retail trade. When the present houses are completed the range will have about 10,000 feet of glass, and Mr. Groves will grow flowers, pot and bedding plants.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

In spite of the large quantity of cheap stock, each morning sees the market pretty well cleaned up, while the better grades of flowers go quickly. Retailers are using a great quantity for decorative purposes, as well as for high-class funeral work. Dahlias are at their best now, the stems and flowers being much better than a week or two ago. Roses clean up well daily and most days many more could be used, if they were forthcoming. Carnations continue to improve, but the present will have to be written down as a bad season for asters. There is plenty of stock, but it lacks the quality and finish of other years. Zinnias are excellent and sell well. Delphinium Belladonna, buddleias and other long-stemmed stock for big baskets find a good demand; not at high prices, it is true, but the growers are satisfied. August, in fact, opened up well and, so far, has been a profitable month for growers and retailers. Shipping business is dull.

Various Notes.

The H. N. Gage Co. is handling a large consignment of extra clean, bright green moss, recently arrived. H. N. Gage returned last week from a trip to San Diego and reports business booming in the southern city. His brother, Lou, has bought a place at Carlsbad, where he intends to grow a variety of stock.

The Rosedale Florist is out with a brand-new delivery car.

Roy F. Wilcox & Co. have purchased still another addition to their land, a piece on the northeast corner of Oak and Washington streets, Montebello, opposite the south end of the nursery, where the large stock of boxwoods is growing. Overhauling of all equipment is going on and a new smokestack being erected in preparation for the winter season.

Robert Mesick has a splendid line of ferns at his nursery on the Whittier road. His Whitmanii are especially good and a fine line of cyclamens is coming in for the winter trade. Mr. Mesick is in a fine location here for retail business, although up to the present time his trade has been mostly wholesale.

C. Gutting, F. Lichtenberg and a party of friends had an enjoyable trip in Mr. Lichtenberg's motor boat last week and, although rough seas were encountered, a fair catch resulted.

J. Rolleri has a place of about two acres near Watts, where he grows considerable stock for cut flower work. Just now he is cutting a splendid lot of Lilium rubrum for the store and some extra good dahlias.

J. Hardy, of the staff of the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, is out with a new Buick.

The quality of the pompon dahlias now being sent in by C. Gutting, of the Superior Dahlia Gardens, is excellent and they meet with a spirited demand in spite of the seasonal plenty. The larger decorative varieties, too, are especially fine.

Lichtenberg's store is fast nearing completion and the artistic quality of the setting becomes daily more apparent. The cloisters of the old San Juan Capistrano mission have been truthfully reproduced by Mr. Scotti, down to the smallest detail, and it is

WHY DON'T YOU TRY SOMETHING DIFFERENT?

This is to the man who has never tried our stock. Some people are mighty hard to stir from their old tracks. They continue to do things because they always did them or because their grandfathers did. Lots of people have never visited our place—heard a lot about it—knew they ought to—always wanted to—meant to do it sometime—only hadn't done it. Read our ads regularly each week—didn't half believe them though—thought all ads "bunk" anyhow—didn't realize that we couldn't afford to buy valuable space without the goods to back it up—wouldn't even waste a perfectly good two-cent stamp writing for price list or sample to find out for sure. Heard somewhere that our stock and our packing couldn't be beat, but had been fooled before and wouldn't take a chance. Wouldn't unwrap a free sample if the postman threw it in the door.

If you are the least bit like this we want you to begin being different. We want more business—we want your business. We want to prove to you that we are a "sure to goodness," live firm, who know how to do things, and take a pleasure in doing them right. Begin right off. Make the long delayed visit—ask for the weekly price list—write for the free sample, or wire the order to the—wonderfully effective. Despite his injury, Mr. Lichtenberg is on hand and he reports a most satisfactory business. Mrs. Thomas, wife of C. C. Thomas, manager here, has undergone a serious operation for tumors and this has necessitated Mr. Thomas' being away from his post.

Having got safely over his automobile accident, John Gordon, manager at Darlings', was married last week to Miss Myrtle Townsend and the bride and groom left at once for a honeymoon trip to Catalina.

The sunken garden, at Exposition park, the site of the big show, this fall is beginning to take shape, the dahlias, especially, looking promising. An immense, electrically lighted fountain is being constructed in the center, which will be a most attractive feature.

H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Roses are keeping up fairly well and are, apparently, much in demand. Asters are plentiful and good, as well as reasonable in price. Many dahlias are now being sold, and new varieties are continually coming in. Chysanthemums are being shown in the windows of leading florists and this is stimulating the local demand, which was slack at the opening of the chrysanthemum season. Golden Glow and Chrysolora are the varieties in the market at present. Pompon dahlias are as popular and plentiful as ever. Begonias are coming in and are much in demand for baskets, wreaths, etc. The usual summer flowers are about the same as last week, but the supply of gladioli is beginning to diminish.

Various Notes.

The new flower market, on the site formerly occupied by the St. George garage, will probably open September 1,

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

according to P. V. Matraia. Not much change in the interior of the building will be necessary. This is fortunate, as a general strike in the building trades is now in progress, although far from being universally enforced. Speaking of this proposed market, a well-known member of the florists' profession said today: "Something of the sort is needed to reduce the competition of the street flower peddlers. These peddlers cause prices to be shot to pieces. If we run a market in a spirit of coöperation with the Japanese, not against them, we can probably do something to regulate prices."

A sudden upward trend of business has been noted during the last few days. Several large funerals and the opening of the Liberty bank, in the former Bank of Italy building, may be partly responsible for this. H. A. Avansino, of the E. W. McLellan Co., Inc., believes that the reöpening of schools and the return of people from summer vacations mean that much of the increased business will be permanent.

A liberal fortune was poured out in flowers for the funeral of John D. Spreckels, Jr., grandson of the multimillionaire sugar magnate, the late Claus Spreckels. He was killed in an automobile accident near Bakersfield. The funeral took place in San Francisco, and a number of the local florists worked day and night to complete the costly floral tributes. Among them were Podesta & Baldocchi, Pelicano, Rossi & Co., Joseph's, Art Floral Co., F. C. Jaeger & Son, Albert O. Stein, Darbee's and other leading florists. Lilies of the valley, gardenias and other costly flowers were lavishly used. Another funeral where the tributes were numerous and costly was that of the well-known broker, Mr. Mulcahy.

The Liberty bank was crowded with large and expensive floral tributes Monday, August 8, its opening day. A liberty torch is one of its emblems and this was beautifully reproduced in numerous floral designs. The bank's design of a globe, with "Day and Night" on it, was also cleverly duplicated in flowers. C. Kooyman Co. made a piece 3½x6½ feet, with the flame of the torch represented by crimson celosia, the torch itself of mignonette, with cornflowers and other flowers forming a duplicate of a check of the Liberty bank. F. C. Jaeger & Son, the Art Floral Co. and other firms were kept busy by the bank's opening.

Mrs. Hugh Harris, of the Ferndale Greenhouses, Temple, Tex., is in San Francisco.

Max Scheinuk, of New Orleans, is in the city with Mrs. Scheinuk and their young son. I. Inque showed him the nurseries of the United Flower & Supply Co. and Mr. Scheinuk is busily visiting other growers, with an eye to future trade. "I am much impressed with the flower shops of San Francisco," he said.

J. A. Axell is not expected back until September 1. P. B. Norton, Mr. Axell's partner, speaking of the express rates, said, "The express companies were not making money, so they raised their rates. This has resulted in such a loss of business that the express companies are making less than ever." This statement was apropos of the fact that some of the California shippers of flowers are talking of making a concerted effort for rate reductions. The Axell house is successfully shipping asters as far as New Orleans and other equally distant points.

DOMOTO BROTHERS.,

Chrysolora mums in about a week ago, but considers that they will not be ready to ship until about the last ten days of the month.

Domoto Bros. have Golden Glow and Chrysolora mums which they have been shipping for the last ten days with success. These are yellow. The white mums will come in a little later. Another shipment of colored mats has come from Japan.

Enomoto & Co. have just received a consignment of colored mats from Japan, which they are sending out on back orders. They report strawflowers and asters as being much in demand. They will start shipping mums about September 1.

The Growers' Floral Co. has fine asters coming from its nurseries. August 15 is the date when mums are considered ready for transportation. This company has about thirty varieties of mums of good stock, for the coming season.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is cutting some exceptionally fine begonias.

Podesta & Baldocchi have made a funeral pall for Woodland, Cal., of solid asters and lilies of the valley, in an especially effective combination.

Julius Eppstein, of the Hotel St. Francis, says that business is good in basket work.

The Art Floral Co. had one of the first mum exhibits of the season, in the shape of a huge basket, filled with Golden Glow.

F. C. Jaeger is enjoying a vacation in Sonoma county. F. C. Jaeger, Jr., states that the fall shipping business is beginning with satisfactory orders.

The Terminal Florists had many of the Spreckels funeral orders from the steamship people, as they are on the water front.

Fred Bertrand, of the Palace hotel, had the decorations for the furniture exhibitors' banquet, covers being laid for over 800 guests.

Brown & Kennedy have been held up by the strike in the building trades, though business is going on, as usual. Extensive alterations are being made in the store, including the installation of a greenhouse.

Albert O. Stein is planning the decorations for several large weddings which will take place in September. One especially smart affair is to be across the bay. This firm's customers are beginning to return to town. Norman Marcus, Mr. Stein's head decorator, has just come back from a coast trip, spent at Santa Cruz and other marine spots. M. M.

The Market.

Unchanged business conditions ruled last week, with the delivery of flowers small enough so that there were no gluts incurred. There were deliveries of several attractive new varieties of dahlias and gladioli. Gladioli are at the height of their season and there were deliveries last week that were everything that could be asked.

There has been no increase in the cut of roses, so far as popular varieties are concerned, but the supply has been ample to meet the demand. Brunner, Columbia, Ophelia and Russell were sales leaders in the order named, the Brunner figuring first because of the lighter supply, which brought more or less of a demand. Ulrich Brunner is practically out of the market.

Lily of the valley is in ample supply, and enough stephanotis and gardenias are showing to take care of the demand. Bouvardias are scarcer.

Among the long-stemmed items, gladioli are easily the market feature and the quality of stock being delivered warrants this. The supply of snapdragon has been slackening as to quantity, but holds up well on grade. Shasta daisies, delphinium, dahlias and phlox are on the market. Shorter-stemmed items, which are plentiful, include marigolds, pompons, cut cyclamen and large quantities of sweet peas.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Sandahl, of the Orpheum Floral Co., has returned to work after an extended vacation, the greater share of which has been spent on Hood's canal, at the Sandahls' camp. An increased number of weddings was handled by this shop last week.

Miss Lillian Carlson, formerly with the Woodlawn Flower Shop, has taken the position of chief bookkeeper with Rosaia Bros. A novel window display was shown by this shop last week, a life-sized enlargement of a photograph of a bride, tinted in natural colors, forming the background. Several varieties of roses were shown in front of this. A large decoration was made at St. James cathedral last week.

J. Schneider, representative of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, has been calling on the local trade. He came up through Salt Lake City and reports some improvements in business conditions along the route for the last three weeks. Mrs. Schneider is with him on this trip.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop has added Russell Jones, formerly with the Seattle Fern & Moss Co., to its staff. An elaborate home wedding was handled by this shop last week, white and pink phlox, white gladioli, Dorothy Perkins, Ophelia and Cecile Brunner roses and pink sweet peas being used in the event.

The first potted celosia seen here this season was shown by this shop.

P. Leavey, pioneer grower in the Spokane district, was a Seattle visitor last week. He says that growing conditions in eastern Washington have been quite satisfactory.

Good results have been secured from basket combinations of asters and gypsophila at Melby's Flower Shop, and there has been some improvement in the call for medium-sized funeral pieces also.

Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, is away on a ten days' unexpected fishing trip. A group of local merchants make up this party. This shop handled the wedding bouquets for several large weddings last week and produced some notable designs. One in particular was used for a cathedral event and was made of white sweet peas, white orchids and white rose buds. This was a small bouquet, with detail work the feature.

The Risdon Florists have taken over the quarters in the Green building formerly occupied by the Green Flower Shop and will operate this in connection with their own establishment. Mrs. Reid will be in charge of the Green building branch.

At the August 1 meeting of the Seattle Florists' Association, held in Fraternal hall, on Fourth avenue, the feature was the reading of a paper on "The Future of Perennials," by Thomas Wylie.

Several large decorations have been handled by Felix Rosaia of late and in one of these novel results were secured through the exclusive use of red and yellow gladioli.

The red dahlia, War, grown by S. W. Pizer, was shown at Kenney's Home of Flowers last week and proved at once popular with the buyers. A good run of funeral work marked the start of the current week.

The Hollywood Gardens developed several effective casket covers last week through the use of sweet peas and orchids.

J. C. Dressen, of the Art Floral Co., has returned from a three weeks' stay in Spokane, where he was called by the serious illness of his wife. Mrs. Dressen is reported to be recovering rapidly from the effects of an operation.

William Goldsbary, one of the founders of Kenney's Home of Flowers, has given up his connection with this house and will hereafter represent the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, in the Pacific northwest. Ray Geiser, who succeeded R. G. Slicker in this position, is again attached to the staff of Rosaia Bros.

Fine dahlias are being cut at McCoy's greenhouses and these have been used to good effect in the shop's recent window decorations. At one wedding handled last week, Shasta daisies and Spanish broom were used, with roses for the church decorations, and the bridal bouquet was made of stephanotis and white sweet peas.

Ernest Mayer is sending in gladioli which will rank with anything seen here this season, both in quality and in length of stem.

Bert Linegar, of the City Flower Shop, was away last week on a trip to Mount Rainier, this being the first "section" of his vacation.

A novelty in gladioli is found in the blue stock being delivered by Mrs. Alois Hellenthal. There are two shades in this color, with the names of both unknown to the grower. H. M.

WINTERING PANSIES.

I should like to learn the best method of wintering pansy plants in coldframes, so as to reduce to the greatest extent the loss of plants. We sowed our seed August 10, 1920, and transplanted the seedlings to steam-sterilized coldframes about the middle of September. Sashes were used to keep the plants growing until the first part of November. The sashes were then removed gradually and the plants permitted to freeze solidly. They were then mulched with clean straw to a depth of one and one-half to two inches over the plants. The sales record showed a loss of forty-five per cent, which seems rather high. We have to economize on frame space and I am wondering, therefore, if we could offset this loss by using 3-inch paper pots in which to pot up in September enough plants to replace, in the spring, those lost by the winter's killing, so that we could start our sales with full frames. Would such potted plants winter if plunged in frames outdoors and mulched the same as those set in the ground? Is there a better method? H. L. W.—N. Y.

It is quite probable that more of these plants were lost through rotting than by freezing. Try sowing the pansy seed August 10, as before. Then transplant the seedlings into the open frame when ready, not covering with sashes. Keep well watered, if necessary, and do not put the sashes on until well into November or when the ground is well frozen. Do not use straw or mulching of any description. Let the sashes be the only winter protection, without other covering of any kind. I have followed this plan with good success over severe winters. M. P.

Murphysboro, Ill.—Charles A. Ihle is starting a business here and is building two greenhouses, the material being furnished by the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

Warsaw, Ind.—William Terrell has sold the Terrell Greenhouses to Fred Walter, of LeRoy, N. Y. Mr. Walter conducted a greenhouse business in New York city and was at one time proprietor of the Rochester Greenhouses, Rochester, Ind. He will continue the business established by Mr. Terrell and will grow a general line of cut flowers and potted plants for the retail trade.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

NEWPORT, R. I.

The regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society was held Tuesday evening, August 9, at Music hall, and was a busy one, with almost all of the members in attendance. Owing to the fact that President Arthur W. Potter was unable to attend, Andrew W. Meikle presided. During the meeting the date of the proposed annual ball, to be given under the auspices of the society, which had been announced for September 8, was postponed until September 16, which will be the evening of the second day of the society's autumn flower show.

The committee to make arrangements for the ball was named, as follows: James Carter, chairman; Arthur W. Potter, Herbert Bliss, John T. Allan, Bruce Butterton, Charles Philipot and Howard G. Ward. The society voted to give prizes of $5, $4, $3, $2 and $1 for exhibits of flowers brought to the exhibition by boys and girls of the city. This is being done to encourage the love and growing of flowers among the children.

A committee, consisting of Alexander MacLellan and Arthur W. Potter, was appointed to prepare appropriate resolutions on the death of Andrew K. McMahon, who was one of the original members of the society and for many years was its treasurer and who maintained his interest in the proceedings as long as his health permitted.

It was voted to send a token of sympathy to John T. Allan, a former president and one of the active workers, who has been ill at the hospital for the last week. W. H. M.

TORONTO, ONT.

Stock has been scarce, with the exception of gladioli, which are of good quality and plentiful. Asters have put in an appearance, but are of poor quality. Roses are arriving as well as can be expected, but lilies are scarce.

The trade extends its sympathy to the Misses Mearns, of Toronto, who recently lost their father. J. J. H.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—An addition to the greenhouse at the union printers' home is planned. It is proposed to construct a house, 20 x 40 feet, in addition to the present house, which is 36 x 86 feet in size.

SCHOOLING FOR FLORISTS.

elor of science in floriculture on completion of the work. Purdue University (Indiana) is now offering five courses and expects to add a regular curriculum in the near future. Other institutions are offering from one to several courses, but these are mostly of an elementary or an amateur nature.

The agricultural colleges and experiment stations of the country are devoting about 200,000 square feet of glass and about 130 acres of land to floriculture. This, however, is merely a beginning, for, as the demands for research and instruction increase, these areas will have to be increased. As has already been said, six institutions are offering considerable work in floriculture and others are ready to do so as soon as the funds are available.

Educational Glass Area.

It is, naturally, in the states with large glass areas that the demand comes for research and instruction. The following table shows the glass areas of the first fifteen states and the amount of glass devoted to floriculture at their state college and experiment station:

State	Glass area of state, sq. ft.	Glass area of college, sq. ft.
Illinois	17,145,297	28,000
Pennsylvania	14,740,407	8,000
New York	13,477,576	12,165
Massachusetts	8,624,577	20,000
New Jersey	7,559,221	3,000
Indiana	6,060,848	7,200
Ohio	5,468,545	5,600
Michigan	5,163,628	.....
Missouri	3,568,085	.....
Iowa	3,364,249	30,000
Wisconsin	3,018,833	.....
Connecticut	2,888,983	10,000
Minnesota	2,389,346	2,000
California	2,382,178	4 houses
Maryland	1,875,471	10,000

The agricultural colleges and experiment stations of those states with large floricultural interests are the logical places to look for instruction and research. Some states will never be able to offer any more than the most elementary courses and so the larger institutions will have to look after the few who will want commercial work.

Two Phases of Work.

The florists' interests naturally fall into two lines, research and instruction. The first of these belongs to the experiment station and looks to the solving of the florists' problems. The second branch has to do with the teaching of the subject, or, in other words, the training of men and women for the profession of floriculture.

The work of the station may be grouped under two heads. The first deals with the problems that are of general interest to all florists, such as soil and fertilizers, fungous diseases, insect enemies and others too numerous to mention. The solution of such problems is equally valuable to all florists. The second part of the station work deals with the problems of the individual florist. The problem of the florist calls for diagnosis and suggestions for treatment. These suggestions are usually based upon the research mentioned or upon knowledge acquired by practical work or through close observation. Experiment stations should pursue no line of research that can be profitably handled as a business venture. For example, to take up the breeding of new varieties of greenhouse plants is a commercial problem, while a study of the principles of breeding is a research problem.

Aims in Education.

Those institutions that are teaching floriculture are attempting to do three things: First, they are teaching the students the principles of floriculture; second, they are teaching the students how to use such facts as they may accumulate; and third, they are teaching them to be broader men and better citizens. No institution can turn out a finished florist. All that can be done is to furnish a good foundation upon which the future florist can build. Such a training, followed by earnest application and a determination to advance, can only result in a successful man who is a leader not only in his chosen profession, but in his community as well.

Our universities and colleges are attempting, then, to do two things. By carrying on research and experimental work, they are doing much to help the man already in business, and by their instructional work they are preparing others to take up their life work.

What is expected of the graduates from our institutions of higher learning? First, we expect men and women with a scientific foundation upon which to build, with sufficient knowledge of the fundamentals of floriculture to progress rapidly in their chosen line. Second, we expect men and women with sufficient breadth of vision so that the profession may profit by their work. Third, we expect men and women who will become leaders in their work and in their community.

Glitter of Glass or Glint of Money —Which?

There was a time when we had a basement.
A basement like most basements, just a place to store things in; and throw junk that ought to have been thrown out.

One day I got to figuring and found out what a whale of a lot of money it was costing us for that basement storage.
Why, man alive, it was staggering!

So I got the boys together and we decided that the space must be turned into a selling place.
An attractive, well lighted, well ventilated place, where we could get together a splendid assortment of baskets, boxes, pottery and glassware; such as we were then selling in driblets upstairs.

We decided to make a real drive for that kind of business.
So that storage basement soon blossomed out into a cash register ringer.
It turned the glitter of glass into the glint of real money.

It don't cost us a cent of rent now.
It pays its way and makes us many a perfectly good sound dollar besides.
All of which I mention, thinking it may hold a money making hint for you.

Coöperation Necessary.

If our educational institutions are to do their share in the advancement of floriculture, you must lend your assistance. You should let them know that you are in need of the help that they can give and back them up in securing the necessary funds to do it. You should encourage them and show an interest in their work. Instead of doing this, the tendency is to stand off and criticize, and usually the criticism is destructive rather than constructive.

You may also help by sending your sons and daughters to school and giving them the opportunity of securing the benefits of such an education. You should also let the stations know your ence remedied that difficulty for you and can it not do the same for the young graduate? We are indeed getting old when we forget that we once were young. However, only a few graduates come in this class and the mass should not be judged by the few.

It is also said that the college graduate wants more pay than the other workmen. Here, again, we judge by the same few, for the more we think we know the more pay we want. Most of our boys want more, for they want an opportunity to make good, as they know more pay will follow if they show they are worth it.

Some also say that they do not want college men, for just as soon as they are worth while they leave and strike out for themselves. Can you blame them? Did you not do the same thing because your employer did not make it worth while for you to stay with him? If the college graduate can, in a few years, strike out for himself and make a success of his venture, is it not a talking point in favor of college training?

It seems to me that the Society of American Florists can do no greater service than to get back of this movement. The colleges and universities are ready to do their share. Our youth are ready to take up floricultural work as soon as they are assured there will be a place for them after they have spent their time and money in preparation. As time goes on and plant growing becomes more and more complex, the florist will need the scientific trained men just as the steel industry requires the chemist. Let "Coöperation," then, be our watchword.

when kept where the major portion of the manure can be saved, will produce from ten to thirteen tons per annum. Based on applications of from twenty to twenty-five tons per acre, ten animals would produce sufficient manure for a 5-acre range.

Beneficial Bacteria.

Manure is beneficial, not only for the organic matter and plant food contained, but for its bacterial action as well. As far as the actual nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash are concerned, it would be far cheaper to supply these in the chemical form, as a ton of the average manure contains less than twenty-five pounds of all these elements. Work done by the office of the horticultural and pomological investigations has shown that increases in yield of such crops as celery, lettuce, onions, etc., due to small applications of manure, are out of all proportion to the plant food supplied, and explained only by the action of the bacteria contained in the manure. In the light of our present information, we are forced to the conclusion that manure is essential to the greenhouse man, but there are many ways in which the meager supply can be used to better advantage.

Decaying vegetable matter in the form of sod, leaves, etc., is a valuable form of organic matter, and may be used to good advantage in the greenhouse. Old pastures covered with a thick blue grass sod are ideal sources of supply and the material is usually composted with manure, if available, and placed in the houses just before the crops are planted. Three or four inches of this material per annum makes it possible to maintain the soil in good physical condition. Commercial fertilizers must be depended on for most of the plant food. When following this practice, it is, of course, necessary to remove a few inches of soil every year or two.

Another method, sometimes followed where it is impossible to secure fresh supplies of sod compost, is to prepare the soil by devoting an outdoor tract to clover, cowpeas or other soil-improving crops, and, at the same time, to make liberal applications of high-grade commercial fertilizers, the whole idea being to put the soil in the best possible condition for the greenhouse crops. After a season or two of this treatment, it is ready for use in the houses, either on the benches or on ground beds. It must be confessed, however, that some manure is highly desirable, also.

Use of Muck.

Large areas of mucks and peats are to be found in many sections of the country and, as this material is high in organic matter and much of it is high in nitrogen, its use has been advocated as a substitute for manure in the greenhouse. Work done several years ago by the office of horticultural and pomological investigations, the results of which were published in the Journal of the American Peat Society, January, 1921, showed that mixtures of one-fourth muck and three-fourths soil gave results comparable with ordinary practices in using manure in the greenhouse.

This work is being continued at the present time and the last season's work gave results similar to those secured in the earlier studies. The present work is with Indiana muck, analyzing about 3.6

nitrogen, and using carnations and roses as the interpreting crops. An area 30x50 feet is devoted to each crop, each area being divided into five plots 10x30 feet. Plot 1 consists of ordinary greenhouse soil, manure and sod compost. Plot 2 the same, with manure at the rate of twenty-five tons per acre. Plot 3 is one-fourth muck, by volume, and three-fourths soil. Plot 4 is one-half muck, and plot 5 is three-fourths muck. One year's results are available for carnations, as the work on this crop started in 1920. The first blooms were gathered December 23 and the last March 22. The plot with no treatment yielded 558 blooms; the manure plot, 709; the one-fourth muck plot, 679; the one-half muck plot, 620; and the three-fourths muck plot, 582 blooms. It will be noticed that the yield from the plot with one-fourth muck was nearer that of the manure plot than any other, and that the yield decreased as the proportion of muck was increased. Most muck soils are deficient in both potash and phosphoric acid, and in using this material it would, of course, be necessary to supplement it with commercial fertilizers, but it does supply organic matter, so essential to the intensive production of greenhouse crops. Its use will, probably, be limited to sections near deposits where suitable muck can be secured at low cost. Ton for ton, it most certainly is not as valuable as manure, although it does contain a higher percentage of nitrogen than most manure, for the nitrogen of muck is largely in the unavailable form. The material has great economic possibilities and we are continuing the work to the extent of our resources.

Fertilizing Materials.

Even with abundant supplies of manure, compost, prepared soil or muck available, it is necessary to supplement these with properly selected fertilizing elements to correct the deficiencies of the manure, soil, etc. Moreover, many growers prefer to depend on potash and phosphate from chemical sources, rather than to make frequent applications of manure, as too heavy and too frequent dosages of manure seem to give a weak, succulent growth to such crops as carnations. In the light of our present information, it would seem that we must depend on manure, decaying sod, muck or peat and similar materials for maintaining our greenhouse soils in physical condition, and to a large extent on the commercial fertilizers, such as bone meal, dissolved bone, acid phosphate, sulphate and muriate of potash and wood ashes, for the most of the plant food. The amounts of the various fertilizers that can be used with safety are dependent on the crop, the soil, etc., and can be determined only by the man in immediate charge. Applications of bone meal at the rate of a ton to the acre, or about a pound to each twenty square feet, are common. The purely chemical fertilizers must be used with a great deal of caution, or damage will result, but with proper handling, applications of high-grade commercial fertilizer, aggregating a ton and a half per acre each year, can be profitably made. For most crops the mixture should be low in nitrogen and high in phosphoric acid and potash. A mixture containing two or three per cent nitrogen, eight per cent phosphoric acid and six to eight per cent potash will usually give good results.

investment per acre in houses and to the high operating costs, the space must be fully utilized at all seasons.

In houses where the soil is changed each year, fresh soil, high in organic matter and available plant food, and free from diseases, can be utilized. Changing the soil is expensive and many growers use houses where the soil is used year after year. In such cases it is necessary to use manure, compost, muck, etc., to keep the soil supplied with organic matter.

Commercial fertilizers must be depended on for the supplying of most of the plant food needed by greenhouse crops and, owing to the intensiveness of the operations, heavy applications are usually made.

impressed by the great need for careful investigational work to determine more fully the economic possibilities of using manure substitutes, such as muck and peat, and for accurate commercial scale experiments to determine the action of commercial fertilizers on the various crops. There is a great lack of information on these subjects, and it is felt that an industry with an annual production of about $50,000,000 should have more definite information on these subjects.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market last week was in better shape. Stock was in better condition, and the demand held up well. In fact, supply and demand were more evenly balanced than they have been for some time. Of course, there were some items of stock, such, for instance, as zinnias and hydrangeas, that were in oversupply, but there is always, during the summer months, something of this sort that must go to waste. But when you come down to summer staples, such as roses, gladioli and asters, these cleaned up well. There was one feature of the market that was perhaps not duplicated on any market in the country, and that was some Golden Glow mums. Of course, they were small and had little or no commercial value, yet it is something rather unusual to see chrysanthemum flowers as early as August 12.

Gladioli were in fine supply and the quality was much improved, for, as in everything else, the intense heat had been forcing the buds open before they had properly developed. Last week they did not have that starved-out appearance. Roses were in better shape and were not so full-blown. Asters are much benefited by the recent rains and some fine stock was to be had. The significant feature about the market this summer has been the steady demand. This has not varied to any great extent. There have been no prominent happenings such as large funerals or other occasions demanding large quantities of flowers; the demand has been normal, and from all sections of the city, indicating that this summer demand is from all classes. There was the usual supply of miscellaneous stock for this season.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the club was held Monday evening, August 8. In the absence of Robert L. Graham, Jr., who was off on a camping trip on the Severn river, Joseph S. Merritt held down the president's chair. This being the last meeting before the convention, there was a large attendance. First, it was decided that the Baltimore delegation go over in automobiles Tuesday, August 16, meeting at the plaza in front of the Pennock establishment, each machine to carry two large "Say It with Flowers" pennants, and the word Baltimore prominently displayed. William F. Ekas, the captain of the bowling team, was a busy man getting his team in shape. When Mr. Ekas goes into anything he goes wholeheartedly and he has gone into this with the full determination of bringing home a prize to add to the club's collection of trophies. Tom Stevenson says the gun club is right. His idea is that practice is a good thing, but when it comes to a contest of this kind that you must have good natural wing-shots. Then he let them brush up a little on targets. Tom says he has got a bunch of the best shots that ever shot over a dog, and when it comes to targets, well, "it's like taking candy from children." We canvassed the club, but could not find anyone who had ever been over a golf course. E. Kress said that once he had played a game of croquet and every day he sees a crowd on the Clifton park links opposite his home, but he knew nothing about the game. Everyone seemed to think that for exercise they had any golfer beat with a wheelbarrow, filling benches or pushing a Planet Junior. We will not qualify for the golf tournament. The baseball team is ready. It has sent word to Jack Dunn that any time he is in need of a team to go against the champion Orioles for an exhibition club they are ready.

But the convention is all fixed now. Let's get down to business. "Say It with Flowers" week is just a few months off. Our old friend, I. H. Moss, has the right idea of this week. For instance, Mr. Moss says that all during the year we are admonishing the public to "Say It with Flowers," and during this week is the time to take some of our own medicine. In other words, this is one week in the year when the florists themselves should "Say It with Flowers," or set an example. It was at first proposed to hold a mammoth flower show in Lehman's hall. To do this it would have been necessary to charge admission. Then John J. Perry, the man who, as chairman of the street pageant last year, made such a success, proposed to throw all of our energy into a grand street carnival of flowers. In this way, it would go right to the people, and make more of them realize what "Say It with Flowers" really means than in any other way. It was decided to place the entire thing in the hands of Mr. Perry and his committee, and, with such men as John DeGrott, Charles Cook, James Towner, W. F. Keys, Jr., and Charles Hochstead to help him, Mr. Perry says he is going to open the eyes of Baltimore. It is going to be some time between October 1 and 15, when dahlias are at their height, and it's going to be some parade. The press has already taken it up. The morning after the meeting two morning issues carried good notices of it. Tate.

The Market.

The local wholesale cut flower market the last week was in a much crowded condition and the wholesalers say stock moved poorly all during the week. There was little first quality stock coming in, while firsts and seconds were plentiful, with prices at a low ebb. Roses, with the bulk of them short-stemmed, came in daily and the few cool nights toned up the color in all varieties. Premier, Columbia, Russell, Milady and White Killarney promise well for the coming season.

Carnations, too, promise well, but the present crop is poor and the carnations short in stem and there is little call for them, as asters have taken the place of carnations in demand. Gladioli are in excellent demand and the large daily arrivals clear up fairly well in the fancy grades. Everblooming tuberose spikes are now arriving in large lots and, in order to move them, low prices figure in 500 lots. The daily supply of many outdoor flowers has a large demand for window displays. Easter lilies and valley have their usual calls. In greens the market has plenty daily and the demand about clears the market each day.

noon, August 11, in the garden at the Eleven-Mile House at Kirkwood, Mo., on invitation of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. This meeting is always well attended, owing to the election of officers and S. A. F. convention matters. The day was most pleasant for an outdoor meeting and when President W. A. Rowe called the meeting to order, there were sixty members present and all the officers.

The regular routine business was first disposed of, when final reports were heard from all committees. The trustees reported that the recent picnic was a big success and that the next club meeting would be held at Albert Senger's place, at Webster Groves, Mo. L. Jules Bourdet, chairman of the Allied Florists' Trade Association, reported that by the next meeting of the club the new organization would be perfected and officers elected and the members would be enrolled as charter members of the new organization.

The committee on the application of William Grateke, James Meyers, Joe Mathis and Carl Giebel reported favorably and the election of these four to membership followed. Applications for membership were filed by John Edwards, Paul Ahner, Herman Gross, A. T.

Meiners and George Dressel. The question of the club's support to the St. Louis-Missouri centennial celebration then came up for discussion, which ended in a committee of three, consisting of Frederick Michel, chairman; W. J. Pilcher and Paul Redan, being appointed by the chair, with full power to act and report back to the club at its next meeting.

Twelve members paid a fine of 10 cents each for failure to wear a flower during the meeting.

The election of officers came next and the following were elected: President, W. A. Rowe; vice-president, Julius Schaeffer; secretary, J. J. Beneke, and treasurer, W. C. Smith. Albert Gumz was elected a 3-year-term trustee. L. Baumann and O. Ruff hold over as trustees, the former for two years and the latter for one year.

The members of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. were given a rising vote of thanks for the afternoon's entertainment. The trustees were requested to audit the books of the secretary and treasurer and to report on them at the next meeting.

President Rowe then gave an interesting talk on his trip to Sedalia to visit the Missouri state fair. Delinquent members were given one more month's probation. After the meeting, a lunch, with refreshments, was served, which was much enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be held September 8.

Various Notes.

The working force of Grimm & Gorly, headed by Frank X. Gorly and Henry Duernberg, spent a most enjoyable evening, August 6, at the home of A. Sander, at Kirkwood. All left in automobiles from the Washington avenue store at 6 p. m. and the crowd numbered thirty-five. A band was stationed on the lawn, refreshments of all kinds were served and there were singing, dancing and games of all kinds during the evening. The party broke up at midnight and all say they never spent a more enjoyable evening. All vacations of the Arcade building, as designer for the season. Miss E. Turk, head of the company, will look after the business end of the company.

Miss E. West, assistant to Vincent J. Gorly, president of Grimm & Gorly, has returned from her vacation trip and has everything ready for the boss, who returns soon.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Barnard, of the Rosery Flower Shop, in the north end, spent last week in Chicago, combining business and pleasure.

Frank A. Windler and Erwin Dotzman, who took in the Pageant of Progress exposition, at Chicago, the early part of last week, have returned home, speaking highly of the success of the pageant.

Visitors last week were: George Rye, Fort Smith, Ark.; John Van Aart, of Paducah, Ky.; C. Lundy, of Boldt & Lundy, Denver, Colo., and Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Roland Hoerr, secretary and treasurer of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., and a party of friends left August 6 on a motor trip east and will take in the S. A. F. convention at Washington, D. C.

Albert W. Gumz, vice-president or the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., who was elected chairman of the St. Louis Florists' Club trustees last week, is known as a hustler and, with L. Baumann and Oscar Ruff to assist him, the club meeting promises some interesting features.

The work on the rebuilding of six new greenhouses for the Bourdet Floral Co. is progressing nicely and will be ready before the frosty season sets in. The work of supervising will keep the boss, L. Jules Bourdet, from attending the S. A. F. convention.

W. A. Rowe, W. J. Pilcher, F. H. Weber, the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. and the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. were the exhibitors at the Sedalia fair last week and all cut into the prize money, with Kansas City florists as competitors. W. A. Rome, W. J. Pilcher and A. Hoffmann, Jr., spent a day at the fair in person.

Mrs. Frank Fillmore, Sr., is spending a few weeks in Fort Wayne, Ind., and Mrs. George B. Windler is staying a while at Chicago, Ill.

Edward Guntly, head of Windler's, had a visit from the stork August 11, which left a fine baby boy. Congratulations were in order.

The St. Louis delegation to attend the S. A. F. convention, at Washington, left August 14, at 12 m., and arrived in Washington August 15. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Weber and their two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fehr and friend, Mr. and Mrs. H. Blixen, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Beneke, George Kuehner, Edwin Denker, John S. Carter, L. Baumann and H. Anderson.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

This market remains quiet, with a busy day now and then caused by some unusual demand. The worst of the warm weather is believed to be over. While the heat has held business down somewhat, the summer has been up to normal and perhaps even better. It is quite certain that business has held better here than in many cities. Stock is in fair supply and good condition. Recent heavy rains have helped it. Scabiosas, delphiniums and other garden flowers have withstood the heat remarkably well.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co., Rock's Flower Gardens and the Pinehurst Floral Co. scored well in the annual exhibition of the Missouri Horticultural Society at the state fair and Missouri centennial celebration in Sedalia, Mo.,

the week of August 9. First prize was awarded the W. L. Rock Flower Co. for a wreath of rubrum lilies and gladioli, and second prize for a basket of tritoma and croton ferns. Rock's Flower Gardens won first prize for the best collection of annual garden flowers and first for the best collection of perennials. The Pinehurst Floral Co. won first prize for gladioli; first on Mrs. Francis King, Halley and in the mixed class; first in each class of five varieties of asters, white, pink, red, purple and lavender; first on all classes of roses, Kaiserin for white, Columbia for pink, Milady for red and Russell for any other color, and first on table decoration arranged for six persons. The latter was of Russell roses and adiantum. Pinehurst won nineteen first prizes, two second prizes and two third prizes. M. E. Carter, W. Lawrence Rock and Wiley Pendleton were judges of the amateur entries, all of which were high-class.

A meeting of the Florists' Club was held the evening of August 11 in the office of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. The attendance was not what it should have been, as is the case with many of the meetings, but the interest of those present was gratifying. Nominations were made for the annual election in September. Three new members were admitted: Glenn H. Parker, Frank Payne and Lloyd Monson. President T. J. Noll appointed William L. Rock chairman of a committee to invite the F. T. D. association to hold its convention in Kansas City in 1922. Robert Fields exhibited a new pink gladiolus, unnamed, known as Seedling No. 7. It is of a beautiful shade, with marked center. J. B. Masson exhibited an achimenes, a plant brought by him from England and developed in his greenhouses. It is one of the few plants that bloom all the year. S. Bryson Ayres showed an artistic basket of strawflow-

Warren Spain, Jr., has returned from a visit to his sisters in Kansas and Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Parker and Mr. and Mrs. John Klaus motored to Chicago last week.

July business was the best for last month that E. A. Humfeld has ever had.

Mrs. Walter Hoover, of Minneapolis, Minn., is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. R. Bohannon, and Mr. Bohannon.

All the benches in the Bunker Hill Greenhouses are of concrete. Mr. Tobler did all of the work himself and completed it this summer.

Ray Blessing, of the T. J. Noll Floral Co., is on vacation.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges is the official florist for the American War Mothers' Society, as well as corresponding secretary, and has been busy with work the last four weeks. A wreath of artificial flowers is placed on the grave of every soldier buried here, whether any of his relatives belong to the society or not. The society also aids soldiers in getting work and gives assistance to soldiers or their relatives who are in need.

A. N. Nielsen has finished planting about 50,000 carnations.

Mrs. Bernice Bunning, of Bucklin, Kan., and the Misses Fretz, of Pratt, Kan., were among the week's visitors.

J. E. Murray & Co. had a good run of F. T. D. business all last week. Orders were received one day for Canada and Belfast, Ireland. The order for Ireland was sent to Glasgow and then to Belfast.

P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, visited the ranges of John Stevens and Eric Frandsen August 7.

stock roses and fancy asters of unusual size.

Sunset Hill Gardens have had several out-of-town orders from the American Legion lately. Last Saturday they shipped a flag four feet long, made of natural flowers. It was of hydrangeas, blue delphinium and dark red gladioli. Both Mr. Smith and Mr. Heakin saw service in the late war and are members of the American Legion.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, of Hutchinson, Kan., spent Sunday, August 7, here. They were entertained by Hugo Neff and William Fitzhugh.

John Victor Sands, of the Alpha Floral Co., and Miss Tessie Leslie were married at Liberty, Mo., July 15. They started on a belated honeymoon August 15. J. E. K.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Little change was noticed in the market last week. The weather has again turned warmer, but, with local showers now and then, stock has not suffered. Gladioli are a little scarcer and most retailers are depending on the outside market for their supply. Roses are beginning to look better, coming with better foliage and longer stems. Asters look a little better; that is, where they had water. Of course, where water was not to be had, they were burnt completely. Other outside stock looks well, considering the season, and is in ample supply.

just returned from a motor trip to Indianapolis.

Mr. Taffel, of Schloss Bros., New York, was through here on his way to the convention. However, he took time to call on his trade and take some orders for fall delivery.

Miss Georgette Zink, of the William Walker Co., has returned to her work, after a most pleasant vacation at Chicago. Miss Anna Brooks, of the same firm, left for Red Boiling Springs, where she will spend several weeks.

Mr. Schule, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., was here last week with a line of artificial flowers and prepared leaves.

H. Kleinstarink will return shortly from South America, where he has spent several months. E. G. R.

FERNS

Not long ago we furnished one kind of fern for a large estate—the bill came to $1,000.00; to furnish large estates with ferns is a part of our business. Many florists who have proper soil are planting Dryopteris Spinulosa "Fancy," Dryopteris Cristata "Dagger" and Dryopteris Marginalis, the best of all, under their benches in greenhouses and are growing considerable of their own leaves. Always fresh and beautiful. Then how much better it looks under the benches!

Glens Falls, N. Y.—Alphonse DeGuire has taken over the management of the Crandall Flower Shop. Mr. DeGuire has traveled extensively for a number of large concerns in the capacity of salesman.

Huntington, W. Va.—The McClure-Coffman store is to have a new and larger display refrigerator before the new season opens. An order has been placed with the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

R. F. Goodman, of West Palm Beach, Fla., the county engineer of Palm Beach county, is fast developing an up-to-date nursery under the name of the Lake Osborn Gardens.

The official roster of the Harrison Nursery Co., York, Neb., is: President, W. A. Harrison; vice-president, H. S. Harrison; secretary-treasurer, E. H. Smith; field manager, E. E. Mason.

Barnum said the public likes to be humbugged, but Barnum ran a circus, which has a larger field from which to draw its customers than the nurseryman who sends out stock untrue to name.

Observance of trade standards must be enforced by nurserymen's consciences or it will be enforced by law. How necessary to continued existence, not to say success, is fair dealing in this trade is so plain that one is surprised the number who fail to see it.

OHIO NURSERYMEN MEET.

The annual meeting of the Ohio State Nurserymen's Association was held at Painesville, O., Friday, August 12, at the Parmly hotel, and was largely attended. About forty out-of-town delegates and about thirty-five from Painesville and vicinity were on hand when President Ernst, of Clyde, called the meeting to order, at 10 o'clock.

After reading the minutes of the last meeting, many items of interest were discussed. Each member was asked to give his views on all matters brought before the meeting. The matter of prices was adjusted to the satisfaction of all present. There will be little change in prices for the coming season, with the exception of fruit trees, which will be about fifteen per cent cheaper than last season. Everything else will remain practically the same.

At 1 o'clock the members, together with their families, enjoyed a bountiful repast in the banquet room, which was artistically decorated for the occasion. At 2:30 p. m. automobiles were on hand and all the members went for a joy ride, visiting the leading nurseries and other places of interest.

It was a gala day for the nurserymen of Painesville and a reunion of good fellowship and brotherly love.

APPLE BLISTER CANKER.

Investigations conducted by the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, at Geneva, show that in western New York an outbreak of blister canker in the apple orchards is always possible, especially following a protracted period of dry weather in the spring. The organism causing the disease is nearly always present in the orchard or in nearby woodlots, and since apple trees are most susceptible to attack in the spring, when new growth starts, any condition of the soil or weather which retards growth favors the development of blister canker. Early cultivation to preserve soil moisture is, therefore, especially desirable.

The disease gains entrance into the wood through some injury to the tree, usually a pruning wound; hence it is important that all such wounds be covered in some way. For this purpose a coating of common shellac followed by coal tar gave the best protection and withstood weathering better than any of the other wood dressings which were tried.

The immediate removal of all blister-cankered branches is probably the best control measure, as such practice retards the spread of the disease in the orchard. It should be remembered, however, that in removing a diseased branch the cut should be made as far away from the canker as possible, because the disease extends in all directions through the wood and unless all diseased wood is removed a new canker will form.

Bulletin No. 485 contains a detailed account of the work and may be had

PARK MANAGERS CONVENE.

Lively Meeting Planned.

When the park superintendents from state after state assemble at Detroit, Mich., for the twenty-second annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents, August 23 to 25, they will find a fine program awaiting them. The main events are to start August 23, but August 21 there will be a preliminary meeting of the reorganization committee at 9 a. m., while August 22 there will be meetings of the executive and reorganization committees at 10 a. m. Then August 23, activities will start with a live-wire business session at 10 a. m., when the conventionites will be welcomed in addresses by Mayor James Couzens and Park Commissioner Edward G. Heckel. Whereto Vice-president J. V. Burgevin, of New York city, will respond. Following the reports of officers and committees, the meeting will adjourn at noon. But at 2 p. m. the business session will be resumed and those present will be addressed by A. A. Fisk, of Chicago, whose subject will be "Essentials of Organization." A discussion of this and new business will end activities until 8 p. m. At this time a public session will take place. Richard E. Follett, secretary of the Detroit Zoölogical Society, will talk on the "Conservation of Wild Life"; C. E. Smith, superintendent of forestry and landscapes, Detroit, will speak concerning "The Care of Street Trees," and C. E. Brewer, commissioner of recreation, Detroit, will enlighten the conventionites on "Playgrounds."

Montgomery's Priscilla

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

Wednesday, August 24, also promises much. Nine a. m. will see a public session, at which L. P. Jensen, arboriculturist of the Missouri Botanical Gardens, St. Louis, will speak on "The Value of Parks to Posterity." O. W. Douglas, of Chicago, will deliver an address on "Parks as Memorials," and Dr. Filibert Roth, of the department of forestry, University of Michigan, will discuss "Woods as Parks." At 2 p. m. an auto ride and visit to the city parks will entertain, while a picnic lunch is scheduled for 5 p. m. at Palmer park. At 8 p. m. there will be a business session at the Hotel Tuller, when there will be an address on "A National Botanic Garden," by F. L. Mulford, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A grand finish of the convention is planned for Thursday, August 25. At 9:30 a. m. those present are ordered to take ferries at the foot of Woodward avenue for Belle Isle park. Automobiles will be waiting at the park for a ride and complete inspection of the Belle Isle bathhouse, conservatory and greenhouses, workshops, zoo and aquarium. Dinner will be served at the Belle Isle casino at 1 p. m. At 2 p. m. T. Glenn Phillips, secretary and consultant of the City Plan commission, Detroit, will speak on "City Planning in Relation to Parks and Boulevards." A pageant at 4 p. m. under the auspices of the recreation commission will furnish a fitting finale.

The Hotel Tuller, which is located on Grand Circus park, has been selected as convention headquarters. The rates here are $2.50 a day, single, and $4.50 a day, double. All rooms have baths. Other hotels in the vicinity are the Cadillac, with rates of $2 and up; the Statler, $3 and up, and the Wolverine, $2.50 and up. President Busch, of Detroit, suggests that visitors coming into the city take street cars, which go directly to Grand Circus park, only a short walk from the hotel. This will be more reasonable in price than taking taxicabs.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING TWO HOUSES.

We are erecting two connected houses, each 29x100. There are forty-five inches of glass in the south wall and no glass in the north wall. These walls are seven feet to the gutter. How many lines of 2-inch pipe will it take to heat these houses to 52 degrees in zero weather? How many and what size of flows shall we use?

N. S. M.—Kan.

Run three 2½-inch flow pipes in each of the houses, placing one flow three feet below the ridge and the others on the side wall plates. With these flow pipes, supply three coils, each containing four 2-inch returns, in the house having glass in the side wall. Only ten returns will be needed in the other house. The coil containing four returns should be along the outside wall.

TO HEAT TWO HOUSES.

I have a greenhouse 20 x 80. It is five feet to the plate and ten feet to the ridge. It has two feet of glass in the south wall, with raised benches on the side and a solid bed in the middle. At the west end is a 6-room house, with a basement, 24 x 26. I desire to heat both these houses. I want to heat the greenhouse to 60 degrees; the outside temperature runs to 40 degrees below zero. How shall I arrange the piping and what size of boiler will be required if I use soft coal?

P. V.—N. D.

The data regarding the dwelling is not complete, but it is judged two, at least, of the rooms are in the second story. The amount of radiation needed will depend largely upon the number and size of the windows, regarding which nothing is stated. However, we are of the opinion that at least 400 square feet of radiation and perhaps as much as 500 square feet will be needed

Kroeschell Dependable Hot Water Boilers

How sure are you that your crops will be all right?

You can never be absolutely sure that nothing will go wrong, but you can feel pretty safe if you have a dependable boiler that will always maintain the required temperature.

With your houses equipped with a Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler you need not fear that your crops will be hurt by low temperature. Under adverse weather conditions, when crops are in most danger, it is easy to regulate temperatures with Kroeschell Boilers.

That Kroeschell Boilers are the safest and most economical, has been proved by their country-wide use in large and small establishments, owned by the wisest growers, where only the best of equipment is used, and where the best of stock is raised.

Save $8.50 to $9.50 on Every Carload of Coal

If you buy coal by the carload and have a railroad switch, you need a Fairfield Coal Unloader

Fairfield Equipment soon pays for itself where concerns use 100 tons of coal per month or more. It unloads a car in one hour to an hour and a half, eliminating all hand labor. It permits speedy release of cars with a consequent saving of demurrage.

This machine will relieve you of one of the most wasteful and disagreeable phases of your business. If the location of your switch permits, you can unload from car directly into interior bins, as illustrated above. Or it may be delivered from car into an elevated storage bin or onto piles.

Whatever your requirements, Fairfield Equipment is adapted to your own particular needs.

The machine is automatic and does not require skilled help in attendance. It is operated by an electric motor, at a cost for power so small as to be almost negligible. Is mechanically simple and sturdy in construction.

We shall be glad to furnish you an estimate without obligating you in any way.

to secure 70 degrees in the living rooms and 50 degrees in the sleeping rooms.

For the greenhouse 20x80, three 3-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns will be needed. One flow pipe should be two feet below the ridge and the others on the side wall plates. Arrange the returns in three coils of five pipes each, placing one coil under each side bench and the other over the middle bench. For use with soft coal the boiler should be rated for about 2,500 square feet.

HEATING THREE HOUSES.

I am building three greenhouses. Two of them are 25 x 75 and the other, 12 x 51, as shown in the accompanying sketch. What size of boiler, steam or hot water, will it take to heat the houses? How many and what size of pipes will be required? The houses must be heated to 60 degrees, when it is 10 below zero. How many square feet of radiation will be required for the three houses?

H. J. W. R.—Ind.

The accompanying sketch shows two houses, 25 x 75, with 4-foot walls and twenty inches of glass in the south wall of the south house. The third house is built across the west end of the other houses and is 12 x 51. The boiler room is at the north end of this house. The west wall of the west house has six feet of glass and is ten feet high. For each of the houses, 25 x 75, for heating with hot water, run three 2½-inch flow pipes, locating one three feet below the ridge and the other on the side wall plates. Connect each flow with a coil of three 2-inch return pipes. The narrow house may be heated by

PLIBRICO JOINTLESS FURNACE LINING

Makes You Forget Your Furnace Troubles

After lining your boilers with PLIBRICO, forget them, for PLIBRICO means the end of worry.

It is a plastic material, easily installed, that when molded into baffles, bridge walls, side walls, and front-door arches makes a setting that is absolutely air tight and gas tight. Being jointless, there are no bricks to fall out or mortar to crumble.

After being baked and properly vitrified, PLIBRICO makes a furnace lining as solid as rock, and resistant to heat up to 3100° F.

Try it, and end your worries.

The Deadliness of Dead Surfaces

When you think that a dead surface in a boiler is only dead, you are dead wrong.
Not only is that dead surface worthless in heating the water, but it acts as a direct cooling surface.
It not only doesn't heat; but it keeps valuable heat from heating, because it cools the heat, without anything being heated. Brick, or any kind of masonry bridge walls are dead surface.
But they are not so deadly as surfaces exposed to the outside air, like the rear of all other self contained-fire-box-tubular boilers.

Every inch of the rear end of the Burnham Tubular is water surrounded. Has no bridge wall.
Every inch is a heating surface.

Here, then, is a boiler that's made not on theory; but just plain every day common sense.
It's so plain why it is the coal saver that it is; that if a man really wants to buy a boiler and takes time to look at one of the Burnhams for himself; and hears what its owner says about it, he simply sells himself.
Or rather, the boiler sells itself.
To our notion, that is the most satisfactory kind of selling.
We would like to have you try to sell yourself.

Will you, therefore, kindly consider this a most cordial invitation to be our guest to go around and call on some Tubular owners?
You say when.

means of two 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns.

To heat the houses with steam, run a 2½-inch flow pipe about three feet below the ridge of each of the wide houses and a 2-inch pipe in the narrow house. In the wide houses use eight 1¼-inch returns, arranged in coils under the benches. Five returns only will be needed in the narrow house, of which three should be on the north wall.

WATERPROOF BOILER PIT.

What is the best way to construct a waterproof pit for a hot water boiler? We wish to lower our boiler two feet more, which will place it below the high-water level of a near-by well.

W. & S.—N. Y.

The side walls of the pit may be constructed of concrete building blocks, or a form may be constructed, back of which an 8-inch wall of concrete should be built. The bottom of the pit should be a 4-inch layer of concrete. Use one part of cement to four of sand for laying the blocks, and add to this four parts of coarse gravel or crushed stone for building the floor of the pit and the walls, if they are built of concrete. For the inside coat on the walls and floor, use one part of cement to two of sharp sand, making the finishing coat three-eighths of an inch thick. Apply this before the walls have set or wet them down thoroughly before plastering. In case the wall sets and turns white within ten days, it should be moistened.

It's an established fact that

can be depended upon to control the pernicious White Fly (The Scourge of The Greenhouse). Used by thousands of florists in U. S. and Canada.

The Market.

Business has been slow the last week, but still it compares favorably with the normal business done before the war. The weather has been somewhat cooler, but not enough so to affect the market any. The market is still flooded with gladioli, but not nearly so badly as in previous years. Asters are better at present, but there is not nearly the quantity there was last year. They have been moving slowly, but have been cleaning up fairly well. Roses are getting better daily, although they are not extremely long yet, the majority being of short and medium stock. The outdoor miscellaneous stock is still going strong, such as calendulas, delphiniums, gaillardias, single and double, zinnias, bachelor's buttons and Golden Glow. Easter lilies and Japanese lilies, both short and long, have been moving nicely.

Various Notes.

Mr. Brandt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, was a recent visitor.

Miss Mercer has returned from her trip up the lakes, but has left again for two more weeks' vacation.

Allan Humason and brother, of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago, were recent visitors. W. A. R.

Moline, Ill.—H. S. Dickinson is specializing in the growing of roses.

Ada, Okla.—W. E. Pitt reports that he is benching his carnations. He has about 10,000 plants this year, having increased his plantings of Ward and Supreme. He has about 1,000 plants of White Wonder and is cutting down on his White Enchantress. He says that Matchless does not do well in his section, as the flowers are small and are badly infested with red spider. He also states that the weather in the section around Ada has been hot and dry and that rain is sorely needed.

The Market.

Business last week showed an improvement over the previous days. Asters are the most important flowers on the market at this time, and good prices have been secured for the stock. Gladioli are also plentiful and the demand for these flowers is good each day, almost the entire supply being moved. The supply and demand for green material is normal at steady and usual prices. Roses are in their midsummer condition and the principal varieties on the market are Ophelia, Russell, Premier, Columbia and Butterfly. The demand for American Beauty roses is exceptionally good and each day finds the stock exhausted. In all, retail trade at present is fully as good as may be expected at this time of the year.

Various Notes.

Charles S. Crall, of the I. S. Crall Co., Monongahela, Pa., has returned from a western trip.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is represented at the Washington convention by Messrs. Wampler, Frishkorn and Hook. Fred Burki, president of this company, and Alfred Burki, his son, are motoring to Washington to attend the convention. H. J. H.

DULUTH, MINN.

Business has been quiet except for funeral work and weddings. Rose stock is just moderate, while carnations are off crop. Outdoor flowers are plentiful, the best sellers being sweet peas and gladioli. Valley is good and plentiful and there is a fine supply of Easter lilies.

A heavy hail storm did much damage to the greenhouses at Duluth last week. Charles Stahlrodt, William Engwall and Miss Austin suffered heavy losses. Miss Austin was the only one of the three who carried insurance. Fred Longren, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, was a recent visitor at Duluth. J. E. S.

Houston, Tex.—E. C. Clothier has started in the florists' business in this city. His store will be located at 4501 North Main street.

Asters are in short supply, due to thrips and blight, which have done a great deal of damage hereabouts. Gladioli are in fair supply, with a fair demand. Roses and carnations are in short supply.

J. A. Brodrib is on his annual two weeks' vacation.

E. J. Drake is sending in a quantity of good asters, of which he is growing several thousands.

A recent visitor at Hartford was Arthur Holland, of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., of Boston, Mass. Mr. Holland was on his annual inspection of seed stocks at Wethersfield.

Charles B. Macdonald is on a two weeks' vacation. He is visiting relatives at Providence, R. I., and Boston, Mass., after which he will visit Milford and Middletown, Conn., and other places. C. B. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

Funeral work is about the only thing that is keeping the business alive here, large numbers of people being unemployed. The usual dull season seems duller than usual, but many feel that the worst is past. Business, no doubt, will have a much better tone after labor day.

Charles Luthy, of 363 Springfield avenue, reports a considerable amount of funeral work the last few weeks.

William Gahr reports that since the first of August there has been a much better tone to business than there was during July. R. B. M.

WHEN the thermometer drops to zero and the winter comes again and the old wind starts to raising sand in general, just light up the old pipe and quit your worrying—for that's my job.

JIM.

Believe me, I did a lot of worrying at one time, but not any more, for the formula that I concocted on JIM'S ELASTIC is about the finest thing in the way of a glazing material that ever went on a greenhouse.

My material (JIM'S ELASTIC) is made up of gums and oils and comes to you ready for use in a beautiful gray color. It's not so easy to turn out quantities of JIM'S ELASTIC and please everybody; but that's exactly what I'm doing and any time that you or any greenhouse man in this old U. S. A. has any kick coming, my boss stands willing to make it good. BUT, while my boss is a fine fellow and alla that, he's a slick bird 'cause he knows (he tried it out for years first) that only good can come from good and my formula is a good one.

Here's a special offer I am running this week: Spend 2c on a letter and mail me the coupon which you'll see below and I'll send you, free of charge, a liberal sample of the Genuine (Gray Color) JIM'S ELASTIC.

Yours,

JIM.

MR. A. J. WASHKO, of A. J. Washko & Sons Floral Co., Bedford, Ohio, writes:

"It is a pleasure to me to express my opinion in regard to your patent LEAK-PROOF gutter. I wish to state that I speak of many years' experience as an architect and know when material is fit for a certain place. The fact is that your gutter really is the best gutter on the market up to date. It is second to none; it really has no equal."

We are the patentees and sole manufacturers of this LEAK-PROOF gutter which is giving so much satisfaction.

DAVID S. CHAPIN

PAINESVILLE, O.

Carl Barto, seedsman of Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., with his wife and family, spent his vacation at Painesville, visiting his parents at the nursery.

Harry S. Day, mayor of Fremont, O., and erstwhile nurseryman, attended the meeting of the Ohio State Nurserymen's Association, August 12.

R. A. Cowley has returned from his vacation, which was spent in Michigan.

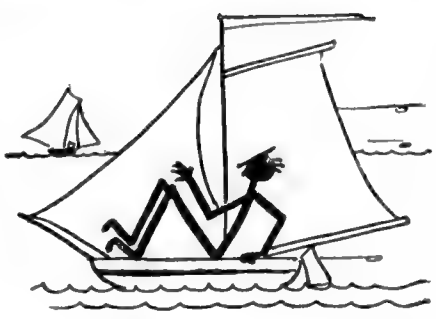
E. H. Schultz, manager of the Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O., says that large orders of irises and peonies are being shipped from there.

Prof. Alfred Hottes, of the Ohio State University, attended the meeting of the Ohio State Nurserymen's Association and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wyant, the nursery inspector of the district.

T. R. Norman has just completed a greenhouse which will be used for propagating shrubs and perennials.

Andrew Jefferies, in charge of the perennial department of R. E. Huntington, has had remarkable success this season with perennials.

Fred Endress & Son are erecting a greenhouse, 20x100 feet in size, which will be used exclusively for propagating purposes.



The wholesale price list of Honkala & Wildgren, growers of hardy perennials, has just been issued.

The recent hail storm did considerable damage to the nurserymen of Painesville. Much stock and glass was destroyed.

Mrs. J. J. Grullemans underwent a successful operation for appendicitis at the Lake County hospital and is getting along nicely. T. J. M.

EVERTITE
GLAZING CEMENT

Applied with an "OH BOY" Automatic Gun

Evertite Glazing Cement applied with the new "Oh Boy" Gun (see cut below) makes an ideal combination. This gun, which is the last word in glazing guns, allows Evertite Glazing Cement to flow in a uniform consistency all the time. Note the ease with which this gun can be handled. Think of what you have used and draw your own conclusion.

The Market.

Last week was one of the many wherein florists have not been overworked with the amount of business that has come their way, with, probably, the exception of a few days. The weather has been much cooler and a betterment of stock can readily be noticed.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Clem Lanternier spent a few days with her husband at the sanatorium at Oxford, O. She brings the report that he is getting better.

Messrs. Johnson, Hansen and Hines, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, stopped in the city a few hours on their way to Washington, D. C. They are motoring through and thus improving the opportunity of visiting the florists along the way. John Lodder, of Hamilton, O., was also a visitor among the trade.

Miss Jeannette Schock, of the Flick Floral Co., is spending a couple of weeks at Petoskey, Mich. Miss Catherine Crawford, of J. Breitmeyer's Sons, of Detroit, Mich., is a guest of Miss Alice Flick. Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive went to Washington to attend the S. A. F. convention.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have completed the planting of their carnation houses, which look as though the crop will be fine the coming season. David S. Vesey has gone to attend the S. A. F. convention at Washington. Miss Margaret Vesey is home for a few days. Miss Vesey is the general secretary for the Y. M. C. A. at Louisville, Ky.

S. N.

Dayton, O.—A. J. Martin has sold his greenhouse and his flower business to Mr. and Mrs. Rownsley, who will continue the business. Mr. Martin has bought some land on R. R. 1 and as soon as he recovers his health sufficiently he will go into business again.

Aransas Pass, Tex.—The Gulf Coast Floral & Vegetable Farm is now known as the Gulf Coast Floral Gardens. William Roman, the manager, says that when he first started he grew vegetables entirely. A year ago he started to grow flowers and found them so much more profitable that he now confines his activities to the florists' business. He is growing a general line of stock, specializing in ferns.

Safe and dependable for every use under glass or in the field.

SOLD BY DEALERS IN FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

From 1-gallon cans to 50-gallon barrels in bulk.

When we started making paint in 1875, in a conversation with Mr. John Hoag of Ossining, N. Y., brought out the difficulty of getting paint to hold on and look well on his hothouses. The result was this Original Greenhouse White Paint, which after several years of test by various people was registered under the above trade mark as the original greenhouse paint. If you need paint use it and you will make no mistake. ☛ Equally good for dwellings.

AMERICA FOR THE AMERICANS!!

You need no longer be dependent on The Netherlands for your Tulip supply.

Since 1914 we have raised Tulips in Michigan with great success and we are strong for them. You, too, can raise your own supply of Tulips. (See official report by the Department of Agriculture in the Florists' Review of May, 1921.)

If you are alive to a paying proposition, act at once and take advantage of this.

Owing to limited space on our farm at Grand Rapids, we are forced to sell the following named varieties at a sacrifice:

Early Tulips, Yellow Prince and Artus.

Darwin Tulips, Clara Butt, Gretchen and Inglescombe Yellow.

Planting stock, 2-year-old.....$6.00 per 1000
Planting stock, 1-year-old..... 3.00 per 1000

Grasp this: Next year you will pay $4.00 per 1000 duty on Tulips. Please send cash with order.

LETTER FROM FERD. FISCHER.
To My Customers in America:

Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.

I have paid strict attention to my salmon and red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed soon will be offered by the American Bulb Co., who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Co. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world. Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER.

Miles City, Mont.—October 1, 1910, Mary E. Marcy, now Mrs. A. H. Gregory, opened the flower store at 617 Main street, which was a branch of Smedley's, of Fargo, N. D. She purchased this store of Mr. Smedley in 1911 and built the Miles City Greenhouses. In 1913 she married A. H. Gregory, who was president of Montana Institute, a business college, at Miles City. Mr. Gregory later gave up his school work and assisted in the flower business, being associated with the business up to the present time. August of this year, N. K. Soelberg, who had become foreman of the firm in 1911, signed a contract of sale for the purchase of the business. Prior to this Mr. Gregory had purchased the Flower Shop, at Berkeley, Cal., and both Mr. and Mrs. Gregory will reside there.

A wise business man figures costs by the year, right down the line, and especially so if his business has to do with greenhouses. He knows, either by experience or from a close study of the subject, that the only businesslike method of determining material costs in greenhouse building is by the year—first cost and up-keep cost.

CYPRESS, "the wood eternal" for greenhouse construction, is positively the cheapest wood to use, figured by its years on the job, without repairs or replacements.

All good constructors in these days are insisting on genuine "Tide-Water" Cypress, "The Wood Eternal"—every board and bundle bearing the famous Cypress Trade-mark.

Vol. 8, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is a little book filled with a big bunch of facts and figures about greenhouse construction—profitable reading. There are 48 books in the "Library," all of which give useful facts and plans about HOW, WHEN and WHERE to use CYPRESS, "The Wood Eternal," AND WHY. Which one shall we send you?

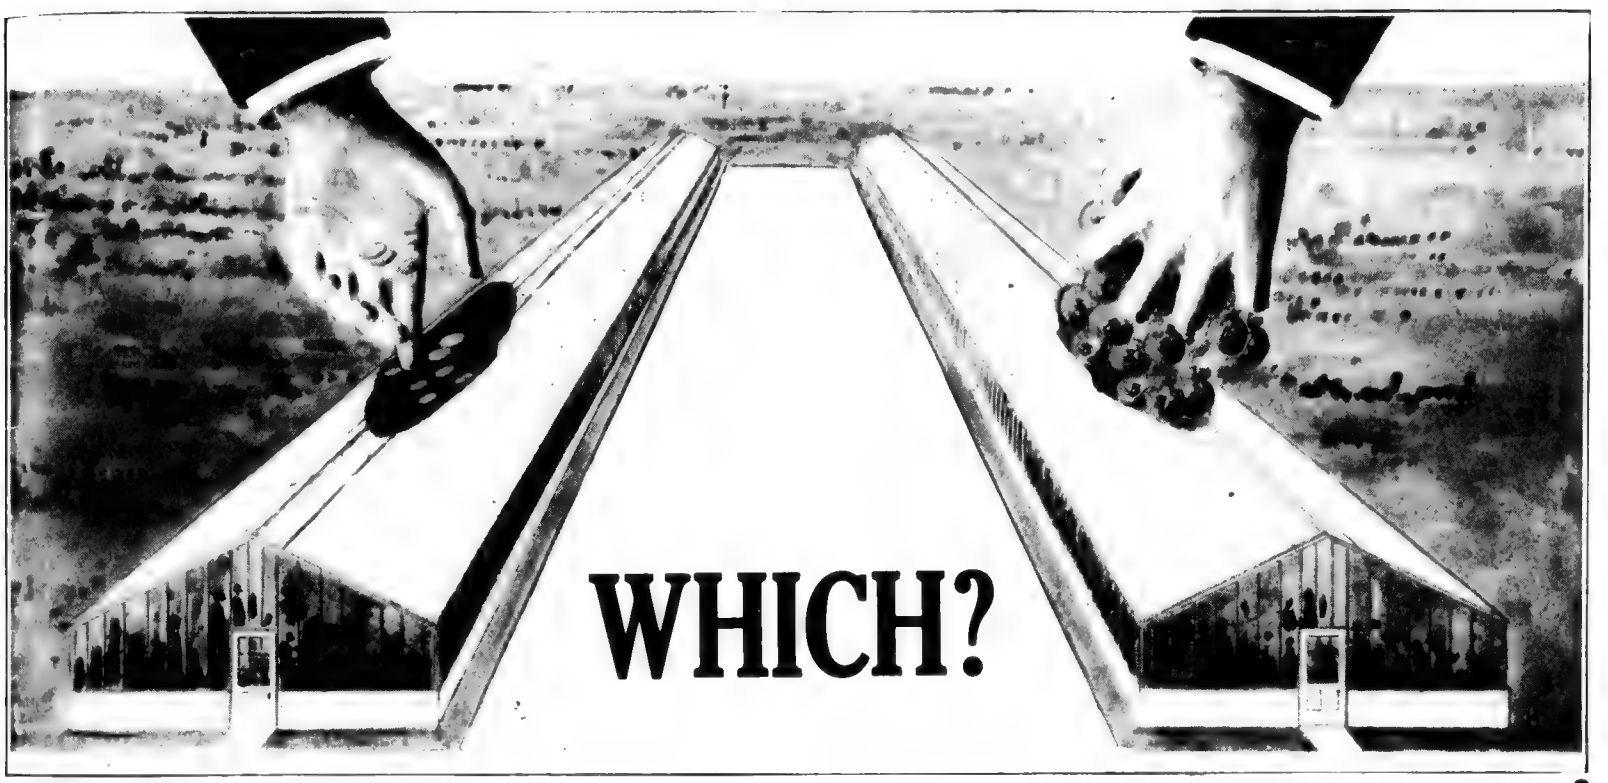
FOLEY GREENHOUSES

Interior view of one of Sydney Tinkler's FOLEY HOUSES at Mt. Clemens, Mich. We built two like this for him this Spring—each house 32 feet 6 inches wide by 120 feet long.

FROM our many years of experience in building greenhouses of every size—for every possible purpose—we can build for you the house best fitted to your needs.

FOLEY HOUSES are so thoroughly built—a FOLEY HEATING SYSTEM is so ample—and so dependable, that growers can be sure of satisfactory results from their efforts.



Regardless of the type of construction preferred—there is a FOLEY GREENHOUSE of that type which will satisfy you to the letter.

Are you putting in or taking out?

You wide-awake, growing growers—the boys that sign the checks and look after the pay rolls—you will want the AGMCO sooner or later. Nothing like AGMCO houses to put pep and ginger in a fellow—you just feel like saying "LET'S GO" when you own AGMCO greenhouses. It's a joy to work in them, too. Just talk it over with us if you want a big dollar's worth for your money. AGMCO houses pay most per dollar of investment.

AGMCO

THE START

Built for Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo.

In establishing a greenhouse plant much future labor and expense can be saved by starting out right.

Careful planning for future increase is essential. In starting the above greenhouse range the owner, Mr. Alpha Elberfield, came to us and together we laid out and made plans so that when future greenhouses are added it will be merely a matter of attaching the houses and connecting up the heating. As an instance, notice that the chimney is built so that it can be doubled in height without changing the foundations. Also note the water tank connected with a pneumatic water supply system and a reservoir under the entire first greenhouse.

We like to have customers consult us regarding their building plans, for we feel that we can save them money.

Greenhouse Builders

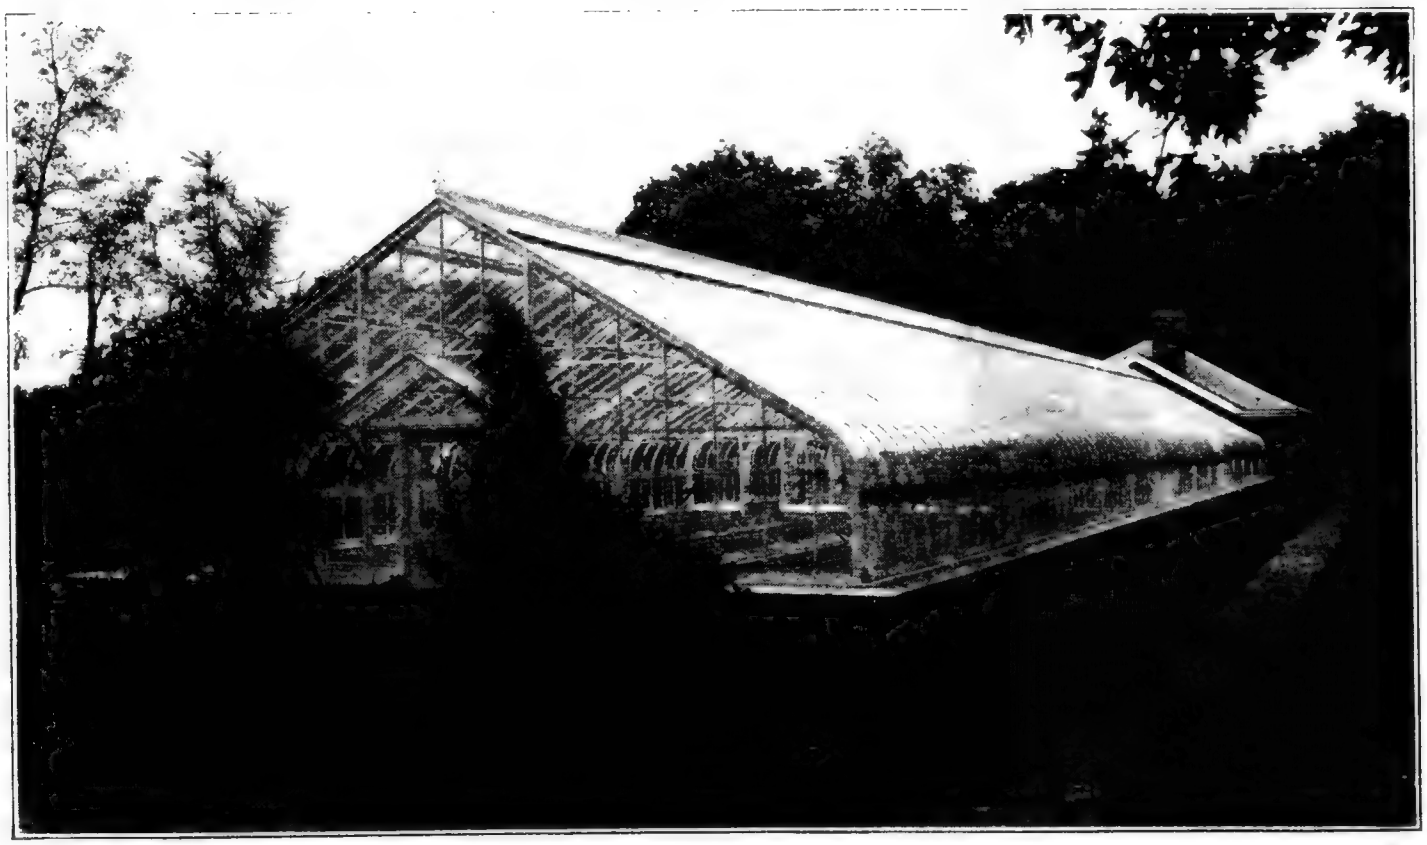
How So Little More Gets You So Much More

Two and two make four. No one denies that. However, there are, nevertheless, times when by adding a little you really get more than you actually add.

Take a greenhouse 18 feet wide for example: you add 7 more feet to make it 25.
You have added 7 feet; but you get an extra bench, another walk, a higher roof, meaning better ventilating and heating conditions.

Furthermore, now that it is 25 feet wide, it doesn't cost you as much proportionately as if it were 18. You actually get more without paying the more you get.

That then is why we are forever harping on the building of 25-foot houses on private places.



In these times when folks are figuring costs closely, our standard stock house and work room is the thing to build.
Send for circular called—Three Houses and One More.
It gives you full particulars on four stock houses.

New Crop Formosum Lilies—Just Arrived—Immediate Delivery

Our first shipment of Formosum Lilies is now in transit from Seattle to Chicago.
While the crop is extremely short, we will be able to execute 100% of all orders we have taken in advance. We are able to book new orders from one to ten-case lots only. We offer the following prices from our first arrival of Formosum Lilies:

Williamsport, Pa.
Dec. 6, 1920.

American Bulb Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

We have received your shipment of Lily Bulbs. We desire to commend both the quality of the bulbs and the manner in which they were packed. We have never seen a finer lot of bulbs.

Very truly yours,
Evenden Bros. Co.

Lilium Giganteum Crop

(PRICES NOT YET FIXED)

Reports from Japan indicate that Giganteum crop will be extremely scarce. Less than four million came to America last season. This season there is a report that there will be 20% shortage, so our advice to the Florists in order to assure themselves of Lilies for this coming year is to buy a few cases of Formosum.

"STANDARDIZED GRADING OF ROSES"
"Uniformity Needed"

The following are extracts from the address by Joseph Kohout at the S. A. convention at Washington, August 18, 1921, printed in the Florists' Review, in the Convention Number, page 42:

"The standardization of the grading of cut flowers" * * * "the need of which has long been felt all over the country," * * * "for no system whatsoever has been used."

We call attention that such a system has been in use over a year, by Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Mr. Kohout related a suppositional case, as follows: "Let us suppose an out-of-town retailer finds he needs 100 Roses about 24 inches long. He will look in the trade paper and find that Roses listed as 'Fancy long' are priced at 20 cents. He wires for 100 'Fancy long,' and receives Roses on 18-inch stems. He expected and required 24-inch. He wires to another house, same wording, and receives 36-inch Roses, which were their 'Fancy long,' whereas the 18-inch were the other house's 'Fancy long.'"

By Poehlmann's system this could not happen. The man needing 24-inch Roses would wire for 100 Roses, "Seconds," and 24-inch Roses he would get. There can be no misapprehension when you order from our Bulletin; it's as open as a book. The system generally in use in listing Roses, as Mr. Kohout states, is "Fancy long," "Extra," "Select," "Medium," and "Shorts." How does a retailer know what he is going to get, because what one wholesaler terms "Fancy long" would be the same length that another wholesaler would term "Medium," so that if you were to wire each of three houses for 100 "Fancy long" Roses you might get three different grades.

On the opposite page we submit our Current Price List for the purpose of showing our system, which is open to any and all wholesalers to adopt if they so desire.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

S. A. F. TO RESUME PUBLICITY PROGRAM

One of the most enjoyable of S. A. F. meetings, the convention at Washington last week was likewise one of action. Of the various projects discussed, most important was the plan to continue national publicity through another 4-year subscription campaign.

MOST important of the decisions taken at the Washington convention of the Society of American Florists, last week, was that to act upon the national publicity committee's plans to resume magazine advertising this autumn and to undertake a new 4-year subscription campaign, in continuation of the one concluded this year, with $100,000 as the sum to be raised in each of the years 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925. The committee has laid its plans for a campaign in the national magazines this coming autumn, with copy better than ever before, specimens of which Major O'Keefe had on view. By suspending such advertising during the first half of this year, the committee was able to meet all its previously contracted obligations and to accumulate sufficient funds on hand so as now to be in position to cover the cost of every contract which it places.

Stimulating Addresses.

The decision to pursue this course and to prepare for another 4-year subscription campaign followed the hearing of a stimulating report by Henry Penn, chairman of the national publicity committee, printed in last week's Review, reinforced by remarks from George Asmus as chairman of the finance committee of the publicity committee, driven home by the excellent address of L. D. Fernald, advertising manager of the New York Post, and topped by the igniting talk of Major P. F. O'Keefe.

In his address, full of pithy statements, L. D. Fernald said:

"To build up successfully the habit of buying flowers will require a habit of advertising flowers on the florists' part. Merely doing it spasmodically—now and then, at special seasons or on special days—won't do the job. It will simply increase the amount of spasmodic sales, now-and-then purchasing, instead of the regular buying of flowers, transients instead of customers.

"May I suggest that advertising requires exactly the same treatment as the rest of the florist's business requires. His flowers of today exist because he has had persistence and confidence in investing his money in good seeds or good plants and in stimulating their growth by ideal growing conditions and cultivation. Identically the same logic should give him the same confidence in his advertising, for identically the same logic applies."

Mr. Fernald pointed to campaigns now being conducted throughout the country as examples of one of his principles, that the slack season is the advertising season.

"If you will keep up your advertising and do more of it, and make people think more about flowers," he predicted, "this will be the biggest and best business year the florists of the United States have ever known."

> On his return from the Washington convention, Secretary Young received the following radiogram from President-elect S. S. Pennock, in reply to a cable message notifying him of his election: "Essen, Germany. To John Young, 43 W. 18th St., New York: My warmest appreciation of the confidence and honor tendered me. Best wishes to everyone. S. S. Pennock."

Subscription Books Out.

After presenting to his hearers a plea not to allow so remarkable a slogan to languish and lose its business-developing power, Major O'Keefe outlined the plan for furthering the campaign. Books of subscription pledges had been prepared, twenty-five blanks in each book. These were distributed to those who pledged their aid to the campaign by securing signatures of twenty-five florists in each book. If 200 florists took books, he stated, and secured on each of the twenty-five blanks a pledge of the average sum of $20, a fund of $100,000 a year would be obtained for the next four years, an amount nearly twice as much as was available for publicity in any of the four years of the present campaign. The enthusiasm with which the books were taken augured well for the success of the campaign.

Flower Show Session.

Following the hour at the polls Thursday morning, when Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and Fred L. Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., were elected directors, a session was held devoted chiefly to the next national flower show. George Asmus, chairman of the committee preparing for that event, presented the report which appeared in last week's issue of The Review. He was followed by Charles H. Totty, who gave an excellent discourse on the benefit to be derived by the trade from flower shows. Robert Pyle was then called upon to talk about the participation of the American Rose Society in the show. A. F. J. Baur spoke for the American Carnation Society and Irwin Bertermann for the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

Helpful to Growers.

At the closing session, Thursday afternoon, an exceedingly instructive paper was read on "The Maintenance of Soil Fertility," by James H. Beattie, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. He was rewarded with a rising vote of thanks. The paper was printed in full last week in these columns.

A telegram was read from Adolph Gude, replying to the one sent him by the convention at an earlier session.

A plea for the standardization of methods of grading cut flowers was strongly put by Joseph Kohout, of Libertyville, Ill., former president of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago and now president of the Illinois State Florists' Association. His address was printed in last week's issue of The Review. Following it, Max Schling gave emphatic reënforcement to Mr. Kohout's statements. J. F. Ammann asked that the president appoint a committee of three, including one grower, one retailer and one wholesaler, to consider and report at the next convention on Mr. Kohout's paper. The proposal was unanimously carried.

Robert Kift moved that telegrams be sent in the society's name to those old staunch supporters of the organization, Robert Craig and John Weston, whose absence was regretted.

Reports of the judges of the trade exhibits were read by J. H. Pepper. These are given in full on another page.

J. F. Ammann presented a supplementary report of the membership committee, calling attention to those members who had assisted most strongly. He stated that the total new members gained so far in the drive were 628. These had been obtained by 110 members of the society. Eight men were responsible for 204 new members. These were:

A. S. Gray, Chickasha, Okla.	47
D. C. Horgan, Macon, Ga.	37
E. A. Farley, New Orleans, La.	25
John Young, New York	25
Harrie S. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.	22
W. H. Englehart, Memphis, Tenn.	17
James McLaughlin, Cleveland, O.	16
Paul Klingsporn, Chicago	15

Oklahoma, Georgia, Louisiana, Kansas and Michigan state organizations will be entitled to representation on the S. A. F. board of directors in consequence of the drive.

The report of the committee on memorials was read by Secretary Young while all stood with bowed heads.

Max Schling drew an interested audience, which sat through his 2-hour demonstration and lecture on the hottest afternoon of the convention. One of his most beautiful specimens of floral art, a corsage of orchids, he presented to Mrs. J. C. Vaughan. A handsome vase of spray orchids, croton and other foliage and garden flowers he presented to William F. Gude.

Final Resolutions.

At the conclusion of Max Schling's talk the final resolutions were read by F. R. Kilner. These embodied thanks to the various agencies contributing to the success of the convention—the Washington florists in general, the society's officers, the ladies, the Gude family in particular, George W. Hess, Capt. William H. Ernest for pottery, the manager of the hall, the Kiwanis, Rotary, Optimist, Shriners and other clubs, the daily and trade press, etc. The resolutions were prepared by a committee composed of Irwin Bertermann, chairman; Adam Graham, Frank H. Traendly, I. S. Hendrickson, Fred H. Weber, William K. Harris and F. R. Kilner.

Motion of adjournment, to reconvene at the time of the Cleveland national flower show, March 11 to 18, 1922, was made by Carl Hagenburger, seconded and carried. Thus closed the thirty-seventh convention!

JUDGES' AWARDS ON EXHIBITS.

The judges found much of commendable value in the many exhibits composing the trade display. The detailed description in The Review for last week included all of the ninety exhibits made. The comments and awards of the judges, F. R. Pierson, Earl H. Mann and E. Allan Peirce, on sections C and D were as follows:

Vasil Steam Systems Co., Washington, D. C.—Vasil hand stoker, a novel device for use in fuel consumption.

John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind.—Exhibit of ventilating apparatus parts.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York—Exhibit of photographs of greenhouse construction.

Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.—Desk space and literature.

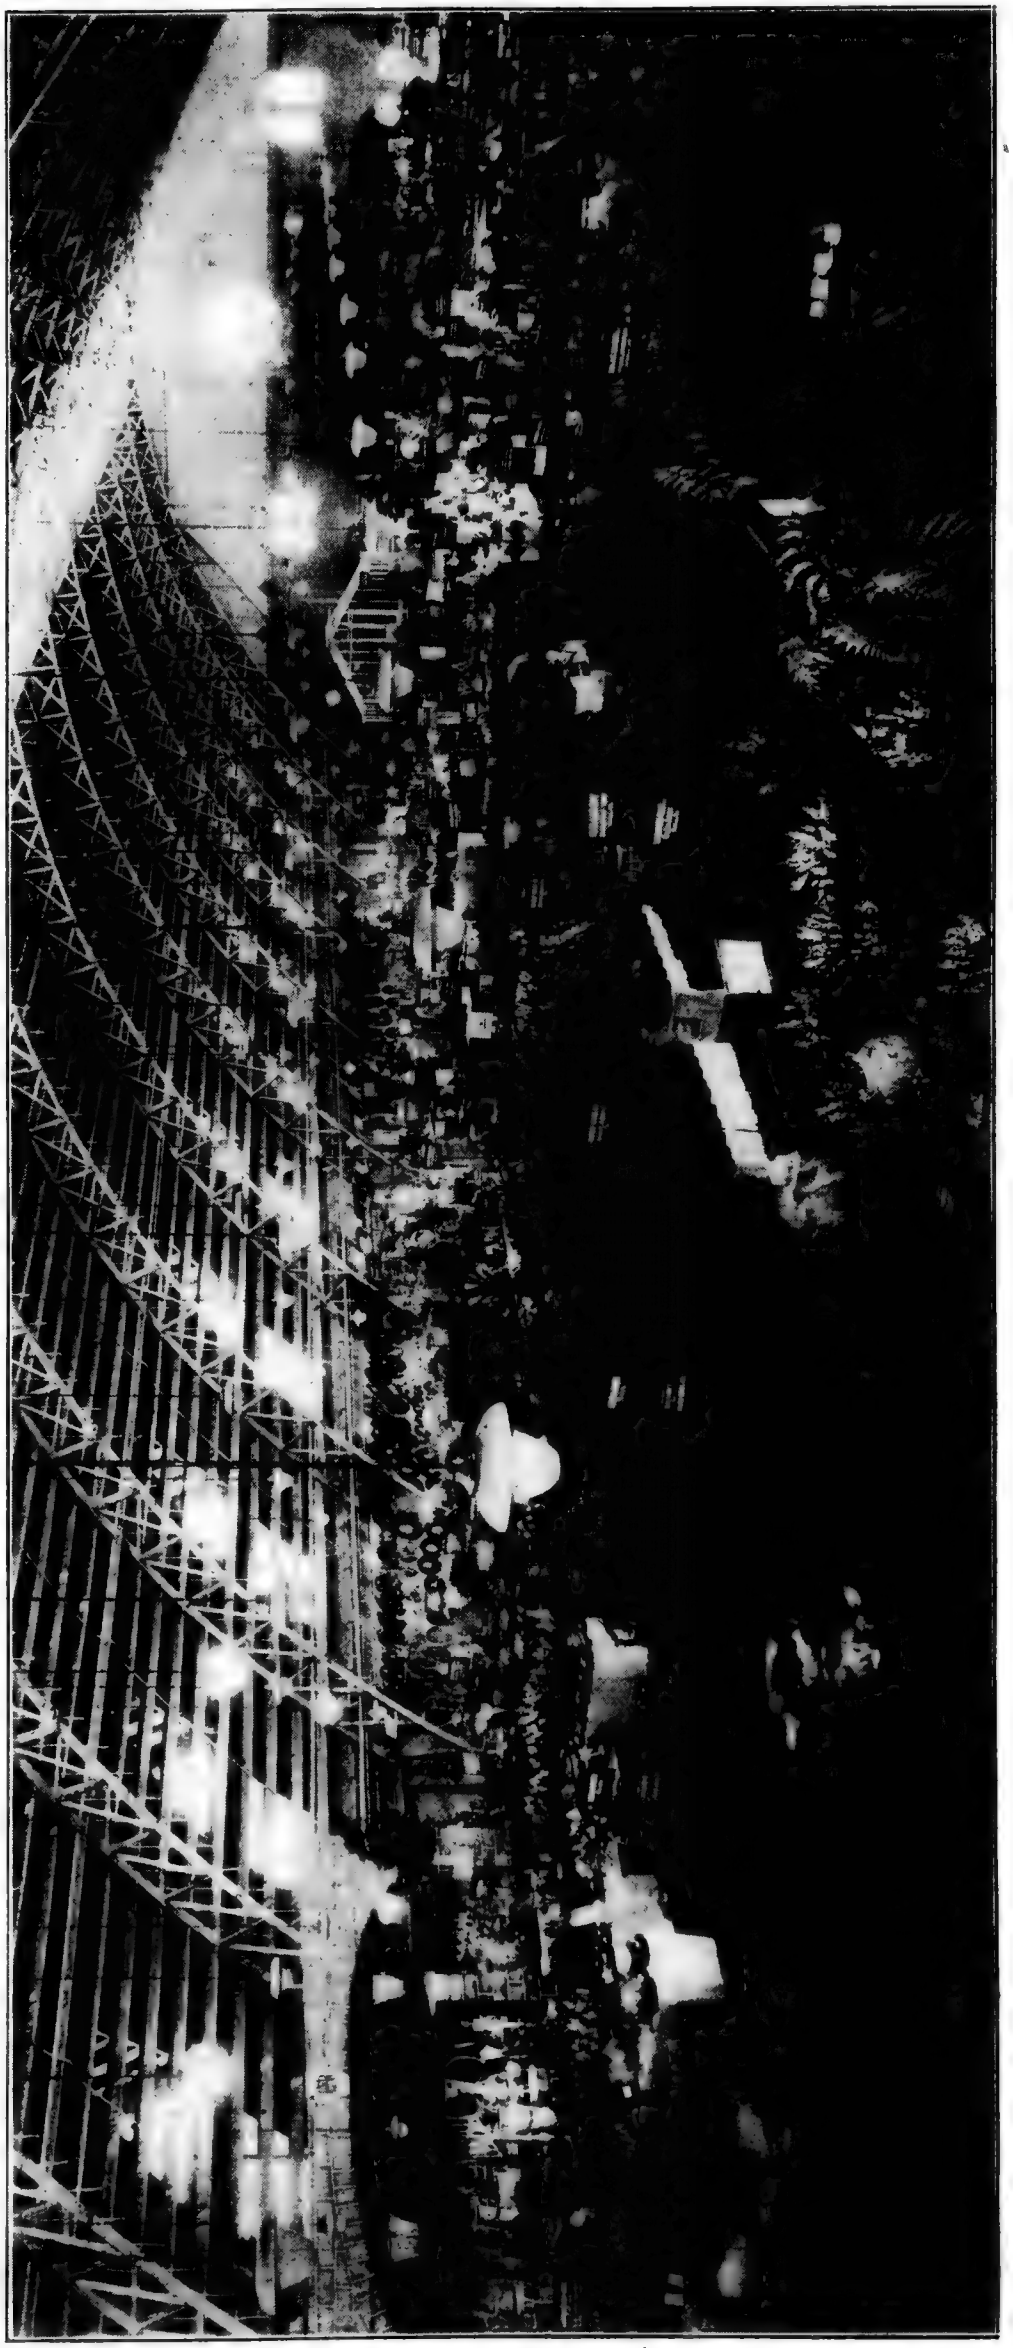
Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.—Black and gold finish willow ware basket, highly commended.

THE NEW OFFICERS.



President Samuel S. Pennock.

Samuel S. Pennock, the newly elected president of the Society of American Florists, last week received the rare compliment of being accorded the highest floricultural honor in the country while absent from the convention at which the election was held. Seldom does such an action take place, but in S. S. Pennock the society has a president who well deserves such an honor.

Mr. Pennock is now in Europe on a mission for the Society of Friends. He has been in charge of its work of feeding the starving children in Germany. While in France he was the recipient of another honor, representing America as judge at the big rose event of the year in France, if not in the world, that of the annual exhibition of roses at the Bagatelle Gardens, which are famed for their roses all over the world.

Mr. Pennock is president of the S. S. Pennock Co., the large and well known wholesale florists' establishment in Philadelphia, which has branches in New York, Baltimore and Washington.

Mr. Pennock was born August 31, 1869, and, therefore, next week will celebrate his fifty-second birthday. His birthplace was Upper Darby, Pa. His father, A. L. Pennock, one of the pioneers of the flower business, founded the firm of Pennock Bros. in 1863. S. S. Pennock started in the florists' business in 1887, with his brother Charles, at 38 South Sixteenth street, and was later taken in as a partner. At the time of his brother's death, in 1891, he succeeded to the whole business. He continued the business in the same place, under the name of Samuel S. Pennock, until 1896, when a move was made to the present location, 1608 Ludlow street. In 1906 the business was in-

ty. He stated that the total new members gained so far in the drive were 628. These had been obtained by 110 members of the society. Eight men were responsible for 204 new members. These were:

A. S. Gray, Chickasha, Okla.	47
D. C. Horgan, Macon, Ga.	37
E. A. Farley, New Orleans, La.	25
John Young, New York	25
Harrie S. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.	22
W. H. Englehart, Memphis, Tenn.	17
James McLaughlin, Cleveland, O.	16
Paul Klingsporn, Chicago	15

Oklahoma, Georgia, Louisiana, Kansas and Michigan state organizations will be entitled to representation on the S. A. F. board of directors in consequence of the drive.

The report of the committee on memorials was read by Secretary Young while all stood with bowed heads.

Max Schling drew an interested audience, which sat through his 2-hour demonstration and lecture on the hottest afternoon of the convention. One of his most beautiful specimens of floral art, a corsage of orchids, he presented to Mrs. J. C. Vaughan. A handsome vase of spray orchids, croton and other foliage and garden flowers he presented to William F. Gude.

Final Resolutions.

At the conclusion of Max Schling's talk the final resolutions were read by F. R. Kilner. These embodied thanks to the various agencies contributing to the success of the convention—the Washington florists in general, the society's officers, the ladies, the Gude family in particular, George W. Hess, Capt. William H. Ernest for pottery, the manager of the hall, the Kiwanis, Rotary, Optimist, Shriners and other clubs, the daily and trade press, etc. The resolutions were prepared by a committee composed of Irwin Bertermann, chairman; Adam Graham, Frank H. Traendly, I. S. Hendrickson, Fred H. Weber, William K. Harris and F. R. Kilner.

Motion of adjournment, to reconvene at the time of the Cleveland national flower show, March 11 to 18, 1922, was made by Carl Hagenburger, seconded and carried. Thus closed the thirty seventh convention!

JUDGES' AWARDS ON EXHIBITS.

The judges found much of commendable value in the many exhibits composing the trade display. The detailed description in The Review for last week included all of the ninety exhibits made. The comments and awards of the judges, F. R. Pierson, Earl H. Mann and E. Allan Peirce, on sections C and D were as follows:

Vasil Steam Systems Co., Washington, D. C.—Vasil hand stoker, a novel device for use in fuel consumption.

John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind.—Exhibit of ventilating apparatus parts.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York—Exhibit of photographs of greenhouse construction.

Seldom does such an action take place, but in S. S. Pennock the society has a president who well deserves such an honor.

Mr. Pennock is president of the S. S. Pennock Co., the large and well known wholesale florists' establishment in Philadelphia, which has branches in New York, Baltimore and Washington.

Mr. Pennock was born August 31, 1869, and, therefore, next week will celebrate his fifty-second birthday. His birthplace was Upper Darby, Pa. His father, A. L. Pennock, one of the pioneers of the flower business, founded the firm of Pennock Bros. in 1863. S. S. corporated as the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. Since a separation of the partners, the company has been known as the S. S. Pennock Co.

Mr. Pennock is an ex-president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, has been a member of the executive boards of the American Rose Society and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and is affiliated with many other organizations, among them the Society of Friends. Last fall he was elected president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. He has two sons and two daughters.

Vice-president Samuel Murray.

When the Society of American Florists selected for its vice-president Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, it chose a man who has lived with flowers all his life. He was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., January 18, 1860. In 1862 he was taken to the Benmore estate, at Kilmun, Argyllshire, by his father, Robert Murray, who was the head gardener there. At the age of 14, young Samuel went to work in the gardens. However, he wanted to see more of the land in which he was born. So in 1880, at the age of 20, he set forth and arrived in New York, March 31, 1880. He was employed by Peter Henderson for about two years. He then went to the private estate of John Hobart Warren, at Hoosic Falls, N. Y., where he was the head gardener for about six years.

He went back to Peter Henderson, seeking a new position, and was given a letter to John N. May, who sent him west to St. Joseph, Mo. In 1889 he went to Kansas City and established a small business, which has grown to its present size and which is now well known to almost all of us.

Mr. Murray has served as a director of the S. A. F. for several terms and has been active in other trade organizations.

Miss Martha C. Gunterberg.

SCHLING'S HELPFUL HINTS.

"Whew! It's getting hot!" remarked a florist in convention hall, Washington, D. C., Thursday, August 18, at about 2 p. m. "Bet there won't be two dozen people at the closing session this afternoon."

"I'll bet you there'll be more than 200," replied a companion. "Max Schling is going to give a lecture."

"That's right," rejoined the first speaker, wiping a large handkerchief across his brow. "Let's go in and get front seats."

And by the time Max Schling began his talk the largest gathering, save perhaps that of the opening session, of the three convention days filled the big hall.

A number of suggestions were given to retailers, some explainable only as Mr. Schling explained them, with demonstration. He emphasized the necessity of arranging flowers close together in a corsage and making the whole a light, delicate affair, not a ponderous mass more conspicuous than its wearer. A splendid example of his art, in the form of a cattleya corsage, was presented to Mrs. J. C. Vaughan after the audience had admired it sufficiently.

In table decorations Mr. Schling showed an arrangement easily made for a late order and adaptable to a large or a small table, in case the florist is not definitely informed in such a rush order. A center decoration was made and then a dozen or so 2½-inch pots, covered with sheet moss, plugged at the bottom with plaster of Paris and filled with cut fern, were filled with rambler rose sprays and appropriate blooms and foliage to match the centerpiece. These pots could be set close to the centerpiece on a small table or moved some distance from it on a large table. When they were placed, a few ferns and flowers intermingled on the table, made an artistic whole out of the component parts.

The centerpiece he showed could be made of a glass tube on a fixed base, surmounted with a piece of modeling clay, in place of the potato he used in former demonstrations. Into the clay were thrust the stems of flowers and ferns to make any conformation the decorator desired.

Mr. Schling showed how useful cut sprays of coleus, croton and such foliage plants could be made. A masterpiece of a vase, employing croton foliage most effectively, was presented to William F. Gude after the applause had finished after its completion.

Many other pieces of skill and bits of information were imparted to brother florists before Mr. Schling ended his 2-hour talk with a series of stereopticon slides showing new styles of work and specimens of his advertising.

THE SPORTS EVENTS.

Bowling Tournament.

The most time-honored and popular event of the convention sports program was, of course, the bowling tournament. This was held on the alleys at 918 G street Thursday evening and drew a large number of spectators, who, with the bowlers, regaled themselves with ample refreshments provided by the local florists. Competition was of the keenest character and old-time rivalry reappeared in full strength.

Chicago won the team prize with a total of 2,234, New York being second with 2,189. The team scores were:

Target Shooting.

Wednesday, August 17, at 2:30 p. m., several automobile loads of florists motored out to the Chevy Chase Country Club, at Chevy Chase, Md. Twelve contestants participated in the rifle events, with a gallery of about twice as many. After the contests refreshments were served in the clubhouse. This event was in the charge of Z. D. Blackistone, who provided a most enjoyable afternoon; Mr. Blackistone was also in charge of the shoot at the 1905 convention. The winners of the various events were: E. Stevenson, Baltimore, making 35 out of a possible 50; Mark K. Mills, of Philadelphia, 18 out of 25; Thomas Stevenson, of Baltimore, 12 out of 15; Edward Reid, of Philadelphia, 8 out of 10.

The Golf Tournament.

The first golf tournament ever held at a florists' convention was the result of the untiring work of Z. D. Blackistone, an ardent follower of the Scottish game. Comparatively few members of the trade have taken up the game, though the number increases year by year. DONORS OF PRIZES.

Among the preparations of the Florists' Club of Washington for the convention none were more enthusiastically carried out and thoroughly made than those for the sports events. The strenuous efforts of the Washington florists were, moreover, backed by houses in the trade who were called upon to donate prizes. Those who contributed were as follows:

Washington Florists' Club, $50 in cash.
Wm. H. Ernest, $25 in cash.
H. Bayersdorfer & Co., ladies' sewing basket.
Schloss Bros. Ribbons, Inc., electric percolator.
Bobbink & Atkins, $10 gold piece.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The report of the annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association, in last week's issue of The Review, contained the statement of several changes to be made in the by-laws of the organization, regulating the basis on which the association is to do business. These changes were recommended by the executive board to be voted upon at the next annual meeting of the association, at Kansas City next August. The amendments are as follows:

Article 13, section 1, to read "the membership fee shall be $3 for every person insuring 2,000 square feet, or less, of glass, and $1 for each additional 1,000 square feet, instead of $2 and 50 cents, respectively.

Article 21, section 2, to read "twenty per cent of regular assessment," instead of ten per cent.

Article 30 (new), section 1: "All hazardous risks unpaid before full payment of said hazard has been liquidated, upon future renewal, whether by original owner or agent of said risk, or by new owner or agent, must be assumed by the new applicant."

Article 31, section 1: "Reinsurance shall be charged upon all glass broken, when adjustment of loss is made, in such manner as shall restore insurance to same status as previous to loss."

Article 31, section 2: "When houses are not to be rebuilt, the secretary must be notified at time of filing of claim, in which case no reinsurance is to be charged, and membership of claimant from date of such notice must be canceled on the books of the association."

corporated as the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. Since a separation of the partners, the company has been known as the S. S. Pennock Co.

Mr. Pennock is an ex-president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, has been a member of the executive boards of the American Rose Society and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and is affiliated with many other organizations, among them the Society of Friends. Last fall he was elected president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. He has two sons and two daughters.

Vice-president Samuel Murray.

When the Society of American Florists selected for its vice-president Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, it chose a man who has lived with flowers all his life. He was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., January 18, 1860. In 1862 he was taken to the Benmore estate, at Kilmun, Argyllshire, by his father, Robert Murray, who was the head gardener there. At the age of 14, young Samuel went to work in the gardens. However, he wanted to see more of the land in which he was born. So in 1880, at the age of 20, he set forth and arrived in New York, March 31, 1880. He was employed by Peter Henderson for about two years. He then went to the private estate of John Hobart Warren, at Hoosic Falls, N. Y., where he was the head gardener for about six years.

He went back to Peter Henderson, seeking a new position, and was given a letter to John N. May, who sent him west to St. Joseph, Mo. In 1889 he went to Kansas City and established a small business, which has grown to its present size and which is now well known to almost all of us.

Mr. Murray has served as a director of the S. A. F. for several terms and has been active in other trade organizations.

SCHLING'S HELPFUL HINTS.

"Whew! It's getting hot!" remarked a florist in convention hall, Washington, D. C., Thursday, August 18, at about 2 p. m. "Bet there won't be two dozen people at the closing session this afternoon."

"I'll bet you there'll be more than 200," replied a companion. "Max Schling is going to give a lecture."

"That's right," rejoined the first speaker, wiping a large handkerchief across his brow. "Let's go in and get front seats."

And by the time Max Schling began his talk the largest gathering, save perhaps that of the opening session, of the three convention days filled the big hall.

A number of suggestions were given to retailers, some explainable only as Mr. Schling explained them, with demonstration. He emphasized the necessity of arranging flowers close together in a corsage and making the whole a light, delicate affair, not a ponderous mass more conspicuous than its wearer. A splendid example of his art, in the form of a cattleya corsage, was presented to Mrs. J. C. Vaughan after the audience had admired it sufficiently.

In table decorations Mr. Schling showed an arrangement easily made for a late order and adaptable to a large or a small table, in case the florist is not definitely informed in such a rush order. A center decoration was made and then a dozen or so 2½-inch pots, covered with sheet moss, plugged at the bottom with plaster of Paris and filled with cut fern were filled with rambler rose sprays and appropriate blooms and foliage to match the centerpiece. These pots could be set close to the centerpiece on a small table or moved some distance from it on a large table. When they were placed, a few ferns and flowers intermingled on the table, made an artistic whole out of the component parts.

The centerpiece he showed could be made of a glass tube on a fixed base, surmounted with a piece of modeling clay, in place of the potato he used in former demonstrations. Into the clay were thrust the stems of flowers and ferns to make any conformation the decorator desired.

Mr. Schling showed how useful cut sprays of coleus, croton and such foliage plants could be made. A masterpiece of a vase, employing croton foliage most effectively, was presented to William F. Gude after the applause had finished after its completion.

Many other pieces of skill and bits of information were imparted to brother florists before Mr. Schling ended his 2-hour talk with a series of stereopticon slides showing new styles of work and specimens of his advertising.

THE SPORTS EVENTS.

Bowling Tournament.

The most time-honored and popular event of the convention sports program was, of course, the bowling tournament. This was held on the alleys at 918 G street Thursday evening and drew a large number of spectators, who, with the bowlers, regaled themselves with ample refreshments provided by the local florists. Competition was of the keenest character and old-time rivalry reappeared in full strength.

Chicago won the team prize with a total of 2,234, New York being second with 2,189. The team scores were:

Target Shooting.

Wednesday, August 17, at 2:30 p. m., several automobile loads of florists motored out to the Chevy Chase Country Club, at Chevy Chase, Md. Twelve contestants participated in the rifle events, with a gallery of about twice as many. After the contests refreshments were served in the clubhouse. This event was in the charge of Z. D. Blackistone, who provided a most enjoyable afternoon; Mr. Blackistone was also in charge of the shoot at the 1905 convention. The winners of the various events were: E. Stevenson, Baltimore, making 35 out of a possible 50; Mark K. Mills, of Philadelphia, 18 out of 25; Thomas Stevenson, of Baltimore, 12 out of 15; Edward Reid, of Philadelphia, 8 out of 10.

The Golf Tournament.

The first golf tournament ever held at a florists' convention was the result of the untiring work of Z. D. Blackistone, an ardent follower of the Scottish game. Comparatively few members of the trade have taken up the game, though the number increases year by year. Some of those proficient in this sport were slow to admit their skill at the pastime, but, now that the ice has been broken by others, will probably be seen on the links next time. Mr. Blackistone took a party over the Potomac course, said to be the favorite of President Harding, on Wednesday morning. Thursday at 6:30 a party of seven gathered at the Washington hotel, J. W. Wilson, of Cleveland, acting as caddy. Handicaps were adjusted as best they could be. Eighteen holes were played at the public links alongside the Potomac. The cup for low medal score was won by James Fisher, of Cleveland, with 104, while another Clevelander, Walter E. Cook, took the cup for low net score. His card read 108 and his handicap was fixed at ten strokes. The scores of the six who played round that morning were:

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The report of the annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association, in last week's issue of The Review, contained the statement of several changes to be made in the by-laws of the organization, regulating the basis on which the association is to do business. These changes were recommended by the executive board to be voted upon at the next annual meeting of the association, at Kansas City next August. The amendments are as follows:

Article 13, section 1, to read "the membership fee shall be $3 for every person insuring 2,000 square feet, or less, of glass, and $1 for each additional 1,000 square feet, instead of $2 and 50 cents, respectively.

Article 21, section 2, to read "twenty per cent of regular assessment," instead of ten per cent.

Article 30 (new), section 1: "All hazardous risks unpaid before full payment of said hazard has been liquidated, upon future renewal, whether by original owner or agent of said risk, or by new owner or agent, must be assumed by the new applicant."

Article 31, section 1: "Reinsurance shall be charged upon all glass broken, when adjustment of loss is made, in such manner as shall restore insurance to same status as previous to loss."

Article 31, section 2: "When houses are not to be rebuilt, the secretary must be notified at time of filing of claim, in which case no reinsurance is to be charged, and membership of claimant from date of such notice must be canceled on the books of the association."

When the excursion steamer had arrived at Mt. Vernon Friday afternoon, with several hundred florists aboard, the splendid setting was employed by William F. Gude for the presentation to President Thomas Roland of a chest of silver. At the same time Mrs. Gude presented to Mrs. Asmus, retiring president of the Ladies' S. A. F., a beautiful ring. A wreath was laid on the tomb of George Washington at Mt. Vernon.

* * * *

Saturday morning, August 20, a small group of florists called on President and Mrs. Harding at the White House. Miss M. C. Gunterberg, newly elected president of the Ladies' S. A. F., presented the president with a bunch of white gladioli. At the same time Mrs. Ella G. Wilson invited President and Mrs. Harding to attend the national flower show at Cleveland next March, and received the assurance that they would if it were possible. A basket of roses and delphiniums were presented to Mrs. Harding.

* * * *

Only the inability of the exhibition floor to support it prevented the display of the usual Kroeschell boiler. Fred Lautenschlager took one to Washington, where it was installed in the Department of Agriculture greenhouses.

* * * *

Joseph Manda held the office of judge of election. The president appointed as tellers for the proceedings C. G. Anderson, Arno H. Nehrling, S. R. Lundy, Walter E. Cook, James Wilson, James McLaughlin, Fred Lautenschlager, Joseph Kohout, Carl Hagenburger, Patrick Welch, J. G. Esler, J. A. Peterson, C. P. Mueller, E. H. Mann, A. L. Miller, W. J. Keimel, Robert Plumb, Robert L. Graham, I. S. Hendrickson, F. H. Traendly, J. G. Lane, C. C. Pollworth, Paul Klingsporn, J. H. Pepper and A. F. J. Baur. Since some were not able to be present for duty, their places were taken by volunteers.

* * * *

A paster on the program of the opening session substituting the name of Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, for that of J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, as responder to the addresses of welcome, recalled poignantly to his many friends the recent demise of the Boston leader.

* * * *

Responding heartily to the gift of the 1922 convention, the Kansas City Florists' Club, through T. J. Noll, its president, and William Wade, its secretary, wired enthusiastically regarding next year's meeting.

* * * *

Since practically all of the convention sessions were reported by telegraph in last week's issue of The Review, the finding of but one error in the printed account reveals improved service over the wires. It was unfortunate that William F. Gude was said to have read Henry Penn's report, for he had enough to do on the program without that. Secretary Young, of course, was written.

* * * *

Greetings from J. Austin Shaw, now invalided in California, were presented by Mrs. Ella G. Wilson, who urged his old friends to send him occasional encouraging word.

* * * *

No item on the program aroused so much discussion as did the report of the membership committee presented by J. F. Ammann, which appears on another page of this issue. The opinion appeared prevalent that the society could profitably use a greater revenue if it could be obtained, but the means of raising it proposed were widely diverse. That the society lacks funds today was strenuously denied; conservative expenditure has kept the finances in as sound a state as could be desired.

* * * *

Ex-president Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks of Minneapolis, telegraphed his regrets at being prevented from attending the Washington convention by the gathering of the American Association of Park Superintendents at Detroit this week.

* * * *

As the only greenhouse structure on the floor, the section showing the new steel-bar construction of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. secured many growers' attention. The structure afterwards was taken to New York, to be erected on the mezzanine floor of the Eighteenth street flower market, where the company will have its office after the first of next month, next to that of the S. A. F.

* * * *

Herman P. Knoble and Mrs. Ella G. Wilson, while in Washington, secured the promise of Senator Theodore E. Burton to open the national flower show at Cleveland next March. Perhaps it will be possible to have President Harding push a button in Washington for the event.

* * * *

The three surviving members of the one-time Baltimore ladies' bowling team, Mrs. Fred Bauer, Mrs. Harry Klein and Mrs. James W. Boone, brought flowers to decorate the grave of Mrs. George C. Shaffer, so active as a hostess in the days when Baltimore-Washington matches were frequent.

* * * *

After declaring the convention open, Otto Bauer, president of the Florists' Club of Washington, turned over the gavel to the Washingtonian best fitted to wield it, William F. Gude, who presided during the welcoming speeches in his inimitable manner ere turning the symbol of authority over to President Roland.

* * * *

The ladies, at the meeting of their society, listened to an interesting address on disarmament by Mrs. Clara Sears Taylor. The address of President Mrs. George Asmus, containing several helpful recommendations, was thought most stimulating.

* * * *

Voting on the directors Thursday morning resulted in the following count: Wallace R. Pierson, 100; Fred L. Atkins, 92; William F. Ekas, 73. Messrs. Pierson and Atkins were declared directors for the ensuing three years at the following session.

Appropriately, the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, passed out fans of the board of which the firm's new green cloud cut flower boxes are made.

* * * *

Never has the society held so notable a president's reception as that in the United States Botanical Gardens, under the shadows cast by the dome of the Capitol, especially lit for this occasion, to the music of the famous Marine Band, whose tunes have hitherto been confined to government social affairs. George W. Hess is reported to have been most expert politically.

* * * *

The final day of the convention found John G. Esler, so far from being able to attend to his one-time annual job as judge of election, not even able to vote. A combination of immiscible edibles caused his indisposition.

* * * *

A telegram came from W. E. Groves, reëlected president of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association the week before, congratulating the S. A. F. on its successful convention.

* * * *

Harrie S. Miller, vice-president for Kansas, telegraphed the receipt of twenty-two new S. A. F. members from the Kansas State Florists' Association.

* * * *

President Roland's address contained several important specific recommendations in its carefully weighed utterances, all of which were deemed by the committee reviewing it to be valuable enough to warrant consideration by committees of the president's appointment.

* * * *

One of the society's slogan boards, which may still be purchased of the national publicity committee, decorated the back of the speakers' platform throughout the sessions.

* * * *

Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., got the 3-piece set of reed furniture of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; F. A. Schlund, of Cumberland, Md., the vase lamp, and Joseph Thomas, of Greensboro, Pa., the table lamp.

* * * *

As president of the Florists' Club of Washington, which made the convention so successful socially, Otto Bauer came in for much congratulation. In private life he is manager of the fine store of the S. S. Pennock Co.

* * * *

James S. Brown, the manager of the New York office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., was kept at home by the sickness of his daughter, but arrived in time to assist President P. L. McKee in demonstrating the advantages of the firm's new steel-bar construction.

* * * *

Peonies graced the exhibition hall of the S. A. F. convention for the first time. Several vases of Queen Victoria and rubra superba were shown by the National Bulb Farms, Benton Harbor, Mich. They had been kept in cold storage in Chicago by the A. L. Randall Co. at the Western Storage Co. for three months as a trial. After the trip to Washington the petals held firmly, proving the experiment's success.

* * * *

Judge William F. Gude had to sit on the bench Wednesday morning to hear rental cases, but otherwise freed himself of all duties to attend the convention.

* * * *

As chairman of the corps of Washington ladies who gave the feminine visitors so enjoyable a time, Mrs. Z. D. Blackistone was kept exceedingly busy, well deserving the compliments paid the results of her activities. Imperfect health prevented Mrs. William F. Gude from taking the more active part she wished to.

* * * *

George C. Shaffer was busy with the luncheons tendered visiting florists of the various organizations of which he is a member—Kiwanis Club, Optimist Club, Shriners, etc. William F. Gude and Z. D. Blackistone were also hosts.

* * * *

Only by comparison with the big Cleveland convention last year was the exhibition at Washington diminished in size. The more than 9,000 square feet occupied by ninety exhibitors was in reality a big show. Of course, the 10,500 square feet last year surpassed it, but few conventions preceding that at Cleveland did so.

* * * *

Ratcliffe & Tanner, Richmond, Va., purchased the plants exhibited by the James W. Heacock Co. and the Julius Roehrs Co.

* * * *

Most of the plant exhibits stayed in Washington after the convention. That of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., was purchased by Gude Bros. Co., as was that of C. U. Liggit. That of Isaac H. Moss was sold to J. H. Small & Sons; that of Macaw-Bros. to Harry T. Payne; that of A. N. Pierson, Inc., to F. H. Kramer. Henry I. Faust sold his ferns to Z. D. Blackistone and his cyclamens to Marche & Co. The Washington Floral Co. purchased all the plants, save the croton exhibit, of the Robert Craig Co.

* * * *

The entire exhibit of supplies of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. was purchased by F. H. Kramer. The wreaths displayed by the M. Rice Co. were bought by the Washington Floral Co.

* * * *

S. A. F. DIRECTORS' MEETING.

A meeting of the board of directors of the S. A. F. was held Wednesday evening, August 17, and the following morning, to consider the society's share in the activities of the United States Chamber of Commerce. At the same time matters relating to the national flower show, to be held in Cleveland next March, were discussed and exceedingly favorable reports heard.

It was decided at this meeting to appropriate the sum of $300 to defray the expenses of a director of the society when the organization is asked to provide a speaker for some occasion. The plan will be to send the director nearest to the proposed gathering, the president and secretary passing on the requests before provision of expenses is made.

COLLEGE SECTION.

At a meeting of the college section of the S. A. F. Thursday morning at convention hall, Washington, four representatives of various institutions met, Arno H. Nehrling, of Amherst, Mass.; H. B. Dorner, of Urbana, Ill.; Prof. Thurston, of Maryland, and Dr. Mulford, of Washington. Prof. Nehrling was elected chairman and Prof. Thurston secretary. It was decided to make an effort to enlist the floriculturists in instructional and research institutions throughout the country in the organization. Discussion of an exhibit of some sort at the national flower show at Cleveland led to the proposal of some such action.

CARNATION DIRECTORS MEET.

Some of the officers and directors of the American Carnation Society held a meeting at Washington August 18 during the convention, to discuss the society's coming meeting at Hartford and the show at Cleveland next spring. Lack of a quorum prevented definite action being taken. A premium list about like last year's is being prepared for the Hartford exhibition next January. A schedule of $2,000 is planned for the Cleveland national flower show.

Those present were Vice-president N. C. Osborn, Secretary A. F. J. Baur and Director W. D. Howard.

When the excursion steamer had arrived at Mt. Vernon Friday afternoon, with several hundred florists aboard, the splendid setting was employed by William F. Gude for the presentation to President Thomas Roland of a chest of silver. At the same time Mrs. Gude presented to Mrs. Asmus, retiring president of the Ladies' S. A. F., a beautiful ring. A wreath was laid on the tomb of George Washington at Mt. Vernon.

* * * *

Saturday morning, August 20, a small group of florists called on President and Mrs. Harding at the White House. Miss M. C. Gunterberg, newly elected president of the Ladies' S. A. F., presented the president with a bunch of white gladioli. At the same time Mrs. Ella G. Wilson invited President and Mrs. Harding to attend the national flower show at Cleveland next March, and received the assurance that they would if it were possible. A basket of roses and delphiniums were presented to Mrs. Harding.

* * * *

Only the inability of the exhibition floor to support it prevented the display of the usual Kroeschell boiler. Fred Lautenschlager took one to Washington, where it was installed in the Department of Agriculture greenhouses.

* * * *

Joseph Manda held the office of judge of election. The president appointed as tellers for the proceedings C. G. Anderson, Arno H. Nehrling, S. R. Lundy, Walter E. Cook, James Wilson, James McLaughlin, Fred Lautenschlager, Joseph Kohout, Carl Hagenburger, Patrick Welch, J. G. Esler, J. A. Peterson, C. P. Mueller, E. H. Mann, A. L. Miller, W. J. Keimel, Robert Plumb, Robert L. Graham, I. S. Hendrickson, F. H. Traendly, J. G. Lane, C. C. Pollworth, Paul Klingsporn, J. H. Pepper and A. F. J. Baur. Since some were not able to be present for duty, their places were taken by volunteers.

* * * *

A paster on the program of the opening session substituting the name of Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, for that of J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, as responder to the addresses of welcome, recalled poignantly to his many friends the recent demise of the Boston leader.

* * * *

Responding heartily to the gift of the 1922 convention, the Kansas City Florists' Club, through T. J. Noll, its president, and William Wade, its secretary, wired enthusiastically regarding next year's meeting.

* * * *

Since practically all of the convention sessions were reported by telegraph in last week's issue of The Review, the finding of but one error in the printed account reveals improved service over the wires. It was unfortunate that William F. Gude was said to have read Henry Penn's report, for he had enough to do on the program without that. Secretary Young, of course, was written.

* * * *

Greetings from J. Austin Shaw, now invalided in California, were presented by Mrs. Ella G. Wilson, who urged his old friends to send him occasional encouraging word.

* * * *

No item on the program aroused so much discussion as did the report of the membership committee presented by J. F. Ammann, which appears on another page of this issue. The opinion appeared prevalent that the society could profitably use a greater revenue if it could be obtained, but the means of raising it proposed were widely diverse. That the society lacks funds today was strenuously denied; conservative expenditure has kept the finances in as sound a state as could be desired.

* * * *

Ex-president Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks of Minneapolis, telegraphed his regrets at being prevented from attending the Washington convention by the gathering of the American Association of Park Superintendents at Detroit this week.

* * * *

As the only greenhouse structure on the floor, the section showing the new steel-bar construction of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. secured many growers' attention. The structure afterwards was taken to New York, to be erected on the mezzanine floor of the Eighteenth street flower market, where the company will have its office after the first of next month, next to that of the S. A. F.

* * * *

Herman P. Knoble and Mrs. Ella G. Wilson, while in Washington, secured the promise of Senator Theodore E. Burton to open the national flower show at Cleveland next March. Perhaps it will be possible to have President Harding push a button in Washington for the event.

* * * *

The three surviving members of the one-time Baltimore ladies' bowling team, Mrs. Fred Bauer, Mrs. Harry Klein and Mrs. James W. Boone, brought flowers to decorate the grave of Mrs. George C. Shaffer, so active as a hostess in the days when Baltimore-Washington matches were frequent.

* * * *

After declaring the convention open, Otto Bauer, president of the Florists' Club of Washington, turned over the gavel to the Washingtonian best fitted to wield it, William F. Gude, who presided during the welcoming speeches in his inimitable manner ere turning the symbol of authority over to President Roland.

* * * *

The ladies, at the meeting of their society, listened to an interesting address on disarmament by Mrs. Clara Sears Taylor. The address of President Mrs. George Asmus, containing several helpful recommendations, was thought most stimulating.

* * * *

Voting on the directors Thursday morning resulted in the following count: Wallace R. Pierson, 100; Fred L. Atkins, 92; William F. Ekas, 73. Messrs. Pierson and Atkins were declared directors for the ensuing three years at the following session.

Appropriately, the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, passed out fans of the board of which the firm's new green cloud cut flower boxes are made.

the shadows cast by the dome of the Capitol, especially lit for this occasion, to the music of the famous Marine Band, whose tunes have hitherto been confined to government social affairs. George W. Hess is reported to have been most expert politically.

* * * *

The final day of the convention found John G. Esler, so far from being able to attend to his one-time annual job as judge of election, not even able to vote. A combination of immiscible edibles caused his indisposition.

* * * *

A telegram came from W. E. Groves, reëlected president of the Canadian Florists' and Gardeners' Association the week before, congratulating the S. A. F. on its successful convention.

* * * *

Harrie S. Miller, vice-president for Kansas, telegraphed the receipt of twenty-two new S. A. F. members from the Kansas State Florists' Association.

* * * *

President Roland's address contained several important specific recommendations in its carefully weighed utterances, all of which were deemed by the committee reviewing it to be valuable enough to warrant consideration by committees of the president's appointment.

* * * *

One of the society's slogan boards, which may still be purchased of the national publicity committee, decorated the back of the speakers' platform throughout the sessions.

* * * *

Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., got the 3-piece set of reed furniture of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; F. A. Schlund, of Cumberland, Md., the vase lamp, and Joseph Thomas, of Greensboro, Pa., the table lamp.

* * * *

As president of the Florists' Club of Washington, which made the convention so successful socially, Otto Bauer came in for much congratulation. In private life he is manager of the fine store of the S. S. Pennock Co.

* * * *

James S. Brown, the manager of the New York office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., was kept at home by the sickness of his daughter, but arrived in time to assist President P. L. McKee in demonstrating the advantages of the firm's new steel-bar construction.

* * * *

Peonies graced the exhibition hall of the S. A. F. convention for the first time. Several vases of Queen Victoria and rubra superba were shown by the National Bulb Farms, Benton Harbor, Mich. They had been kept in cold storage in Chicago by the A. L. Randall Co. at the Western Storage Co. for three months as a trial. After the trip to Washington the petals held firmly, proving the experiment's success.

* * * *

Judge William F. Gude had to sit on the bench Wednesday morning to hear rental cases, but otherwise freed himself of all duties to attend the convention.

* * * *

As chairman of the corps of Washington ladies who gave the feminine visitors so enjoyable a time, Mrs. Z. D. Blackistone was kept exceedingly busy, well deserving the compliments paid the results of her activities. Imperfect health prevented Mrs. William F. Gude from taking the more active part she wished to.

* * * *

George C. Shaffer was busy with the luncheons tendered visiting florists of the various organizations of which he is a member—Kiwanis Club, Optimist Club, Shriners, etc. William F. Gude and Z. D. Blackistone were also hosts.

* * * *

Only by comparison with the big Cleveland convention last year was the exhibition at Washington diminished in size. The more than 9,000 square feet occupied by ninety exhibitors was in reality a big show. Of course, the 10,500 square feet last year surpassed it, but few conventions preceding that at Cleveland did so.

* * * *

Ratcliffe & Tanner, Richmond, Va., purchased the plants exhibited by the James W. Heacock Co. and the Julius Roehrs Co.

* * * *

Most of the plant exhibits stayed in Washington after the convention. That of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., was purchased by Gude Bros. Co., as was that of C. U. Liggit. That of Isaac H. Moss was sold to J. H. Small & Sons; that of Maeaw Bros. to Harry T. Payne; that of A. N. Pierson, Inc., to F. H. Kramer. Henry I. Faust sold his ferns to Z. D. Blackistone and his cyclamens to Marche & Co. The Washington Floral Co. purchased all the plants, save the croton exhibit, of the Robert Craig Co.

* * * *

The entire exhibit of supplies of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. was purchased by F. H. Kramer. The wreaths displayed by the M. Rice Co. were bought by the Washington Floral Co.

* * * *

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

REGISTRATION was lighter after the first day at the Washington convention than it was at Cleveland and Detroit. The florists who came by motor came in force for the opening day and were less numerous subsequently. For this reason the predictions as to attendance were not fulfilled to the point of expectation, and whereas the list of those present on the opening day, published in last week's issue of The Review, was larger than the similar list printed a year ago, the list below of later registration is not so large as that of later arrivals at the Cleveland convention.

Efforts to induce visitors to register were more strenuous this year than at recent S. A. F. meetings and the location of the books was favorable for their obtaining members' attention. So the list of those present at Washington is unusually complete. The list below is in addition to the names which appeared in last week's issue of The Review:

THE MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Strenuous Campaign.

The committee on membership begs to present the following partial, or rather incomplete, report, for we understand our appointment was for one year and so our term has not yet expired; neither is our work finished; no doubt, it never will be, but we do hope in time to pass it on to others.

Your committee began work immediately after its appointment in January, to plan for a strenuous campaign drive for membership, to last about ninety days. Beginning May 15, choosing this lucky date on account of its being the chairman's birthday, we addressed personal letters to every member of the S. A. F., soliciting help for the cause, using the slogan, "Every Member Get a Member." The response to this appeal was only fairly good. We have also written to every florists' organization on record in the country, some sixty in number, requesting a list of their membership and at the same time asking them to name local membership committees, which would coöperate with us in this campaign. To the former the following responded: New York, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Washington, Reading, Tri-City, Cincinnati, Lancaster, Hartford and Boston florists' clubs; American Carnation, Chrysanthemum, Ohio Gladiolus, Knoxville, Maine State and Portland florists' societies; Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Kansas, Texas, Pittsburgh, Tri-State and Illinois state florists' associations.

Your committee has, from checking over these various organization membership lists with the S. A. F. membership list, been able to get some interesting data. For instance, we found from the thirty-three lists checked that there are a total of 4,399 members belonging to these organizations. Of this number 1,827 are also S. A. F. members and 2,572 are not.

It does seem from these figures that there is yet a lot of missionary work to be done within the branch organizations. Of course, we must remember that a large number of the membership of every florists' club are employees; then, too, the checking on the above lists was done during May. Just why more did not respond we do not know; we only hope they may yet get in line and help this worthy cause.

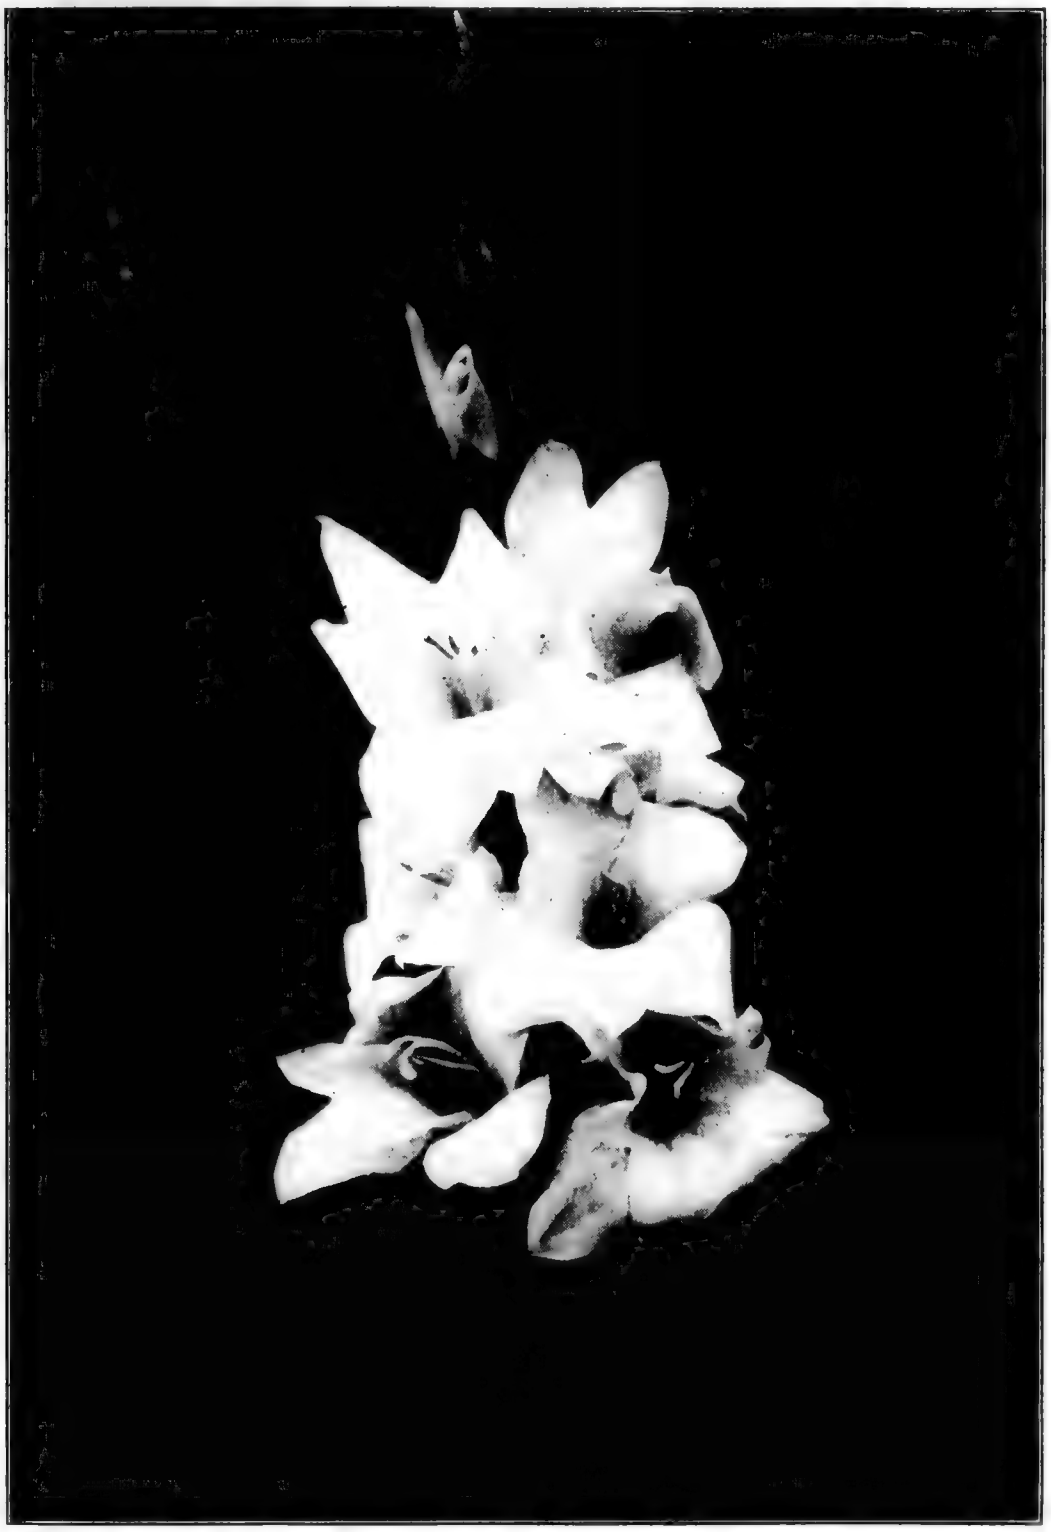
To the request for the appointment of local committees, the response was much less. Yet we did succeed in getting committees appointed from the following organizations: New York, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington, D. C.; Kansas City, Milwaukee and Tri-City florists' clubs and the Minnesota and Indiana state associations. Almost all of these did fairly good work, but, like ourselves, might have done better.

Record Workers.

We next went after our vice-presidents and many of them surely showed the metal they were made of. Here are just a few of their records: D. C. Horgan, of Georgia, turned in to date forty new members, some of them life members. Oklahoma to date has reached the peak, A. S. Gray, president of the state association, having turned in forty-five members. We know not what part George L. Stiles, the vice-president, played in this, but no doubt he was on the firing line.

We are glad to report that we had the hearty coöperation of the trade press. All told, we received over 2,000 lines of free reading space during this drive, besides several strong editorials urging florists to join the S. A. F. In addition to the trade press publicity over 100,000 pieces of mail matter, including letters, circulars and application blanks, were sent out. When we stop to think how much advertising it takes to sell a florist a $5 membership in the S. A. F., it is no wonder we must spend so much in advertising to get the public to purchase all our flowers. But it is the same old story; we have to sell the florist first, and that's some job, we say.

The total money spent by the committee to date is as follows:



Printing	$210.50
Stenographer	138.00
Postage	177.22
Telegrams	4.14
Express	2.03
Typewriter ribbons, notebooks	1.60
Carbon paper	1.40
Total	$534.89

All of this was raised by individual members and not paid out of the S. A. F. treasury. The total results of our work can only be checked from the secretary's books, as all applications were ordered sent directly to his office. If this does not show an increase of at least 1,000 members, we shall be disappointed, indeed, but not discouraged.

We wish, in closing, to thank heartily all individuals and organizations who have taken an active part in this campaign, and the trade journals especially for their hearty coöperation.

We welcome those new members who have joined our ranks. May they ever keep in mind the one fact, that an organization is like a business or a bank account—you can only draw out of it in proportion to the amount you put in, be it time, money or service. And let this be our motto, "He who serves most, serves best."

To those members, state vice-presidents and local organizations that have not yet entered into this struggle for the future welfare and progress of our dear old society, we extend a hearty welcome to join us and help make this a banner year in securing membership for the S. A. F.

Pommert's New Gladiolus, Purity.

GLADIOLUS PURITY.

Gladiolus growers expressed much interest in the new variety shown by Charles Pommert, of Amelia, O., at the S. A. F. convention at Washington, those expert in growing gladioli for cut flowers declaring its arrangement of the foliage especially adapted for that purpose. Mr. Pommert had worked with America and had obtained an improved strain that has been much valued in the Cincinnati market. The sport from that strain, of which he has been working up stock for seven years, has been even better welcomed there. The color of the bloom is pure white, with faint flesh markings. It is shown in the accompanying illustration. Mr. Pommert plans to put the variety on the market shortly.

Charles Pommert himself is not now active in the business he built up at Amelia. His son, John Pommert, is manager of the Glen Mary Fish Farm and likewise of the growing operations.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

REGISTRATION was lighter after the first day at the Washington convention than it was at Cleveland and Detroit. The florists who came by motor came in force for the opening day and were less numerous subsequently. For this reason the predictions as to attendance were not fulfilled to the point of expectation, and whereas the list of those present on the opening day, published in last week's issue of The Review, was larger than the similar list printed a year ago, the list below of later registration is not so large as that of later arrivals at the Cleveland convention.

THE MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Strenuous Campaign.

The committee on membership begs to present the following partial, or rather incomplete, report, for we understand our appointment was for one year and so our term has not yet expired; neither is our work finished; no doubt, it never will be, but we do hope in time to pass it on to others.

Your committee began work immediately after its appointment in January, to plan for a strenuous campaign drive for membership, to last about ninety days. Beginning May 15, choosing this lucky date on account of its being the chairman's birthday, we addressed personal letters to every member of the S. A. F., soliciting help for the cause, using the slogan, "Every Member Get a Member." The response to this appeal was only fairly good. We have also written to every florists' organization on record in the country, some sixty in number, requesting a list of their membership and at the same time asking them to name local membership committees, which would coöperate with us in this campaign. To the former the following responded: New York, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Washington, Reading, Tri-City, Cincinnati, Lancaster, Hartford and Boston florists' clubs; American Carnation, Chrysanthemum, Ohio Gladiolus, Knoxville, Maine State and Portland florists' societies; Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Kansas, Texas, Pittsburgh, Tri-State and Illinois state florists' associations.

Your committee has, from checking over these various organization membership lists with the S. A. F. membership list, been able to get some interesting data. For instance, we found from the thirty-three lists checked that there are a total of 4,399 members belonging to these organizations. Of this number 1,827 are also S. A. F. members and 2,572 are not.

It does seem from these figures that there is yet a lot of missionary work to be done within the branch organizations. Of course, we must remember that a large number of the membership of every florists' club are employees; then, too, the checking on the above lists was done during May. Just why more did not respond we do not know; we only hope they may yet get in line and help this worthy cause.

To the request for the appointment of local committees, the response was much less. Yet we did succeed in getting committees appointed from the following organizations: New York, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Washington, D. C.; Kansas City, Milwaukee and Tri-City florists' clubs and the Minnesota and Indiana state associations. Almost all of these did fairly good work, but, like ourselves, might have done better.

Record Workers.

We next went after our vice-presidents and many of them surely showed the metal they were made of. Here are just a few of their records: D. C. Horgan, of Georgia, turned in to date forty new members, some of them life members. Oklahoma to date has reached the peak, A. S. Gray, president of the state association, having turned in forty-five members. We know not what part George L. Stiles, the vice-president, played in this, but no doubt he was on the firing line.

We are glad to report that we had the hearty coöperation of the trade press. All told, we received over 2,000 lines of free reading space during this drive, besides several strong editorials urging florists to join the S. A. F. In addition to the trade press publicity over 100,000 pieces of mail matter, including letters, circulars and application blanks, were sent out. When we stop to think how much advertising it takes to sell a florist a $5 membership in the S. A. F., it is no wonder we must spend so much in advertising to get the public to purchase all our flowers. But it is the same old story; we have to sell the florist first, and that's some job, we say.

The total money spent by the committee to date is as follows:

Printing	$210.50
Stenographer	138.00
Postage	177.22
Telegrams	4.14
Express	2.03
Typewriter ribbons, notebooks	1.60
Carbon paper	1.40
Total	$534.89

All of this was raised by individual members and not paid out of the S. A. F. treasury. The total results of our work can only be checked from the secretary's books, as all applications were ordered sent directly to his office. If this does not show an increase of at least 1,000 members, we shall be disappointed, indeed, but not discouraged.

We wish, in closing, to thank heartily all individuals and organizations who have taken an active part in this campaign, and the trade journals especially for their hearty coöperation.

We welcome those new members who have joined our ranks. May they ever keep in mind the one fact, that an organization is like a business or a bank account—you can only draw out of it in proportion to the amount you put in, be it time, money or service. And let this be our motto, "He who serves most, serves best."

To those members, state vice-presidents and local organizations that have not yet entered into this struggle for the future welfare and progress of our dear old society, we extend a hearty welcome to join us and help make this a banner year in securing membership for the S. A. F.

Pommert's New Gladiolus, Purity.

GLADIOLUS PURITY.

Gladiolus growers expressed much interest in the new variety shown by Charles Pommert, of Amelia, O., at the S. A. F. convention at Washington, those expert in growing gladioli for cut flowers declaring its arrangement of the foliage especially adapted for that purpose. Mr. Pommert had worked with America and had obtained an improved strain that has been much valued in the Cincinnati market. The sport from that strain, of which he has been working up stock for seven years, has been even better welcomed there. The color of the bloom is pure white, with faint flesh markings. It is shown in the accompanying illustration. Mr. Pommert plans to put the variety on the market shortly.

Charles Pommert himself is not now active in the business he built up at Amelia. His son, John Pommert, is manager of the Glen Mary Fish Farm and likewise of the growing operations.

GROWING OUR OWN

HOW AMERICA HELPS HERSELF.

Quarantine's Result.

The drastic and sudden promulgation of Quarantine 37 by the Federal Horticultural Board, preventing the importation after June 1, 1919, of so many plants and bulbs that had come to be considered necessities by the florists, nurserymen and amateur horticulturists, causes the question of the development of American products to become one of the most important and vital questions we have before us today.

In the matter of orchid growing, considerable progress has already been made in producing seedling orchids. These, the committee understands, can be brought into flower in about eight years from seed. Many of our largest growers are already successfully at work on this important flower.

Azaleas are also being grown in various localities successfully, but as these are slow-growing plants, it will take time and patience to produce them in sufficient quantity.

Hybrid tea roses also are being budded here extensively and, before long, will be grown in sufficient quantities to meet the demand, as there is no doubt that roses of all kinds can be grown just as well here as in Europe.

Fertile Fields.

The committee's attention has been called to the extensive cultivation of palms in California. California, with its wonderful climate, is already producing a great many seeds, plants and bulbs that were formerly imported and that are important nursery and florists' products. Tennessee, also, with its fine climate, is already producing a great many plants and bulbs that luxuriate in its fertile soil—Lilium candidum, gladioli, spiræas, etc. In the mountains, native azaleas and rhododendrons luxuriate. Here would probably be a fertile field for the production commercially of the finer hybrid varieties.

In Massachusetts, young rhododendrons, azaleas and mountain laurel are being grown by the tens of thousands, and in various localities throughout New Jersey rhododendrons, azaleas and other plants of this character are being extensively propagated.

We have heretofore been dependent upon Germany and other countries of Europe for pot-grown lilacs, but some of the finest lilacs that have ever been grown are plants that have been specially grown and prepared here and have given much finer results than those usually obtained abroad.

There is a great opportunity in this country for the development and improvement of different plants developed under our own climatic conditions. In introducing varieties from Europe, they were produced under different climatic conditions, which were not always suited to our climate. Take, for instance, forcing roses. Ten years ago most of the varieties were varieties of foreign origin, but today the most important varieties which we are growing are of American origin and a great improvement over the varieties which we were growing a few years ago, showing the great opportunity that exists for the patient and intelligent production of improved varieties developed here, under our own climatic conditions and standards.

A great improvement has also been made especially in the hybrid Wichuraiana roses, which are particularly suited to our climate. Some wonderful results have been obtained along these lines, showing the possibilities which, we believe, are only the forerunner of what may still be accomplished.

The gladiolus offers a great field for improvement and has become one of our most important summer flowers, owing to the greatly improved varieties that have been introduced, and we believe much more can be done along this line than has been accomplished.

Dahlias are growing in popularity, and while a few men have been doing something with them, there is room for vast improvement. Some one who has the genius and time can do some good work along this line. There is nothing that would pay the American grower better than to produce new varieties suited to our climate, especially those that will bloom during our dry season and will produce long stems and keeping qualities.

At Arnold Arboretum.

Your committee wishes to call particular attention to the wonderful work of the Arnold Arboretum in connection with Harvard University, Jamaica Plains, Mass., under Prof. Charles S. Sargent's direction. Through the work of Ernest H. Wilson, here has been gathered a wonderful collection of new and rare plants from China, Japan and the far east. It is fair to say that Mr. Wilson has secured more valuable new plants than all the collectors who have preceded him. This wonderful collection of new plants is available to anyone and the Arnold Arboretum should be a Mecca for those who are interested in the development of new plants.

Your committee would suggest that the S. A. F. set aside a space at its annual conventions for the exhibition of new discoveries and products that were heretofore imported from foreign countries, or other plants that are now being grown here that will serve as substitutes for those that we are familiar with. This would show the progress that we are making in the production of plants and bulbs in this country.

Your committee would also suggest that a larger committee be appointed, as the ground to be covered is so extensive; say, two from the Pacific coast, two from the middle west, two from the east and two from the south.

A BOOK YOU NEED

CATALOGUE OF PLANT NAMES.

Completed by Nomenclature Committee.

Due largely to the preoccupation of the members, it has not been practicable to hold a meeting of the committee on nomenclature during the year. The work committed to it, however, has had the attention of the members and is in a forward state.

The Society of American Florists has coöperated wholeheartedly with the American joint committee on horticultural nomenclature, of which the chairman of your committee is also chairman

A devoted, public-spirited subcommittee of the American joint committee, made up of Harlan P. Kelsey, Frederick Law Olmsted and Frederick V. Coville, have during the year sacrificed their private work and private interests to the completion of the preliminary manuscript for the official catalogue of standardized plant names, and in June that committee announced that the work was in process and would be published as soon as it could be produced mechanically.

Aim of Catalogue.

This great catalogue of plant names, primarily designed to make buying easier, will, it is believed, stand as a monument of intelligent interest in commercial horticulture for years to come.

In its scientific names it does not set up a new code or attempt to assume scientific authority. It does take the current name seemingly in the judgment of the subcommittee best adapted to represent the plant in question, and so far as is humanly possible at this time, attaches to it a common name which will be of actual service.

The official catalogue will contain in one alphabetical order both the approved scientific and common names, and familiar names not approved, the whole being made available by complete cross reference. The distinction between the approved and unapproved names is a typographic distinction, and will be appreciated by those who use the catalogue without reference or complication.

To this great list, more comprehensive than anything of the sort produced anywhere else in the world, there is being added in an appendix authoritative lists supplied by the special flower societies.

Varietal Lists.

For example, the American Iris Society supplies its carefully prepared and presumably accurate list of varieties of irises in American commerce. The American Rose Society, the Ameri-

HOW SHOWS SELL FLOWERS

FLOWER SHOWS AID PUBLICITY.

Address by Charles H. Totty on "The Value of Flower Shows in Publicity for the Florists' Industry," presented at the S. A. F. convention at Washington August 17, 1921.

Demonstrated Advertising Value.

Is the flower show worth while as an aid to getting our goods before the public? Most unquestionably, yes! Every industry recognizes this and promotes its own exhibitions, the automobile shows, the chemical shows and many other industries' exhibitions being examples to this effect.

The New York flower show, with which I have been more particularly connected the last six years, has been a wonderful assistance to business in our section in the flower, seed and plant lines. The grower senses the value of its possibilities; the nurserymen and seedsmen are fully alive to the splendid business it creates; the only man who does not seem able to grasp the significance of a flower show is the retail florist. The number of retail florists who interest themselves in the show, in comparison with the number engaged in the business, is pitifully small. I am hoping the retail end of the profession will make a different showing at the fifth national flower show, which will be held at Cleveland next spring. The retail merchant is the man first benefited by the increased demand for flowers. He should reciprocate by showing the public the most artistic use of flowers.

New York Gives Example.

If you could have witnessed, as I have, the crowd of onlookers at the tables when the exhibitors are staging their decorations, for instance, you would see why the retail merchant should be one of the principal factors at the show. The public is interested, vitally so, and it is up to the retail men to encourage that interest.

One of the main features of the last New York show was the garden class, staged by the garden clubs of the country. This drew commuters by the hundreds, who attended the show just to look over that particular group, to admire and particularly to see in what way they could use the same methods on their own grounds. Now as to results—did it pay? The phenomenal business the nurserymen in the neighborhood of New York report this year in the face of rapidly declining business in other lines speaks for itself. Is it not logical to assume that some of this business—much of it, in fact—was due to the interest displayed and created in the New York exhibition?

We must remember our business is not a necessity. Our customers do not have to purchase flowers. They do not think they have to adorn their grounds unless we put the thought in their minds and keep it actively alive that it is the right thing to do. Demonstrations at flower shows of the use of flowers and plants, backed up by a campaign of educational instruction in the magazines and papers of the country, will, I am sure, make our business continue to grow and flourish like the proverbial bay tree.

Not alone do flower shows educate the public to a better knowledge of the progress that is being made, but they are also a medium by which the raiser of novelties can show his brother florist the progress he is making in producing newer and better types of roses, carnations and other flowers. This furnishes an excellent reason why every florist should feel it incumbent on him to attend the flower show next spring. A grower who keeps up-to-date with his varieties is the man who gets the "cream of the bottle," leaving the "skim milk" for the other fellow. New roses that cannot stand up in competition with the standard sorts have a poor chance of getting themselves established in the public estimation. Flower shows should always be educational in this respect. They should show through the displays of trained artists how to harmonize colors, how to arrange bouquets, the proper and many sentimental uses to which flowers can be put and the difference between good and bad form in their arrangement. All these things have an interest for the public, and properly handled—that is to say, showing something different every day—they will bring the same people day after day to a large exhibition.

A series of interesting talks on different phases of the business is always a good drawing card, provided the lecturer doesn't get too dry and technical in his discourse.

Adding to Interest.

A primary consideration in a flower show is good music, both instrumental and vocal. Some sense of the fitness of things should be observed. An orchestra so heavy that it drowns out all other sounds is to be condemned, but music as a diversion cannot be overestimated. A flower show that has no live movement or action is one of the dullest things imaginable. We have found good vocal music to be a drawing card in the New York show, and an excellent adjunct to flowers and their uses.

Some florists will say, "This sounds all very well for a large exhibition, but we are living in a small town and cannot put on a big show and any show we do put on has little chance of being a financial success." To such florists I would say, by all means work in connection with the ladies' garden club, the ladies' aid society or whatever other society in your town is working for the advancement of horticulture.

Garden Clubs Will Help.

Garden clubs are springing up today all over the country. The love of growing flowers and beautifying the streets and parks of the small town is increasing almost daily, due to the action of these garden clubs. Local florists do not tie up to the wonderful publicity these clubs are getting for the splendid work they are doing and will continue to do. Even the large show in New York last year is an indication of the tremendous work they could do in a smaller town, where the interest would be widespread on account of the show being a purely local proposition.

I have talked to dozens of these garden clubs in different parts of the country and I say today, we have an asset in these ladies' garden clubs that is the biggest thing in horticulture, yet in many instances you will find florists in the same town that know nothing about the organization. Ask about it and they will say, "I believe such a club was started, but I never heard much about it since." Show a live interest in them and their work; help them in every possible way in staging their flower shows, and you will find it will come back to you a hundredfold.

Think of being paid real money to help people to a healthier, freer, saner view of life. Think of "cashing in" on the fact that every one likes beautiful things, and show me if you can find any industry that can make money and elevate and improve its customers at the same time. Is the flower show an aid to publicity? Most decidedly, yes! Does a flower show pay, gentlemen? Once more, yes!

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

GROWERS IN CONFERENCE.

Officers and members of the National Flower Growers' Association held a conference Thursday morning, August 18, at convention hall, Washington. The discussion covered ways and means of increasing the membership and the question of revising the schedule of dues. Progress has been rapid in some states, particularly Ohio, where Carl Hagenburger, the state chairman, has been untiring in his efforts to organize the state thoroughly. He brought a list of Ohio growers who now are members, as evidence of his success. The total showed 127 members, operating altogether 2,248,000 square feet of glass and having paid $3,756 into the treasury.

The list of Mr. Hagenburger of the Ohio members, the glass area of each and dues paid, are as follows:

Member	Glass area	Dues paid
Lars Anderson, Rocky River	40,000	$110.00
G. A. Ackerman, Columbus	16,000	44.00

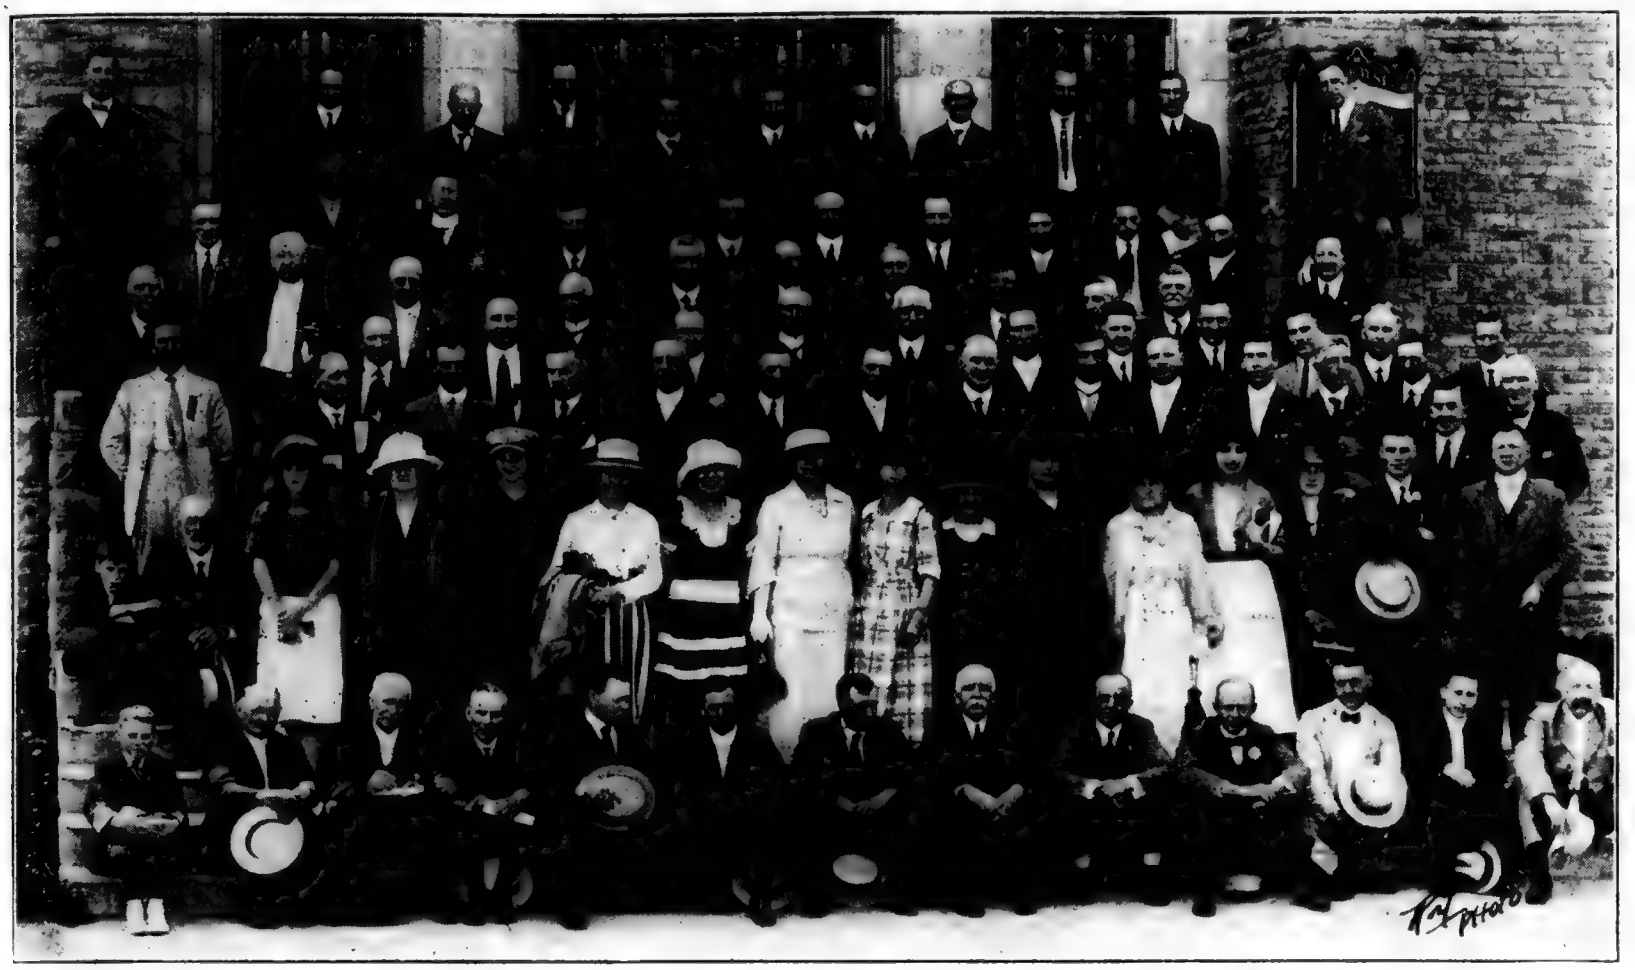
CONVENTION ECHOES.

Another annual gathering of the clans has passed, with its reunion of the veterans in the trade, together with the younger members, who promise to continue the good work, in which our fair daughters of Eve are taking a larger interest each year. Many familiar faces were missed among the absent members, who will undoubtedly find both pleasure and profit in the perusal of the general report, as appearing in The Review, and will moreover more easily digest the substance, owing to the absence of the many counter attractions offered those who attended.



From the murmurings heard among the exhibitors, it appears there was little opportunity for transacting business. Describing the action of the darky who announced the meetings through a large megaphone, R. R. White, of the Skinner Irrigation Co., compared it to thunder preceding a rain storm, in the point that, just when a prospective customer was being lined up, so to speak, the roar broke the charm and the prospect of rain, as it were, banished for the present the need of a sprinkler. Several exhibitors greeted the megaphone artist with ironical cheers at each appearance. It seemed to be the general opinion that one day should be set apart purely for business.

The boat excursion to Mount Vernon was the grand climax to what may be well described as a successful social gathering. About 1,000 persons made the trip. Delightful weather enabled all to enjoy to the full the bountiful refreshments provided by our hosts, the Washington Florists' Club. Then took place the presentation of a chest of silver to our retiring president, Thomas Roland, by William F. Gude, who, in a brief and concise speech, compared the recipient with the immortal Washington in character and as a leader of the craft. At the same time Mrs. Gude presented Mrs. Asmus with a ring. Standing in front of the residence of the great patriot, with Old Glory waving overhead, the scene was highly impressive.

The grounds at Mount Vernon were found to be in fine shape. J. J. Hess, of Omaha, was overheard to remark that the boxwood surpassed the famous hedges at Versailles as seen by him when there. W. A. Manda named the splendid magnolia trees of which many scarce and rare kinds are there, noting also a grand old hemlock spruce, Abies canadensis, standing as a sentinel at the entrance to the garden, which was computed to have been planted when the grounds were first laid out.

The return trip was all too short. Everyone was getting better acquainted and telling experiences. For instance, J. L. Lewis, of Lockport, N. Y., an ardent golfer, described the game of African golf, as heard by himself and ladies, outside the bedroom window one warm night. Fred A. Danker explained that, owing to pressure of several kinds, he was the sole representative from Albany, when a hundred were looked for.

Peter Brown, of Lancaster, Pa., in commenting upon the glorious weather at Washington, stated that, owing to the heat during July, the loss among geranium cuttings was enormous, there being more than 45,000 lost in Beaute Poitevine alone.

B. F. Barr extended a general invitation to any members of the craft who might be passing through Lancaster, Pa., to join with the Florists' Club in a corn roast at the Barr homestead the evening of Thursday, August 25. Mrs. Barr was to assit in doing the honors. W. M.

PENNOCK ON NEW ROSES.

Writes of Bagatelle Awards.

Samuel S. Pennock, last week elected president of the Society of American Florists, had the honor June 15 of being the American representative on the board of judges at the Bagatelle rose gardens, Paris. At the meeting of the jurors that day Mr. Pennock was elected vice-president representing the United States. In a lengthy letter telling of his trip abroad, Mr. Pennock describes the roses which took the awards at Paris. He writes:

"The rose that stood out head and shoulders above any other rose was Pernet-Ducher's hybrid tea gold medal rose of last year, Souvenir de Claudius Pernet, named in honor of his son, whom he lost in the war. Mixed in the bed were also a few plants of Pernet-Ducher's hybrid tea rose, Mme. William Marcel Dalanney, a medium pink, with full, large flowers.

"Claudius Pernet is certainly a wonderful rose, a rich canary yellow, fading out as it gets older to a lighter shade; large, full; long, well-shaped bud and as large as any hybrid tea rose in the garden. These flowers were borne on fairly long stems, well foliaged, holding their heads perfectly erect. It certainly was a joy to see this bed; it was well worthy of the name it bore. It is too bad that this rose is not a forcer, but the consensus seemed to be that it was not and would go to sleep in the winter. In fact, I saw it growing at W. T. H. Kordes' father's greenhouse, in Elmshorn, Germany, in the middle of April, and it was just coming into bloom then and had been dormant nearly all winter. Probably there is too much Pernetiana blood in it to make it a winter forcer.

Howard & Smith's No. 252.

"The rose that captured the foreign gold medal this year was Howard & Smith's hybrid tea rose, No. 252. Pernet-Ducher's Souvenir de Georges Pernet was given the French gold medal. Howard & Smith's rose, No. 252, is pronounced Indian yellow in color. The outer petals fade out somewhat. It is a good-sized rose, full, double. Its shape, when it is more than half open, is not quite so pleasing as when it is in bud or fully open. A good grower, with splendid foliage and good stems, the rose attracted the judges immediately and was well worthy of the gold medal.

"Pernet-Ducher's hybrid tea rose, Souvenir de Georges Pernet, named after his second son, whom he lost in the war, is large, well formed, fairly dark pink, a decidedly promising rose and a good, free grower. I do not think it has the same possibilities as a garden rose as Claudius Pernet, although a splendid pink rose it is. Both these roses of Pernet-Ducher are in a class by themselves.

"Each year four certificates are awarded, three for hybrid teas and one for climbing or polyantha roses. The first certificate was awarded to Pernet-Ducher's rose, Etoile de Feu, which scored 9½ points. It is similar in color to Herriot. I should think it was an improvement as to growth and size of flower, but not so striking in color.

"The second certificate was awarded to a hybrid tea seedling of Chambard, Huguette Vincent, with dark green foliage, carrying on an erect stalk a big flower, half double, with large petals; the color, carmine.

"The third certificate was awarded to Leender's hybrid tea, Aspirant Marcel Rouyer, one of the parents being Sunburst and the other unknown. This, to my mind, seemed the best rose of the three that were awarded certificates. Apparently a free, easy grower, similar in shape to Mrs. Aaron Ward, flowers much the same color, possibly a shade lighter, much larger and longer bud, to me it looked like a good forcing rose. If it proved to be a better rose than Ward as a greenhouse rose from a grower's standpoint, it would certainly be a valuable acquisition for the commercial man. It impressed me, probably, far more than any of the rest of the judges, and the reason for this was that the others were not looking at it so much from the forcing standpoint as I was.

"The fourth certificate, unfortunately, was not awarded, as there was nothing in either climbers or polyanthas that seemed to be worthy.

Paul's Scarlet Climber.

"In the climbers, Paul's Scarlet Climber stood out in the garden as by far the best. I was told that it had been in bloom for over two weeks, and it was still in fine shape and attracted the public probably more than any other one rose in the gardens. There were several plants of Paul's Scarlet Climber and one group of four plants trained up in pyramid shape made a wonderful show. This is rather an attractive way to train climbers, especially when they are as free bloomers as Paul's Scarlet Climber, which presented almost a solid, vivid red mass.

"Aimile Nerine, one of Nonin's seedlings, much on the order of Excelsa, but light in color and coming into bloom much earlier, was attractive and looked like a promising climber. The public admired it greatly."

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

DON'T mail currency in a letter unless you register it. The losses are small, but they are annoying.

IT often is said the retailers have the best end of the florists' business, but how often do you hear of a grower who has failed?

DON'T pay money to strangers for anything they can't deliver at the time payment is asked. A lot of florists are getting taken in on petty swindling schemes.

WHEN a florists' business attains a certain size it seems to stick and stop. Then it is time to look around, see what other lines are doing and adopt new methods to start growth again.

THE average florist is too busy with other matters to give much attention to office work. He will have more money if he hires someone to look after the details the proprietor only half attends to.

GOOD packing always was a factor in getting repeat orders, slovenly packing turning them away. The time now has come when reasonableness in packing charges will count in the same way, even when packing is good.

FOLLOWING the trend of the times, the trade must, sooner or later, sell at lower prices to the public. As it seems impossible at present to reduce growing or selling costs in any important way, the only thing to do is to increase volume. It calls for study and work, but it can be done, if each goes at it and sticks to it.

THERE is every indication that the margin of profit in the florists' business has gone or is about to go down, just as it has in other lines. For three years or so almost anybody could make good money growing or selling flowers, but the immediate future probably will restore the old-time premium on competent, careful, conservative management.

MANY new florists are persons attracted to this promising field from alien pursuits. They know nothing of flowers, but hope for profits. Some of them will stay and prosper and help us all. It would be better, however, if growers would create, by an apprentice system, a sufficient body of recruits versed in floriculture to meet the needs of the trade's expansion in times like these.

THE first plantsmen to come into the market with a good batch of stock will reap a harvest.

WE begin to understand why so many businesses are offered for sale as "going concerns." It seems at present there are more going than coming.

WHEN a grower complains of low returns on the stock he has sent to market, it usually transpires that the flowers were low in quality as well. Good blooms almost invariably bring good prices.

PRACTICE the golden rule. If you can not fill an order, let the buyer know at once. If cash accompanied the order, return it immediately. If the stock was advertised, stop the ad as soon as sold out.

LARGE numbers of florists still have more business than they have capital. The really desirable customer is he who seeks to enlarge his operations only so fast as he can increase his ability to meet his bills when due.

SOME florists sell flowers without service, while others sell service, no, not without flowers, but with fewer of them than the former class would believe possible in view of the size of the business done. The public likes to pay for service.

INABILITY of growers to reduce their costs makes the more necessary the curtailment of waste, whether in expenditures, in methods of culture or business or in management. Make your space and dollars count to the foot and the cent.

MOST florists are self-made men, but the second generation is being given a thorough schooling before being brought into father's business. The floricultural, horticultural and agricultural courses at the colleges now show a good sprinkling of florists' sons in their enrollment.

IS there a greenhouse in America which produces to its full capacity? Is there a retail store which could not handle more stock without increasing overhead expense? Think it over. Figure what a ten per cent increase in production or in sales would do for your profit. Then go get it.

KEEPING IVY LEAVES.

How long can English ivy leaves be kept in winter in a cold storage cellar?
R. M. G.—Mont.

Will some reader answer the above inquiry through The Review, stating the temperature employed?—Ed.

CONTINUING THE CAMPAIGN.

Four months remain of the fourth year in the initial subscription period of the national publicity campaign. In January, 1922, will be begun the second subscription period, for which pledges were circulated at the S. A. F. convention at Washington last week. It is proposed to raise $100,000 a year for advertising flowers in the national magazines. In the 4-year period being completed scarcely more than half that much was raised in any one year and in two years of the campaign the collections fell considerably short of half the sum. Yet $100,000 a year is not too great an expenditure for this industry to spend in furthering the sale of its products. With a small expenditure in its first four years, the campaign has been a notable success because of the unrivaled slogan the florists secured through it. So popular became the slogan that the public, the newspapers and other industries contributed more in advertising us than we did ourselves. The novelty of the slogan is wearing off, though its value to the trade endures and will continue. But to keep the slogan in the eyes of the public in future as much as it has been since its introduction, we shall need all of $100,000 a year.

That it will be secured should not be doubted. The growers, as the producers of this industry, are more alive to their need of advertising and to its uses for their ends than they were when the campaign was started. The retailers, always of necessity advertisers, have developed notably in that direction since their accession of the slogan. Everyone in the trade, indeed, better appreciates the power of publicity today than he did four years ago. And the good business all have enjoyed in the last three years makes each unwilling to turn back. For his own benefit, each one will pledge an annual investment in our national campaign in order to continue the trade's prosperity.

WRITE YOUR SENATORS.

Florists doing business as corporations have, as a class, paid taxes out of proportion to other lines of production or merchandising. The reason lies in the fact that a florist's profits come more from personal effort, good will and good management than they do from the employment of capital. Consequently, corporations in the florists' business have paid high excess profits taxes where concerns clearing equal sums in many other lines have escaped. The tax revision bill passed last week by the House provides for the repeal of the excess profits tax in 1922, but leaves the tax on the profits of 1921. The bill now is in the Senate. Write to your senators, telling them the profits tax bears too heavily on small corporations like most of those in this trade. Ask them to redeem party platform pledges by taking the tax off now instead of waiting till next year.

HERE'S A HUNCH.

There are indications that florists in the eastern states are better supplied with stock than those in the middle west. In the middle west the season has been extremely unfavorable and large quantities of stock have been lost. At the same time, demand is good. Practically every florist in the middle west is a reader of The Review and those in the east who have stock they do not need for their local trade can find quick movement for it and get cash with order by letting their offers be known through the Classified columns of The Review. Like this:

My little ad in The Review brought such good results I am afraid I shall have to secure a secretary to handle my mail.—H. C. Shoard, Dade City, Fla., August 13, 1921.

The little ad for bouvardia we ran in The Review several weeks ago worked wonders. We were sold out in less than a week. Only wish we had more to sell.—E. G. Reimers & Son Co., Louisville, Ky., August 14, 1921.

The plants were sold before the end of the first week. Some results, I'll say.—Lee Smith, Gasport, N. Y., August 15, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

William J. Nissen.

For eight years William J. Nissen had been in charge of the office work of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association. Many of those who dealt with him had noted that he performed his work silently, without remark, and they will understand something of the reasons therefor when it is here recorded that Mr. Nissen died August 22 of cancer of the throat. He was a thoroughly efficient accountant and the officers of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association speak highly of his work during many years of faithful service. He scarcely ever missed a day from his desk and continued to perform his duties with fidelity up to within a few weeks of his death.

Mr. Nissen was about 50 years of age. He is survived by a wife and one daughter, the latter aged 16. The funeral was held August 24 and there were many flowers.

Miss Hattie Whitted.

Miss Hattie Whitted, well known and pioneer florist of Minneapolis, Minn., passed away in Rochester, Minn. Miss Whitted was 57 years old and up to five years ago had conducted shops at Minneapolis, for more than thirty years at 409 Nicolett avenue, the Radisson hotel; at 34 Fifth street and at 932 Nicollet avenue. Because of ill health she retired five years ago. At that time she was proprietor of the two establishments last named.

LONDON, ONT.

The Market.

Summer trade now consists largely of funeral work, which has been plentiful. New roses are coming in and are of good quality. Outside flowers are scarce and are of an inferior grade, excepting gladioli. These popular summer flowers are plentiful and of fine quality, selling well at remunerative prices.

Various Notes.

W. W. Gammage, F. J. Gammage, J. H. Taylor and F. G. Gilbert motored to the convention at Peterboro. On their return trip a visit was made to a number of the large growers, en route, the first being at the place of E. M. Mitchell & Son, Port Hope, who are large growers of perennials and herbaceous plants. They have an extensive range of houses filled with small palms, ferns and plants of various kinds.

At Carl Grobba's, Mimico, everything was in the pink of condition. Palms and ferns by the thousand showed cultural skill. Here house after house of chrysanthemums and carnations was in the best possible condition. A feature of this establishment was a new concrete storage building, where millions of bulbs will be stored for winter forcing.

At Miller & Sons', North Toronto, the large range is confined mostly to roses and carnations. The roses at this establishment were the strongest and best looking of any seen on the trip.

The next stop was at Richmond Hill. Here are located a number of the largest rose growing concerns in Canada. J. H. Dunlop, with his large range of Lord & Burnham steel-frame houses, confined wholly to roses, is now cutting from this season's planting and, judging from the condition of the stock, the results from early planting will be a delight to the income tax collector.

O'Field & Cotton have a number of houses planted to roses and asparagus.

Through rain and mud the party made its way to Brampton. At the Dale Estate, with its thirty-two acres under glass, everything was in apple-pie order Here veritable fields of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, too numerous to mention, were a pleasure to the eye and a promise of handsome returns to the owners.

Gammage & Sons have let a contract to the Lord & Burnham Co., Irvington, N. Y., for the reconstruction of four 200-foot houses. Pipe-frame construction will be used. W. W. G.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market continues dull and uninteresting. The supply is, perhaps, somewhat heavier, but the demand is not increased, making conditions worse rather than better. A flood of late asters tends to cut down the demand for gladioli, which continue in abundance, the two items forming the subject matter of the bulk of transactions. Dahlias, also, are arriving in immense quantities, the best moving off at $1 to $4 per hundred. Good gladioli are bringing 35 cents to 50 cents per dozen, and asters $1 to $3 per hundred, when good. Centaurea imperialis, cosmos, Bouvardia Humboldtii and gypsophila are other items which clean out without much trouble.

Roses are in better supply and the quality generally is good. American Beauty is not abundant, but the demand for it is small at $20 to $50 per hundred for specials. It is in hybrid teas that the increase is chiefly noticed, and clearances are slow at quoted prices. Some Golden Ophelia is now coming in, but it does not seem to be in particular demand, despite its pronounced color. Butterfly is in good condition, and Columbia also is moving well in the pink section.

Cattleyas continue on the scarce side, but in a week or so the supply will be augmented by the early cut of labiata. Just at present there are few buyers looking for cattleyas, so the prospect of an increased supply is not particularly interesting.

White lilies are arriving in small quantities, and $25 per hundred continues to be top price for the best. Some growers are planting bulbs of stock now arriving and it is not expected that, with the high rates in effect for cold storage, much will go into the warehouse. Arrivals of bulbs are earlier this year than for some time, and growers are taking advantage of the situation. Lily of the valley is in small supply and in equally small demand; consequently prices are unchanged.

A few chrysanthemums are coming in, but they are scarcely a factor in the market.

Various Notes.

Many visitors to the Washington convention are stopping at New York on the way home. Miss M. C. Gunterberg, of Chicago, was an early Monday morning, August 22, visitor, and she had with her photographs of the party favored with a reception by President Harding, Saturday morning, August 20. If this had been generally known there might have been a stampede to the White House that Saturday. It seems that Miss Gunterberg, through Congressman Mann, of Illinois, was able to arrange the interview and a few dozen florists and ladies were in line. Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., and E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass., were in New York, Monday, August 22, homeward bound. Allan Peirce spent Sunday, August 21, at Atlantic City and reported a large party having left there with their direction New Yorkwards. Secretary Young was to be found at his desk in the S. A. F. administration offices Monday, August 22, well pleased with the success of the convention.

J. K. Allen, the veteran wholesaler of the Eighteenth street flower market, motored back to New York from Washington, but, after giving his place of business the "once-over," started for the finish of his well-earned vacation.

Sol Hanfling, of S. Hanfling Co., is back from Europe, and his son Louis is kept busy with shipments of goods purchased on the other side, which seem to arrive on every steamer.

Herbert Brown and Mrs. Brown, of Richmond, Va., after attending the convention, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Donaldson, at their home at Patchogue, L. I.

Miss Katie Miesem, youngest daughter of John Miesem, Elmhurst, L. I., is at home again, after an operation for appendicitis performed at the hospital at Summit, N. J.

Henry Weston, of Hempstead, and Charles Weber, of Lynbrook, L. I., with their wives, returned last Saturday, August 20, from a delightful trip to Bar Harbor, Me., and the White mountains. At Bar Harbor they were guests of William Burton, the genial superintendent of the magnificent Kennedy estate there.

Fire on Sunday night, August 21, destroyed the carpenter shop and part of the garage at the establishment of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

A wholesaler, being heavily stocked with long roses, one day last week put in long-distance telephone calls for the leading retailer in each of half a dozen middle-western cities. He got word that four of them were at the S. A. F. convention, two had gone fishing and there was nobody at home with authority to make unusual purchases. The wholesaler also had a list of other calls he had intended to make, but he tore it up, filled such orders as the day brought and set the rest of the roses away in the icebox, already half full of gladioli.

It is probable that last week will turn out to have been the dullest of the summer. City demand was small and shipping orders were neither so numerous nor so large as in the preceding weeks. Indeed, there are tales of an almost complete cessation of business in certain quarters, but it seems probable that the market as a whole did at least as much in dollars as in the same week a year ago, which is the same as saying that considerably more stock was moved, as prices average lower now than did last year.

Once more it may be reported that there are plenty of good roses. The new crops are coming on, as usual at this time of year, and the quality is excellent. He would be a critical buyer who could not be pleased with the roses now in market. Until the demand picks up it will be necessary to force the selling and excellent values are obtainable. There are not many red, white or yellow roses, but unlimited supplies of pink.

Gladioli also have become overabundant, for the first time this season. The reason lies more in the decreased demand than in inereased supply. There are few out-of-town orders now for gladioli, because there are local supplies almost everywhere, with the result that Chicago must consume all that come to this market. The flowers have gradually gathered in iceboxes.

An unexpected demand for valley last week created a situation which still gives the wholesalers trouble. For some time the supply slightly exceeded the demand, but last week a sudden call for considerable quantities cleaned the market and for several days it has been impossible to fill all orders. The result, of course, was an advance in price.

Outside of roses and gladioli, supplies are limited; there is not much of anything else, and the demand is erratic. An occasional call for lilies or valley in considerable quantity comes either as a relief or a vexation, because sometimes such orders can be filled and sometimes not. Asters are not abundant, but some are good. Milkweed, the native Euphorbia corollata, is about as steady a seller as there is on the market now that gypsophila seldom is seen.

Various Notes.

C. L. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn have returned from their trip to California. Combining business with pleasure, they had a busy but delightful time. Mr. Washburn is well pleased with the showing at Bassett & Washburn's Pacific coast branch, where kentias by the hundreds of thousands are nearing the shipping stage.

Harry Rowe spent a great many years in the loop before he removed to the north side. Asked as to which class of location he now thinks best, he said: "Downtown the retailer must cover his overhead and get his profit practically all within five hours, from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m., each day. In the Wilson avenue district he can do business from 9 a. m. to midnight."

C. L. Sherer reports that Frank Schramm, at Crystal Lake, already is cutting from 5,000 to 10,000 roses a day, a considerable part of them being of the long, fancy grades. William Spandikow is the grower.

"Rube" Cooke's Flower Shop, the Rosery, in the rotunda of the Wrigley building, is being advertised on the sporting pages of the daily papers. Being in professional baseball, Mr. Cooke plans to get the patronage of sporting people for his new flower store.

C. S. Claussen says War is the best red gladiolus to date. His concern, Bonvallet & Co., is growing it heavily this year and the cut spikes have sold excellently at Amling's.

Last week Streiff & Dagobert finished the installation of a new 12-foot display refrigerator built to order by the A. L. Randall Co. These progressive young men have not yet been in business for a year, but have done so well they are preparing for larger things in the new season.

At Evanston N. K. Welter has just finished the erection of two new greenhouses, which he has hastened to plant with carnations. Business this summer has seemed quite satisfactory to him and he looks forward to continued prosperity this autumn and winter.

Clody's Flower Shop makes a brave showing with a street address 3900 to 3914 North Clark street and three telephones bearing consecutive numbers, Lake View 1121, 1122 and 1123.

icebox, but artistic baskets of seasonable blooms are made up and shown in considerable numbers. The ability to select just what a patron has in his or her mind's eye makes many sales, particularly in a dull season, believes John Mangel.

Some splendid specimens of that little-seen plant, the araucaria, are to be seen at Frank Oechslin's Austin greenhouse range. These were in the last shipment to come from Belgium and are being grown on for fancy tubbed specimens.

A. T. Pyfer celebrates his forty-third birthday anniversary this week. He was born August 26, 1878.

Fred Lautenschlager, who looks at the florists' trade from a slightly different angle than most of us, believes conditions in the trade are excellent. The sales of greenhouse boilers so far this summer, he says, are more than satisfactory to Kroeschell Bros. Co., with inquiries coming in at a rate which indicates that this may turn out to be the biggest year in the greenhouse department of their business.

R. C. Kehm, who, a few months ago, acquired the retail end of the Beaver Avenue Floral Co., at Des Moines, was a recent visitor.

J. S. Wilson was the first of the S. A. F. convention visitors to reappear on this market. He spent August 20 here on his way back to Des Moines.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. will open a branch office at Denver, Colo., September 1. The office will be in charge of F. Meyer and will be at 1720 Rosemary street.

For many years the Luxemberger Schobermesse, held Labor day and the Sunday preceding, was the big annual event on High Ridge and a flower show was one of the principal features. During the war, and after, circumstances reduced the extent of the affair, but this year the attempt is being made to restore it to its early effulgence. N. J. Wietor is one of the leaders.

The death of William J. Nissen is recorded in this week's obituary column.

Joseph Schoos, the Evanston grower, always has been a believer in advertising, but he says he never has known it to pay so well as this season. He had 20,000 carnation plants in the field after he finished planting his own houses. A classified advertisement in The Review occupied seven lines and cost $1.26. It sold the 20,000 plants at an average price of 5 cents each, the expenditure

Over on the Boul Mich the window boxes of one of the clubs are filled, appropriately enough, with rubber plants.

W. A. Adams and Mrs. Adams have returned from their outing at Deep Lake.

J. C. Steinhauser is in Chicago for a week or so, spending his time with the trade while Mrs. Steinhauser and the two sons, aged 14 and 16, find recreation along the north shore. They motored from Pittsburg, Kan., and will return the same way, via Richmond, Ind., and St. Louis, after their stay here.

Entering the Clark street Automat for a cup of coffee the other afternoon, the compiler of this column found our former fellow townsman, John Reardon, now of Ames, Ia. "We have mechanical milkers out in Iowa," quoth he, "but no mechanical waitresses; I was just looking it over to see how it works."

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Funeral work nearly swamped some of the retail shops the greater part of last week. The market supplied plenty of good stock to meet all the demands. Several cool days and plenty of rain have brought roses to the best stage of the season. Home-grown asters are good. Some of the stock shipped in is of fancy grade and brings a top price.

The 1922 Convention.

There is great rejoicing over the selection of Kansas City as the next meeting place of the S. A. F. The good news was first received in the following telegram to the Florists' Club:

"The Society of American Florists, in convention assembled, by a unanimous vote, have invited themselves to hold the thirty-eighth annual convention in Kansas City. Please govern yourselves accordingly." Signed, John Young, secretary.

The following reply was immediately wired: "John Young, secretary, Convention hall, Washington, D. C.: Greetings and best wishes to the S. A. F. now in convention assembled. Your decision in selecting Kansas City as the meeting place for the thirty-eighth annual convention meets with our hearty approval. Every effort at our command will be used to make this convention a great success. Please accept thanks and appreciation. Kansas City Florists' Club. T. J. Noll, president; William Wade, secretary."

Mr. Noll feels highly elated over the results of the first year of the club's existence. He said, "If Kansas City had no club, the S. A. F. would not have considered this as a meeting place. The decision is a great compliment to Kansas City and a wise one, considering location. Visitors from all parts of the country will come, as this city equalizes the distance from extreme points. This convention next year will mark the beginning of still greater things for Kansas City from a florist's standpoint."

The election of Samuel Murray pleased everyone. Mr. Murray stands high as a citizen as well as a business man. Any movement for the benefit of the florists as a whole meets with his hearty coöperation. He is always ready to assist in every way.

Various Notes.

A casket cover of delphinium, white roses and lilies of the valley was one of a number of large orders made up last week by the Muehlebach Flower Shop.

Adolph Mohr's cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias are looking fine. He will have a good crop of hydrangeas for Christmas.

Gussie Miller is at Pleasant Hill, Mo., on her vacation.

C. E. Thomas, of the Rosery, has bought a tract of six acres at Seventy-ninth street and Troost avenue for $10,000. He will grow outdoor stock in large quantities and the place will be known as the Home Lawn Flower Gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bohannon and S. Bryson Ayres drove to Sedalia, Mo., Wednesday and back Friday.

August Luther has built a new retail store in connection with his greenhouse. The former store was too small. As this part of Twenty-seventh street is all business, he was permitted to build to the sidewalk. Instead of going to the line he left a few feet for flowers and ornamental shrubs outside and thus addded a great deal to the appearance. There is a plate glass front twenty-five feet wide. The store is thirty feet deep. An effective lighting plan makes the place prominent at night.

Mrs. J. H. Boyd will add a high-class cut flower department to her downtown flower store in September.

Miss Nettie Seymour is on vacation.

Mrs. John Murray is in California.

The Alpha Floral Co. had seven funerals of overseas soldiers August 14.

Miss Virginia Bales, of Excelsior Springs, Mo., is visiting her cousin, Mrs. R. J. McGrail.

A. Newell's shop had three heavy days last week and was prepared to start early Monday morning, August 22, on orders for a funeral.

Nelson Jarrett intends to go into the nursery business. He will grow perennials and hardy shrubs on the ground adjoining the greenhouses. Richard Jarrett will take over the greenhouses.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Chandler have returned from Minnesota.

Joseph Austin has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., for a month. Mrs. Austin will join him the first part of September.

Bernard Barbe, who has been in Colorado the last few weeks, has continued his motor trip to California.

O'Connell's Flower Shop made up more than $200 worth of work for the funeral of Joseph Gilday.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Convention week was dull in the cut flower market. The out-of-town orders are fair for midsummer. The local business is light. Really good asters are wanted. The New York state growers are not shipping here now; their fine ostrich plumes are missed. Maybe we did not deserve them. However, we have good gladioli and extremely good roses, and we expect indoor asters. White flowers have been selling better than colored, especially white roses. For the colored roses the demand is poor. Dahlias have made their appearance. Here, too, white sell, and white only as yet. Cosmos and hydrangeas are more plentiful. Easter lilies are an important staple for every day in the year, while valley can be had whenever it is wanted.

The Washington Convention.

The Philadelphians—there were a good many of them—who attended the S. A. F. convention in Washington, must have experienced a feeling of just pride that they came from the Quaker City, after they had walked through the exhibition hall. Something like one-half of the space in the armory was occupied by Philadelphia exhibits, chiefly those of the plantsmen and of the dealers in florists' supplies. Both classes of exhibits were of a high order and the quality of the plants was probably the best that has ever been seen at any convention. The arrangement of the exhibits of florists' supplies was undoubtedly better than anything seen in the past, while all were large and covered a great variety of novel ideas. The impression created in the mind of the visitor was that, should any untoward event happen to the greenhouses of this country, the supply men would instantly and cheerfully fill the void. It would not give them the least trouble to do this. The real advantage of the Washington convention lay, as it always does in these gatherings, in meeting men and women who are making their mark in the world of flowers—to exchange views with them, hear of their achievements and their problems and learn to know and to like them.

coming year, interest is gradually awakening. The leaders meet each other here and there and discuss candidates. Not at length, just a word or two, with a nod and a wise far-away look that says more plainly than words, "I could tell you more if I chose." The sum and substance of these confabs, in so far as they could be gathered on the street, is that the leaders feel that the present administration should be renominated in September and triumphantly reelected in October for another term. Their reasons are that the present administration put pep into the meetings, especially during the spring, and that it deserves ample opportunity to put that heritage of woe, the finances, upon a sound basis. It may further be added that it is customary to reëlect for the second term and that the present administration has the support of both parties.

Nephrolepis Macawii.

To have a Boston sport with you is the fortune of nearly every fern grower. To have a gem and to nab it first time comes to few growers. To work up stock with system and speed and to finish it beautifully, that is the story of the sport of Nephrolepis Scottii, named Nephrolepis Macawii, of Macaw Bros. Macaw Bros. have a perfectly appointed place that has been built up in six short years at Norwood. There are eight houses, 36x150 feet each, divided down the center by a fine shed, twelve feet high at the sides, floored with concrete throughout. The shed contains three delivery trucks, a touring car, lockers and wash rooms, and is separated from the greenhouses by brick vestibules.

The houses are filled with ferns in four leading varieties, Scottii, Teddy, Jr., dwarf Boston and Macawii, also by well colored Pandanus Veitchii, cyclamens and Dracæna Massangeana. All show culture. They are in a good range of sizes. A large number of specimens are on pedestals or suspended from the roofs on wires, or on tracks. These tracks are an invention of Duncan Macaw. They can be adjusted to sixes or to eights. They keep the plants level and they facilitate rapid handling of stock set on them.

Outside there are several fine roses for Easter flowering. There are two 125-horsepower return tubular boilers. A third is to be added now.

Baseball.

Probably the best game of the season was played at Lansdowne, August 16, when Bickmore defeated the Independents by the score of 8 to 7. The victors' line-up is locked up in the store desk. The Independents were: Battery, Grimm and Miller; Cook, Lafferty and Aeugle on the bases; Opitz, shortstop, and Kenneth Meehan, Pell and Reilly in the field. Two other games were counted out by a gentlemen's agreement, although legally decided. Bickmore waited an hour for the Craig team to appear and then went home, while, owing to inability to get suitable grounds, Craig agreed not to score the game won from the Independents on a "queer" field that marred good sport. Schedule for this week: Bickmore vs. Niessen, Craig vs. the Independents and the Independents vs. Rice.

Various Notes.

The election of Samuel S. Pennock as president of the S. A. F. gives great pleasure here.

The Robert Craig Co. received a gold medal for its exhibit at Washington last week.

Will H. Rehder, of Wilmington, N. C., was here last week.

J. M. Deutscher and Mrs. Deutscher have been at Wildwood, N. J.

William Swayne and Warren Swayne, of Kennett, have gone to California.

Bernard Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., believes that a convention would be strengthened by the child of the S. A. F., the F. T. D., et al., meeting at the same time and place, say two days for the S. A. F., two days for the F. T. D. and one day for business.

Henry Bauer is at Ship Bottom, N. J.

William C. Leonard is at Lavallette, N. J. Phil.

John Kuhn is building four King Construction Co. houses, 30x100 feet each, on his place at Olney.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There has been little activity the last week in cut flower circles. Funeral orders were fewer than usual and demands for other purposes were unusually light. The quantity of flowers coming in, apart from gladioli and asters, is comparatively small and little choice material is available. Gladioli continue to fill the center of the stage. They sold poorly last week and a good many were wasted. Prices reached the lowest level of the present season on these. It seemed too bad to see such splendid spikes selling for a mere pittance. Asters of good quality sell well, as much as $6 per hundred being secured for the best. As a general rule, asters are poor in quality this season, a great many plants being badly diseased.

Cosmos comes from a number of growers, but does not sell well. Dahlias are also arriving, but never sell well here. Roses are less abundant and, thanks to the comparatively cool weather we have had in August, are of good quality. Prices do not show much change from a week ago. Sweet peas and carnations are nil. Bachelor's buttons, sweet sultans, everlastings and other annuals are a slow trade. Lilies have had a poor week, neither speciosum, auratum nor longiflorum being much in demand. Larkspur is in increased supply and sales are slow.

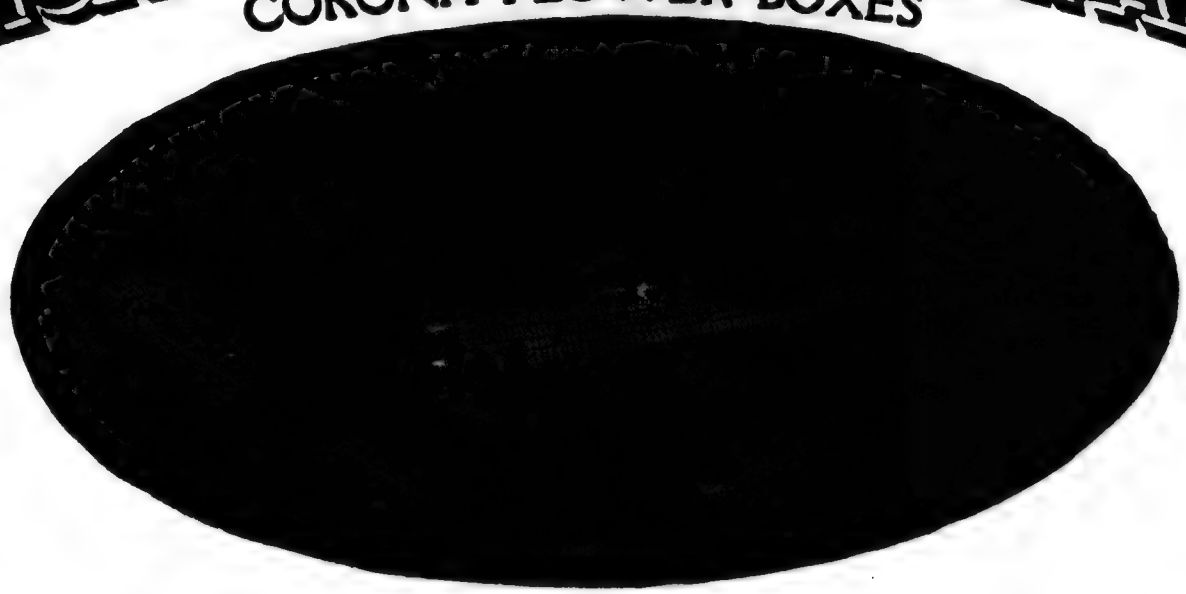
In the way of choicer flowers, small lots of white bouvardia, valley and gardenias are seen and occasional cattleyas. A few other orchids, such as cypripediums, Miltonia candida, vandas and oncidiums, are coming in. Asparagus meets with a rather light demand.



Various Notes.

John W. Foote, of Reading, who for some years has been a great specialist in bouvardia, is gradually discontinuing its culture and has only one small house planted with it this season. Prices do not warrant a continuance of its culture. Several houses are devoted to Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus, which are well done here and prove profitable crops. The new Lord & Burnham house, 50x200, is devoted to carnations. Varieties grown are Pink Delight, Matchless, Beacon, Laddie, Rosalia and Benora. A large number of such geraniums as Ricard, Poitevine, Helen Michell, Perkins and E. G. Hill are grown for spring sales. Mr. Foote's entrance driveway is neatly kept. Closely trimmed lawns, oiled roadways and finely bloomed beds and borders of geraniums and Salvia Bonfire make an excellent show.

Visitors the last week included A. E. Earnshaw, of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J., and Thomas Pegler, of Lewiston, Me., who was, a few years ago, Boston's largest and most gust 24, leaving Horticultural hall at 8:30 a. m. A shore dinner, with clams, lobsters and other "fixins," was a feature of the day's program.

The A. Leuthy Co., Roslindale, has its houses and gardens well stocked with an excellent lot of cyclamens, poinsettias, hydrangeas, ferns, palms and other foliage plants. The company is well pleased with the way business is coming its way.

While there are many complaints of undersized field carnation plants from some sections this season, in Massachusetts the plants are larger and better than for years. Indoor culture through the summer seems to be losing in favor and some of the largest and best growers are not yet done planting.

All the local members who attended the Washington convention say they had an enjoyable and profitable time. The weather was cool and comfortable all through their visit. W. N. C.

SCHOOL GARDENS.

[Report of Benjamin Hammond, chairman of the school garden committee, presented at the S. A. F. convention at Washington August 16, 1921.]

The Society of American Florists held its first convention in the city of Washington in August, 1892, twenty-nine years ago. At that time one of the most interesting and important papers presented was by John Farquhar, of Boston, upon the subject of school gardening. Since that time school gardening has taken root and grown until it is recognized as an important line in public school work.

To help this work along, this society for several years past has endeavored to stimulate interest by addressing an illustrated letter on school garden work to every state superintendent of education in the United States and Canada and to the local superintendent, principal, board of education or trustee in every place where is located a florist who is a member of the Society of American Florists; to do this we venture to say that no $100 does so much practical good as the appropriation of our society. The result is that it puts the florists on record as promoters of a work which has great practical value in stimulating the making of homes, where there is a bit of ground, neat and pretty. These little gardens give value in vegetables aggregating a great sum. In the front yards a little floral growth adds much to the appearance of any place.

In Beacon, N. Y., with 12,000 population, over 600 of the school children took home garden cards and in June and July last the show of roses was fine on all the home streets.

In many of the cities of our country from ocean to ocean and in Canada the people are giving good attention to school gardening. This is thrifty work.

In a recent ride of many miles around Washington city the general appearance was good and the interest taken in this educational work for years by the public schools of this city has been good.

The effort to stimulate school garden work by our society is by no means misplaced, but tends to awaken interest far and wide, for with the training of the child comes the character of the nation and this character can be strengthened in its industry and thrift, two traits that will make the United States of America the greatest nation on the earth, and the Society of American Florists is helping in this good work.

TENNESSEE CONVENTION.

The Tennessee State Florists' convention is to be held at Chattanooga, Tenn., October 25 and 26. This should be of interest to all its members, as well as to all florists from the surrounding states. Already inquiries are coming in from all points. The program will be one of interest to all who attend. Trade exhibits will be all that can be expected and the committee is making a special effort to get a large exhibit of plants and cut flowers. If any of our brother florists have anything new or of special interest which they wish to get before the southern florist, they can well afford to take advantage of this opportunity. Floor space and display cards will be furnished free of charge. If not attended by the owner, entries will be displayed and will have the proper recognition.

State President W. H. Englehart has sent in ten members to the state organization. Let us get busy and see how many we can send in. I will guarantee ten members by October 25, for challenge. Come on, brother florists of Tennessee, and let us hear from you. It is pleasing to note that Tennessee met its quota in the S. A. F. drive and is entitled to a delegate to that organization. The committee on exhibits would like to hear by October 1 from all who wish space, in order that it may make arrangements accordingly. For communications address G. A. Kimmell, care of Haeger Floral Co., 700 Market street, Chattanooga, Tenn., or J. F. Farrell, care of the Volunteer Floral Shop.

CATALOGUE OF PLANT NAMES.

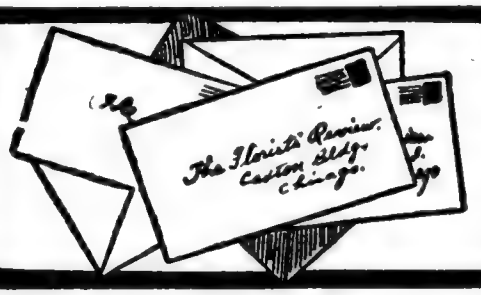
can Peony Society, the American Carnation Society, the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the American Dahlia Society all similarly provide lists of varieties and classifications which may be accepted as official and authoritative.

The resulting work, which is being prepared in a fashion to make it available even for pocket use in the field as well as for desk use in catalogue preparation, will be essential to everyone who conducts transactions in plants. Not only will the florist, the nurseryman and the seedsman need to have this book, but the landscape architect, the pharmacist, the dealer in plant products, the editor and the libraries must alike refer to it for the accurate and definite names, both scientific and common, of the vast array of plants which make the land worth living in.

Future Registration.



A part of the plan worked out by the subcommittee involves a continuing relationship in which the federal government is participating through the membership on the subcommittee of the United States botanist, Dr. Coville. It is realized that there must be a registration point at which new varieties may be recorded and that proper changes in names must also be referred to such central point to be passed upon and used, if it seems wise, in subsequent publications of the official catalogue. It is no more expected that this directory of plant names (for that is what it is) is final and definite than it could properly be expected that a directory of Washington or Cincinnati or Pittsburgh issued in 1921 would be permanently accurate. Probably editions every three or five years of the official catalogue will be required in order to keep pace with the growth of commercial horticulture in America, that growth having only just begun.

Support Necessary.

The support of the Society of American Florists, together with that of the other organizations that have joined in this work, has been sufficient to pay such of the expenses of the work as those doing it have not personally absorbed. The official catalogue can consequently be published at its mere mechanical cost, instead of being charged for as similar technical directories are charged for, in connection with the whole cost of the work. Priced for preliminary orders at $3.50 per copy, this book, which will probably exceed 500 pages, would ordinarily cost, as published by technical organizations, from $8 to $10 per copy. The difference is contributed in the work of the men who have self-sacrificingly given their time to the project and in the support of the organizations involved.

That support should be continued without diminution by this organization. The price of the book has no relation to the maintenance of the organization necessary to send it out. For that reason your committee asks that the appropriation heretofore made be continued.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Last week was an unusually busy one for this time of the year, due to the great demand for funeral work. Several large funerals gave an impetus to business that has kept all on the jump. Roses, asters and gladioli are the principal flowers and the prices on these are conservative. Already dealers are preparing for the new season and most are looking forward to good business. There are a number of weddings on the social calendar that should be beneficial.

Various Notes.

Never in the experience of the oldest florist here has there been such a large floral display at a private funeral as there was at the funeral of the late Colonel Samuel Pomeroy Colt, former president of the United States Rubber Co. Timothy O'Connor, of this city, had the family order, which included a handsome, large casket blanket of red roses and maidenhair. Practically every florist in the state and many outside the state sent large pieces. Johnston Bros. furnished a large piece, representing the coat of arms of Rhode Island. This was from the Republican state committee and was one of the most pretentious pieces ever made in this city.

Willis S. Pino, accompanied by his wife, left Wednesday, August 17, for a month's automobiling among the White mountains. They will make their headquarters at Bethlehem, N. H.

Raymond Macrae has been spending a vacation with friends at Stillwater, R. I.

Joseph E. Koppelman has a new limousine for himself and family.

Macnair the Florist has been kept busy at both stores the last week with funeral work.

Miss Clara McCarron is spending her vacation this summer at Old Orchard Beach, Me.

William Marshall, of the Fruit Hill Greenhouses, has returned from his vacation, spent at Block Island.

Sweeney Bros., 448 Cranston street, are making a complete overhauling of their place and getting ready for the new season.

Charles Martin, with William A. Bowers, Inc., is on his vacation, which he is spending in Canada.

The Maplehurst Greenhouses, at Longmeadow, are closed for a thorough overhauling and rearrangement. The business is to be reorganized this fall.

Peter S. Byrnes, of the Homogansett Greenhouses, Wickford, was in his glory last Saturday. He attended the big hand-engine muster of the New England States Veteran Firemen's League, at Salem, Mass., and had the satisfaction of seeing the tub belonging to the organization of which he is president winning first place and championship.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, has gone on a two weeks' automobile tour for a much needed period of recreation.

The T. J. Johnston Co. had a dozen large designs for the opening of Brooks' new restaurant, on Washington street, last week.

James B. Canning is having his greenhouses painted and his office renovated.

Miss E. Trainor, bookkeeper for William A. Bowers, Inc., is spending her two weeks' vacation at Block Island.

Miss Annie Peckham, of Carpenter street, has started on a vacation trip by automobile.

Gordon Macrae has returned from an extended stay on Cape Cod.

John W. Lamont, of the Montague Rose Co., South Hadley, Mass., is spending a two weeks' vacation here, making his headquarters with his brother, Robert M. Lamont, of the Quidnick Greenhouses, at Quidnick.

Among those who attended the S. A. F. convention were Page Potter, of the Colonial Flower Shoppe; Charles Smith, of the Eastern Wreath Co.; Jeremiah Trottier, of the Westminster Greenhouses, and Carleton Scott, of Scott the Florist.

Paul Brookner, treasurer of the Colonial Flower Shoppe, has returned from a two weeks' fishing trip. W. H. M.

Grand Ledge, Mich.—William H. Hall is moving his greenhouse from Lansing to Grand Ledge, where his address will be 347 East Front street.

Three Rivers, Mich.—The greenhouses here, owned by Jas. W. Riggs & Co., have been sold to Hans Tobler, of Traverse City, Mr. Tobler taking possession August 15. Mr. Riggs came here thirteen years ago, has built about 7000 feet of up-to-date glass and has an excellent trade. This, coupled with Mr. Tobler's thirty-five years' experience, makes a bright outlook for the new florist.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Santa Cruz, Cal.—A small greenhouse in which bulbs and flowers are grown now holds the floricultural activities of E. D. Rodgers, of Santa Cruz. Mr. Rodgers divides his time between the growing business and his other line, which is surveying and timber estimating. However, he hopes before another year has passed to have so enlarged the florists' end of his work that he may give all his time and attention to that and forget the other.

LOS ANGELES' BIG SHOW.

The Los Angeles Times of August 10 gave a bit of excellent advertising to the California flower show, which will be held in October, and Roy F. Wilcox, the president of the California Association of Nurserymen, which sponsors the show. A large illustration, 8x10 inches in size, showed Mr. Wilcox, F. M. Renfro and a pretty lady inspecting a large and gorgeous dahlia field in process of development for the show. Mr. Wilcox says that this show will be the largest flower and horticultural show ever held west of New York. He expects a guarantee fund of about $50,000, as the city of Los Angeles has given $10,000, and the Chamber of Commerce and other commercial organizations have all given liberally.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Last week was an exceptionally good one for this season of the year, stock cleaning up well at satisfactory prices. Asters have arrived in much larger quantities and have improved in quality. The business in them has been phenomenal. Even short and medium-length stems have sold well, while the first grade blooms cleaned up most days before the close of the market. Dahlias are still coming freely and zinnias make a brave showing. There is not a great variety in small flowers nor much demand for them. Roses are still in short supply and clean up daily. Good shipping stock is hard to get. The opening of the big trade exhibition called for a great many flowers and plants and helped the market considerably. Some mums are in, but they are not wanted. Greens are a little on the scarce side, with the exception of maidenhair, which is plentiful and good.

The Fall Show.

Southern California florists will be among the delegation of nurserymen who will make a trip to San Francisco and northern sections in the interest of the California flower show and horticultural exhibition which will be held at Exposition park, October 20 to 26. The California Association of Nurserymen desires that the exposition be state-wide in scope as well as in name. At an executive committee meeting held in the offices of the flower show, reports were received showing that many exhibitors from the northern part of the state will take part and it was the opinion that a personal trip to the north would be productive of great good.

The nurserymen and florists view the show as being extremely helpful in the promotion of their interests. The realization that greater results will be obtained with every section of the state represented has spurred members of the committee to action. Under the leadership of Fred M. Renfro, general manager, the affairs of the exposition are fast rounding into shape. With the show sixty days away, speed is essential and the plans have been practically completed. The cut flower department, the big tent housing the plants, nurserymen's appurtenances and the industrial section are assured of exhibits that will aid in making the show not only of state importance but of national import as well.

Various Notes.

Tom Wright returned last week looking fit and sunburnt after his Catalina trip. He reports landing a 95-pound tuna, just missing by five pounds the button of merit awarded for 100-pound fish. N. Benaphal, of the staff here, has also returned from his Bear lake trip, but he says the fishing was indifferent there, the big fish not biting freely.

H. J. Scherer, formerly of Roeding & Wood, of Los Angeles, and more recently connected with the Roeding interests in the north, is now in business at Palo Alto as a landscape man. He was here last week on a buying trip, having driven down the coast route.

H. Grunnerwegen has gone into the landscape business at 727 South Garfield avenue, Pasadena.

Frederick C. Gloeckner, with the Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, has been in the city and he is much interested in the seed and bulb situation here. He visited the seed ranches of John Bodger & Sons Co., Howard & Smith's nursery and trial grounds and other places. He expressed himself as pleased with the California strains of asters.

Finding difficulty in obtaining valley at times, H. T. Rossi, of the Art Florist, at Long Beach, started to grow

WE NEVER MISS

How Times Have Changed

When we were youngsters back on the farm, father used to buy a bolt of calico for the girls, and a bolt of pants goods for the boys. We all had new clothes, but they were all of the same material and all made alike.

We took a day off a short time ago and called on our tailor. He pulled down, for our inspection and admiration, bolt after bolt of cloth. It finally struck home to us that no two of these bolts were alike. No chance now selling us clothes exactly like our neighbor's. It looks too much like we belonged to an institution.

We wonder sometimes if the same thing don't apply to our Florist's line. It was the retail customers who forced the growers to discard the old Bride and Maid and grow the new kinds of Roses. We never forgot that, and every new variety gets a trial with us.

The same thing with Baskets. If you were to buy one of each size and kind we carry in stock it would cost you $250.00. It would be a mighty good investment at that—why don't you try it?

People get mighty tired of the same thing, no matter how good it is. When you want something different, as well as something better than common—remember—his own in a greenhouse back of the store and he has been successful, growing enough for the store's use and wholesaling some besides. He is also growing a fine line of ferns, cyclamens and other plants for the retail trade. This is a most attractive store and Mr. Rossi is planning additions and alterations.

Roy F. Wilcox and C. L. Washburn took in a drive to Santa Barbara and back one day last week.

Willard Kervan, of the Kervan Co., New York, visited the market and some of the retail trade here last week.

It is surely a pleasure to visit the store of W. Armacost & Co. and see the amount of asters shipped. Day after day the force is kept busy for long hours and the orders keep coming in from such distant parts as central Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma, while some have been shipped to Chicago. W. M. Williamson, manager here, is on a vacation trip to the north, including San Francisco.

After a month's layoff, owing to sickness, Albert Knopf is back again at his post with the Redondo Floral Co., where he has been greatly missed by all.

R. Overstreet, of the staff of S. Murata & Co., having returned from his vacation at San Diego and Tia Juana, Mr. Murata starts out this week for San Francisco. Asters and new-crop carnations of good shipping quality are the leaders here now.

Frank Lichtenberg is greatly pleased with the business at his new location. One great advantage is that, being away from the congested district, customers can park their cars long enough to shop, while, as it was before noted, the store is wonderfully attractive. At any rate, the business has opened up well there.

WE CLOSE ON SUNDAYS

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

are now spending part of their time at the new flower market at Bush street, near Kearney, superintending arrangements for the opening, which will be September 1. The place is large and light and is in the center of the wholesale flower district. A meeting was called for August 18 to elect a permanent board of directors.

The flower show committees are now fully appointed, numerous additions to the original names having been made at the meeting last held. It is expected that the show will surpass anything ever previously held in San Francisco. It will take place in the vast municipal auditorium, in October, and plans are being laid to make it fully representative of California's ability to produce flowers. The flower show committee consists of: Chairman, P. V. Matraia; treasurer, A. O. Stein; financial secretary, J. R. Walsh, and corresponding secretary, J. T. Lynch. The members of the San Francisco Retail Florists' Association committee are P. V. Matraia, A. O. Stein, A. Serveau, A. J. Rossi, J. Kilroy, F. D. Pelicano, F. C. Jaeger, Jr., F. Benedetti, R. Dinnucci, Mr. Krase, F. J. Bertrand and V. L. Podesta.

Hall committee—Chairman, P. V. Matraia; A. J. Rossi, V. Ferrari, Charles W. Brown and F. C. Jaeger, Jr.

Schedule committee—Chairman, H. Plath; J. A. Carbone, F. Pelicano, E. James and J. R. Walsh.

Finance committee—Chairman, V. Ferrari; V. Podesta, R. Dinnucci, A. J. Rossi, B. M. Joseph, A. Serveau and P. V. Matraia.

Guarantee fund committee—Chairman, A. J. Rossi; V. Ferrari and B. M. Joseph.

Program committee—Chairman, B. M. Joseph; C. W. Brown and F. J. Bertrand.

Publicity committee—Chairman, A. J. Rossi; B. M. Joseph and F. J. Bertrand.

Committee to secure special prizes—Chairman, A. O. Stein; Mr. Krase and R. Dinnucci.

The executive committee consists of the chairman of each committee. The prize committee, which was appointed a couple of months ago, consists of W. Kettlewell, for the private gardeners; B. M. Joseph, for the retail florists, and E. James, for the growers.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., and R. McWhirter, of the Star Dahlia Gardens, were discussing the coming dahlia show and both stated that it will be the best ever given by the Dahlia Society of California. It will take place September 15 to 17 and local growers are looking forward to it with rare enthusiasm.

Arthur Twitchett, a local dahlia grower and dahlia specialist, has gone to Los Angeles to get in touch with the plans for the Los Angeles Horticultural Exposition, which is to be held in October. San Francisco growers are planning to send exhibits.

D. B. Clayton, a well known nurseryman of 723 Sierra street, Reno, Nev., was married at San Francisco August 17, according to announcement made by his friends. He came from Reno, accompanied by his mother, and the ceremony took place in this city, he and his bride leaving later for a honeymoon trip to Santa Cruz. It is understood that Mr. Clayton is planning to open a florists' store in Reno sometime in September. One of his objects in coming to San Francisco was to make arrangements for stock. He has arranged with the United Flower & Supply Co. for asters and chrysanthemums.

Angelo Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is visiting Lake Tahoe and points in Nevada, including Reno and Goldfield. He will also visit the Yosemite valley.

W. D. Kennedy, of Brown & Kennedy, is enjoying a month's vacation.

L. Picetti, manager of the Charles C. Navlet store, on Market street, is away on vacation.

The home of F. C. Jaeger, 32 Merritt street, was beautifully decorated with flowers on the occasion of the marriage of his only daughter, Miss Laura May Jaeger, to William Tavares, a young San Francisco business man. The house decorations were pink and white, largely consisting of gladioli, and the bridal bouquet was of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids carried Russell roses, with streamers to match. After the home ceremony, dinner was served to all the guests and the bridal couple left for a honeymoon by auto. The bride is the daughter of the senior partner in the firm of florists, F. C. Jaeger & Son.

Fred Bertrand, of the Palace hotel, states that he has booked some good orders for late August weddings. Clarence Sorensen has joined Mr. Bertrand's staff.

F. Moore, of Sacramento, formerly of Meldrum's, it is stated, bought out the place and is planning to remodel the store and make it one of the finest in the state.

Frank Ebel, of Sacramento, is closing his former store and is opening a new and attractive one at K and Ninth streets.

E. W. McLellan's chrysanthemums will be in full crop by September 1.

Mr. Anthony, of the H. A. Hyde Co., Watsonville, has been calling on the San Francisco trade.

Domoto Bros. have heavy shipments of rubrum lilies coming from their nurseries.

P. B. Norton, with J. A. Axell, speaking of the new flower market, said, "I shall be glad to see the growers get under a roof. It will be better for the stock and better for the growers. I welcome anything that will improve the conditions under which the market is carried on.'' Niels Peterson, who grows for J. A. Axell, is beginning to send in some of his Laddie carnations.

The United Flower & Supply Co. says that its Chrysolora, while abundant in quantity, brings high prices. The firm itself will not make shipments till about September 1. By then I. Inque, of this firm, believes the supply will have made prices somewhat less high.

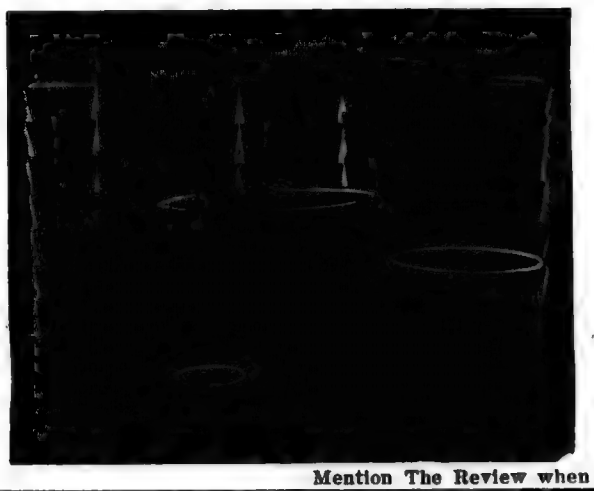
Enomoto & Co., Inc., have increased their chrysanthemum crops this season. They have Monrovia mums which are now standing shipment well. A large shipment of mats has just been brought through the customhouse by Mr. Enomoto.

The Growers' Floral Co. has been so successful with its initial shipments of yellow Chrysolora mums that it is going ahead both with this variety and some white Early Frost which are now coming from the nurseries. ''We are the first to ship Early Frost,'' said Yukichi Noda.

Mrs. Copeland, of the Hannon store, planted over an acre of oriental pods two years ago, in Alameda county. They are now ripe for cutting and many orders are coming in from those who have seen the pods, some of the earliest of the season.

Joseph's has been busy with funeral and wedding work.

The staff of Podesta & Baldocchi say they have had no takers for the bowling challenge they have thrown down to the San Francisco florists.



The Terminal Florist has many transbay orders. This week the decorations were designed for a tea, given by Miss Mildred Strauss, an Alameda society girl, to a dozen young friends, at the Palace hotel. M. M.

PORTLAND, OREGON.

The Market.

The seasonal dullness is now on in full force. There is little business, aside from that which comes from funerals and an occasional wedding. Summer stock of all kinds is plentiful, though roses and carnations are in short supply. Asters are the mainstay in all the stores at present, the best stock coming from McMinnville. Sweet peas are still in good form, grown, as they are, on the delta lands on the lower Columbia river. Rubrum and auratum lilies are important items in several of the stores. Gladioli are in fine form and are somewhat in oversupply, forcing the wholesale price down to a low level. Zinnias, both giant and dwarf; French and African mari-

Various Notes.

A. L. Aabling, formerly residing in Seattle, has removed to Portland to be near his seed-growing enterprises, on Government island and in the eastern part of Multnomah county. Heretofore his firm has grown only vegetable seeds, but it will now embark in sweet pea seed production.

E. J. Steele, the pansy specialist, is busy with a large force of employees harvesting the crop of seed which now is heavy on his plants. He says the weather has been ideal for seed production this season and he is looking forward to splendid business during the next year.

James Forbes spent several days at Salem last week visiting the bulb farm of Dibble & Franklin and in connection with the floral exhibits at the coming state fair, of which he will have charge.

Fred Young is about the only grower who is cutting roses and lily of the valley at the present time. His cyclamens are making rapid growth and bid fair to become fine stock for Christmas sale.

The Oregon Seed Store is a new concern, which has been opened for business at 224 Yamhill street. The store will cater to city trade for the present.

S. S. Skidelsky, of New York, called on the trade in the course of a Pacific coast trip which he is making.

roses, with Ophelia, Butterfly and Premier making the biggest gains. There are plenty of Columbia and Russell on hand. Cecile Brunners are common, but Hadley is hard to find. The cut of orchids is increasing, but there is no oversupply. The supply of gypsophila has shown an increase.

Among the longer-stemmed items, gladioli are easily the leader. These are widely used for both private and commercial decorations. Golden Glow, hollyhocks, snapdragons and a number of varieties of lilies have been much used for decorations. Late summer flowers from outdoors are common at present. Sweet peas are plentiful.

Potted items have shown some improvement, cockscomb, begonias, early cyclamens and ferns being the chief items in this division.

Various Notes.

William Goldsbary, who recently took the position of Pacific northwest representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, left last week on his first road trip in his new capacity. He will call on the British Columbia trade during this run.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has been securing satisfactory results from the sale of novelty lines lately and some oddly colored grasses have been featured in the window displays. Golden Glow banked just inside the doorway proved an attractive floor display for the week.

T. Rhoades, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, is back at work after a successful fishing trip on the upper Snoqualmie, while David Jones and A. Moore have left on their vacations. Mr. Jones will spend his time on Mount Rainier. Miss Gladys Cohen is also back at work after a few days' vacation. A new window developed at this shop consists of two levels, a fountain playing into a circular pool forming the upper section, while the water falls down over rocks from this into a pool of water lilies in the foreground. One elaborate club decoration handled last week called for gladioli, hollyhocks, gaillardias and other summer flowers, in summer garden effect.

Large baskets containing large ferns have been effectively shown at Melby's Flower Shop and there has been a nice run of small general decorations.

R. E. Skinner, representing the Roseville Pottery Co., of Zanesville, O., called on the local trade last week. He reports sales along the Pacific coast as generally good, with business especially active about Los Angeles.

At their meeting last week, members of the Japanese Florists' Association voted unanimously to affiliate themselves with the publicity committee of the Seattle Florists' Association in the advertising campaign being carried on. The Japanese growers will pay in the same percentage as other growers to this coöperative advertising fund; that is, one per cent of their sales from growers who sell only to the retail trade and one-half of one per cent on gross sales from those growers who also maintain establishments where they sell at retail.

Miss Rodd and Miss Wharton, of the Hollywood Gardens, are on their vacations, while William Holmes has returned from a two weeks' rest, a part of which was spent on Mount Rainier. Dr. Walter A. Moore and Mrs. Moore spent a part of last week in Vancouver and Victoria.

Some demand has been seen of late for goldenrod, to be used in decorations. Felix Rosaia reports a good number of general decorations and some increase in the transient business, due to the fact that some of the city residents are beginning to return from their vacations.

RETAILERS' DOINGS

FREE ADVERTISING SPACE.

Advertising space is advertising space, whether it costs you $10 an inch or whether you get it free. Of course, one cannot get the benefit for nothing that he can if he pays for it, but in proportion to the cost, he gets much more. And every so often someone finds some new way to make use of some wasted space for advertising purposes. One idea comes from the Quarry Floral Co., of Worcester, Mass.

All the shipping tags of this company formerly had one blank side, as most shipping tags have. But now the side that was blank carries a reproduction of the store and greenhouses of the Quarry Floral Co. The grounds of the company comprise 12,000 feet of glass, in three greenhouses. The store is joined to one of the greenhouses and all three houses open into one another. Thus, a customer coming into the store can see all the way through to the end of the greenhouses. And that is the illustration that appears on the reverse side of the shipping tag. Everywhere the tag goes, there also goes an advertisement for the Quarry Floral Co.

ANOTHER NEW STORE.

The epidemic of attractive and up-to-date new stores seems to be in the air. The latest is the new store of Loeffler & Benke, of Watertown, Wis. July 30 they opened a store at 104 Main street, in the center of the business district.

It is all newly finished in ivory, with all the fixtures of white enamel. The front section is furnished with a beautiful sun-parlor setting of wicker furniture, which makes a cozy and comfortable place for customers to rest.

The opening day every visitor was given a rose or an aster and several thousand were given away. The retail business of the establishment will be carried on at the store, which will be known as the Loeffler & Benke Floral Shop, and will be managed by P. G. Loeffler, who has been with the concern for several years. The greenhouses will stay in the same old place and will furnish the shop with its stock.

INSIGNIA IN FLOWERS.

Without question, every ex-soldier who attended the memorial convention and reunion of the Eighteenth division, held at Pittsburgh, Pa., August 6 and 7, was recalling to memory some one or a number of the 1,141 boys of that division who had died in action. And it must have been a matter of great satisfaction to everyone present at the memorial services, when he saw the appropriate and well chosen memorial token that the D. Hill Co., of Pittsburgh, had fabricated for the occasion. For this was a beautiful and generously large design, more than six feet wide, twelve feet high, weighing over 500 pounds and containing about 6,000 red, white and blue flowers.

The piece was made in the form of the insignia of the "Blue Ridge" division, a shield as a background for three blue ridges, surmounted by an arm and drawn sword. The Latin words, "Vis Montium," appear at the bottom of the shield. The ridges were made entirely of blue flowers and the shield of white flowers. The border of the shield was of oak leaves, while a streamer of red flowers supported the whole insignia. It took three men as many days to complete the work, but the satisfaction expressed by the members of the "Eightieth," as well as by the local press, repaid fully the time and effort spent.

DISPLAYS THAT ALWAYS DRAW.

The window decorator in the florist's store who is seeking an idea that will concentrate public attention on his plate-glass inclosure can always—that "always" ought to be printed in italics or capital letters to show emphasis—depend upon a display depicting florists' telegraph delivery service, provided he can put it into interesting form. And in addition to being a display that will interest the passers, such a window is important as a means of educating the public in that all-too-little known service, so valuable in promoting our business, the sending of floral remembrances or gifts by telegraph.

An exceptionally well designed telegraph delivery window, installed by F. C. Jaeger & Son, San Francisco, Cal., represented mountain scenery with a tunnel in the rocks, flowers, lakes, etc.

One Word—
Its Money Making Power

Last week I was in a neighboring city and dropped in at three flower shops.

None of the salesmen knew me.

All of them gave me rather "indifferent attention." They were not what you could call exactly dis-courteous.

They were just uncourteous.

They lacked civility.

They had an utter absence of friendliness.

They seemed giving off an atmosphere like some banks have; that makes you feel they are conferring a bit of a favor in allowing you to do business with them.

Coming out of that last shop, I got to thinking of the Fifth Avenue busses here in New York that have for a couple of weeks been carrying in big letters on their sides, the one word:

Civility

The big men of that Bus Company, are big enough to appreciate how big a word Civility is.

They know it means dollars and dollars to them.

Hope you won't think I am trying to preach.

I'm only kind of hinting that maybe some of us kind of at times lose sight of the little things and don't recognize that they are the really big ones.

CIVILITY: A little word with big money making power.

The third rail was electrified and a train ran over the rails. The telegraph posts, wires and instrument were installed by the Western Union Telegraph Co. and were the real thing. The signaling apparatus, signal house, etc., were all electrified and equipped with colored lights. The scenery and buildings were all attractive. The latter included a railroad depot. Large crowds stood at the window and watched the exhibit in action day after day.

A MODEL HOME MODELED.

At the present time there is much building activity going on at Tampa, Fla., and to show emphatically what a great part the landscape architect and artist plays in the beautification of the home, the Knull Floral Co., of that city, arranged a model of a finely laid out home in its window. The display was given the name, "A Model Home."

This display showed a miniature bungalow on a well kept lawn, tastefully surrounded by various kinds of shrubbery and palm. To represent the sidewalks and roadway, cardboard was used. Two tiny automobiles were realistically shown on the road in front of the house. Sheet moss, dyed in various shades, did well for the lawn grass and a gardener was represented by the use of a toy man. Then, to emphasize the chief points in the arrangement, a poster, neatly printed, stood in the window and explained the many improving details.

The display was arranged by W. Knull and W. A. Nipper. It was a drawing card worth while. In the words of Mr. Knull, "this window display has been a good advertisement for us and attracted many people who were particularly interested at this time."

ATLANTA'S ASSOCIATION.

All hail! The Atlanta Florists' Association proudly proclaims its existence. A meeting of the florists of Atlanta was held August 12, at the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building. It was at this meeting that the new association was born. The following were elected as temporary officers: President, R. Irving Gresham; vice-president, E. Wachendorf; secretary, Ralph Deans, and treasurer, F. V. Jacobs.

The purpose of the organization is to bring the florists of Atlanta closer together, to instill a wider-spread spirit of coöperation and to promote the florists' business generally.

At the meeting W. C. Lawrence and L. D. Thompson were chosen to represent the new association at the convention at Washington. It was unanimously voted that the new association invite the S. A. F. to hold its 1923 convention at Atlanta, giving as testimonials of the Atlantan hospitality the fact that the city has had the pleasure of successfully entertaining many, many conventions, among them the Shriners, the International Association of Rotary Clubs, and the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

CLEVELAND, O.

Business all last week was slow, until the last day, when it started in with the old-time "pep." Everybody is hoping that this is a good sign and that the fall rush has started. Gladioli are still coming in full blast, while asters are a close second. Marigolds, delphiniums, calendulas, bachelor's buttons, zinnias, cockscomb, gaillardias and physostegias are arriving in great numbers. Roses are much better than heretofore and are now arriving fairly long-stemmed. They clear daily. Easter lilies are scarce at present, while Japanese lilies are on their last legs.

GLADIOLUS SHOW AT BOSTON.

Elect Officers.

At a meeting of the New England Gladiolus Society, held at Horticultural hall, Boston, August 13, the following officers were elected:

President—Charles F. Fairbanks.

First Vice-president—S. E. Spencer.

Second Vice-president—C. E. Stratton.

Secretary—Robert R. Walker.

Treasurer—C. W. Brown.

Executive committee—S. E. Spencer, Jelle Roos and A. L. Stephen.

Exhibition committee—R. R. Walker, chairman; E. J. Norley, Arthur Hans and R. W. Hayes.

Auditor—F. H. Goodwin.

All reports were duly accepted and no other business of importance was transacted. There was a good attendance of members.

A Great Show Held.

It was thought last year that when the American Gladiolus Society met at Boston the high-water mark in Boston for gladiolus exhibitions had been reached, but August 13, 1921, when the combined shows of the New England Gladiolus Society and Massachusetts Horticultural Society were held, all previous records were easily shattered, the display filling all the halls of the society and overflowing into the hallways and loggia. The quality was superb and has never previously been approached here, thanks to the copious rains and fine growing conditions prevailing for the last two months here. Competition was keen, as many as twelve or fifteen entries being staged in many classes, and the judges had a difficult task in making awards.

Such varieties as White Wonder, Marechal Foch, Pink Wonder, Mrs. Frederick C. Peters and others of unusual merit were grandly shown and keenly scrutinized by the thousands of interested visitors. Awards made by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were as follows:

Twenty-five spikes white—A. L. Stephen, first, with Europa; C. F. Fairbanks, second, with Bertrex.

Twenty-five spikes red—S. Irving Moody, first, with Scarlet Princeps; C. W. Brown, second, with Mrs. Francis King.

Twenty-five dark crimson—C. F. Fairbanks, first, with Mrs. Moulton; Faulkner Farm, second, with Neoga.

Twenty-five pink—John Zeestraten, first, with Panama; Saunders' Gardens, second, with Epheus.

Twenty-five yellow—John Zeestraten, first, with Flora; C. W. Brown, second, with Schwaben.

Twenty-five lavender or blue—Robert F. Walker, first, with Baron Hulot; Mrs. M. B. Hawks, second, with Nora.

Twenty-five any other color—F. O. Shepardston, first.

Twenty-five of any Lemoinei hybrid—S. A. Swift, first, with Mrs. F. Pendleton; S. E. Spencer, second, with Mrs. F. Pendleton.

Twenty-five of any primulinus hybrid—A. M. McLean, first, with Alice Tiplady; C. F. Fairbanks, second, with Salmon Beauty.

Best collection of named varieties—A. L. Stephen, first, showing 125 splendid vases; Breck-Robinson Co., second, also putting up a fine display, well arranged.

Other Attractions.

Thomas Cogger had a long, well-arranged bank of gladioli. Specially fine were Orange Glory, Louise, Alice Tiplady, Miss Helen Franklin, Crimson Glow, Herada, Mary Fennell, Red Emperor and some splendid seedlings.

B. Hammond Tracy, in addition to his fine gladiolus garden, had long tables pleasingly arranged with good standard sorts; also hampers, baskets and boxes arranged, as well as nice tables decorations. Some fine seedlings from Golden Measure came from J. Kemp, Little Silver, N. J. The number of seedlings in the show was so great as to be almost bewildering.

W. C. Rust, gardener to Mrs. C. G. Weld, secured first prize in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's class business. Stock has been quite plentiful in roses, and cool nights have made a marked improvement in quality, especially in such roses as Premier, Columbia and Ophelia. There are plenty of good asters to take the place of carnations, of which stock from the young plants is not as yet available, as the growers are disbudding them. Gladioli are still the leader in demand and will be until the end of the season. The supply of everblooming single tuberose spikes is plentiful and the demand good, but the price is rather low in big lots. Auratum and Easter lilies are cleaning up fairly well each day.

Orchids are scarce and valley is equal to the demand. Delphiniums are in demand, also other garden flowers, such as gypsophila, candytuft, gaillardias, bachelor's buttons and everlastings.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kuehn, Jr., are spending some time in New York city. They attended the Washington S. A. F. convention.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club will hold a conference September 1, at which the old and the new officers

Peoria, Ill., the third Tuesday in October.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Weber and their two daughters are spending this week in Philadelphia and Atlantic City. They will return home about September 1.

L. Jules Bourdet, chairman of the committee to perfect an Allied Florists' Trade Association, says that, just as soon as all of those who attended the S. A. F. convention return home, he will call a meeting of this committee and perfect the organization. The old publicity committee is still holding over and collecting publicity funds, as usual, to be turned over to the new association.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blixen, of Edwardsville, Ill., enjoyed their first convention trip. They are at Philadelphia and Atlantic City this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Beneke are in New York city visiting their son, O. R. Beneke, and they expect to be back home by September 1.

The "Say It with Flowers" bowling league will start the season's bowling Wednesday night, September 7, at the Grand Arsenal alleys. The first night all bowlers will shoot from scratch, after which the usual sixty per cent handicap will be in force. All thirty-six bowling members are expected to be present.

John S. Carter, head of the Nicotine Mfg. Co., who was at the Washington S. A. F. convention, says many of his old friends greeted him warmly and were glad to know that Nikoteen could again be had in any quantities.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Fehr, of Belleville, Ill., Frank X. Gorly, Fred C. Weber, L. Baumann and George Kuehner, of St. Louis, all say they spent a most pleasant week in the convention city. All are making side trips before returning home.

The florist bowlers say they never had a better time than this year and the great success of the tournament was due to the management of Captain Ernest and George Shaffer, who left nothing undone to make it pleasant for those who took part. St. Louis did well, capturing first prize in the individuals, won by J. J. Beneke. Eighth prize went to George Kuehner. Kansas City captured the next convention. J. J. B.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

Running true to form, last week, like all convention occasions, was a dull one on the Baltimore market. Stock was in fair supply and of good quality. Gladioli still hold the center of the stage and, judging from what was seen at the S. A. F. convention, our gladioli will measure up to any. Dahlias are beginning to come and these, too, are of fine quality. There were some out-of-town asters to be had. There are no local ones. The weather ruined this crop completely. Roses were fairly plentiful and were of fairly good quality. There was the usual miscellaneous stock.

Convention Notes.

At 8 a. m. Tuesday, August 16, fifteen automobiles were lined up on the St. Paul street plaza in front of the S. S. Pennock Co. William F. Ekas, with an armful of "Say It with Flowers" pennants, was here, there and everywhere, seeing that the slogan was properly displayed. There was every sort of car that is built, from J. J. Perry's five-passenger henry to Tom Stevenson's brand-new Franklin and Joseph Cunningham's Buick roadster. After lining them up on Courtland street for a photograph, the start was made. J. J. Perry was selected to lead the way. When the District line was reached, Mr.

Perry was still leading. The District of Columbia has it in for Maryland motorists. None can cross the line without a District license and operator's card, but William F. Gude was on the job and so a police escort met us at the District line to see that no one was molested. Many of the Baltimore party stayed over for the four days, while a large number went back and forth each day. The road was fine and the weather delightfully cool, so that the trip was a pleasure and business could be kept in touch with each day.

One of the most attractive exhibits in the hall was that of Isaac H. Moss, of ornamental evergreens in variety, and good, clean, well grown stock it was. It was not surpassed on the floor. Mr. Moss had them from the window box size up to lawn specimens, in many varieties. So attractive was this exhibit that J. H. Small & Sons, of Washington, bought the entire exhibit as soon as it was staged.

Wednesday, August 17, the writer went over with the Stevenson boys. When I got into the car, memories of hunting trips came back to me. Everything was there but the dog. When I asked Ned what the idea was, he said: "I have not had much shooting lately, so I thought we would take a crack at some of those targets." So at 2 o'clock we met Z. D. Blackistone and the rest of the good shots at the Washington hotel, and had one of the prettiest rides I have ever enjoyed at Washington. Out Chevy Chase way we went and when the scores were made up it was found that E. Stevenson was the champion clay pigeon shot of the S. A. F., with his brother, Tom, a close second; indeed, E. S. had only one the best of his brother. Both of them are as handy with a gun as they are in a rose house.

A large party motored over to White Marsh Wednesday, August 17, with Mr. Vincent at their head, to see that block of Patrick O'Mara that is now at its best in the trial grounds. William F. Ekas will handle, through the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co., the entire dahlia crop of the Vincent farm this fall. Never was the crop more promising and handling a large proposition like this is what Mr. Ekas likes.

At one time Baltimore had a strong ladies' bowling team. It was often the lot of the Baltimore team to contest with a like team from the Washington club. On these occasions Mrs. George C. Shaffer was untiring in her efforts to entertain the Baltimore ladies. Remembering this, the three remaining members of the Baltimore team each brought some flowers from their husband's ranges and, on this convention occasion, made a pilgrimage to Congressional cemetery and decorated Mrs. Shaffer's grave. The three surviving

The Market.

The summer has been an unusual one in some respects. There has not been anything like the usual falling off in business during the first half of the summer that is usually expected. In fact, the business depression has not been more than half so long as usual this year and already there seems to be a quickening in sales. The weather is still hot. Yet a number of florists report that business has been good. This was due to a number of large funerals, but all agree that the low mark has been passed and that sales are gradually increasing.

There seem to be plenty of flowers at present, especially roses. Carnations are beginning to arrive in appreciable numbers, but the quality is poor. There has been an abundance of rain recently, which is welcome, after the extreme drought of the summer, and outside things are beginning to look well. Many of the gladiolus growers who had no irrigation lost a considerable percentage of their early crop, but the later plantings are coming in nicely at present and everything looks as if the late ones would be especially good this season.

Dahlias are beginning to appear in the shop windows, although they all have short stems and are of inferior quality. The recent rains have started new growth, however, and a few cool days will bring the dahlias up in quality to an amazing degree.

There are no home-grown asters at present. Asters were almost a failure here this year because of the drought and extreme heat at their blooming season. Late asters never amount to anything with us. The first bulbs have appeared. None of the florists has received his bulbs. Freesias were grown much more extensively last year than ever before in Nashville and everything indicates that there will be double the number grown this year that were grown last. They are increasing in popularity right along with the cut flower trade.

The early chrysanthemums are looking well this season. Little disease of any kind was apparent last week. There seems to be a tendency to grow fewer kinds of flowers than were grown a few years ago, but to grow more and better roses, carnations and chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

Leo Geny and family have been on a vacation for some time. Mr. Geny packed a camping outfit in a trailer, loaded the family in his automobile and departed for Louisville, from there intending to visit various places of interest in Ohio and to end up at the S. A. F. convention at Washington. Mr. Haney has charge of the store in Mr. Geny's absence.

Tom Joy left about ten days ago for the convention, stopping over a day with the Baums in Knoxville, with whom he went on to the S. A. F. convention.

Floyd Bralliar has just returned from a few days' visit at Fordhook farms. He spent a day at Washington looking over the flower work there, while enroute home.

Miss Louise Sloan is again able to be on duty in the Joy store a part of every day. Miss Sloan was taken to the hospital for an operation two months ago, and is just regaining her health.

John Haury is giving his personal attention to the growing end of the Haury business this year. Mr. Haury has had charge of the store for a number of years, but on the death of the senior member of the firm it seemed advisable for him to take charge of the greenhouses. He has made a number of changes that seem to be for the betterment of the business.

McIntyre Bros. report that business has never kept up so well during a summer in their history as it has this year. The greenhouses were well renovated this summer and the new stock is looking exceptionally well. F. B.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The demand for flowers has held up well. So far, August has held its own. The month has not been quite so good as in 1920, but no one expects that. There is no overproduction of any good flowers. This market has held its own on gladioli. One may see at the wholesale houses some extra good Butterfly see an aquatic garden invitingly and attractively arranged. Mr. Ulmer, of the firm, states there is no complaint to be made about this August's business.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. contemplates the erection of another section of glass for the growing of roses, orchids and adiantums.

The windows of the McClements Co. are attracting crowds of people these midsummer days. One window is showing delicious Elberta peaches in baskets at $2 and every peach is perfect. The decoration is unique. It shows a peach tree laden with large-sized, beautifully colored fruit, all grown within five miles of Pittsburgh's city hall, indicating that this is not the "Smoky City" any longer. The opposite window displays dahlias and garden flowers. Mr. Breitenstein reports that business is good, in both the flower and the fruit departments.

Randolph & McClements have been busy with August wedding decorations. During spare moments alterations in the company's Penn avenue store are made over night. Here are several large displays and stock-cooling boxes, equipped with the latest Kroeschell Bros. Co. refrigerating system.

ceived a few hours of consideration from our good friends, Irwin Bertermann, of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; I. C. Harper, of the A. W. Smith Co., and DeForest Ludwig, of the E. C. Ludwig Co. Mr. Bertermann stopped over here on his way from the Washington convention and visited the Crystal Farm range of glass of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., at Bakerstown, Pa.

David Geddis, of St. Louis, Mo., also paid his old acquaintances here a visit on his return from the Washington convention.

At the Phipps Conservatory, north side, a remarkable specimen of Victoria regia, giant water lily, is being shown. This year it has eleven leaves, each almost seven feet in diameter.

The Market.

Business, as usual at this time of the year, is quiet, there being little counter trade. A fair demand for design work exists and most of the florists are getting a share. There is an abundance of roses, asters and gladioli of fine quality. In fact, an oversupply of some of these has resulted and the sick people at the hospitals are reaping the benefits.

The F. T. D. Convention.

The F. T. D. local committees are again at work, after the holidays. They had a meeting August 18, at which the preliminary program for the convention, October 11 to 13, was drawn up and arrangements were made for entertainment. The committee will meet again shortly. Members in the United States may anticipate all they like and can be assured that the entertainment furnished by the Canadians will live up to expectations.

There will be an official welcome by W. W. Gammage, general chairman; W.

Preparations are being made on the basis of 1,000 visitors, and the committees will be disappointed if florists to that number and their families are not on hand. The committees are prepared to take care of an additional 200 to 500 on a moment's notice. The publicity committee will have some more news next week. Just reserve October 11 to 13 for a visit to Canada.

The Picnic.

The picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association at the farm of Sir John and Lady Eaton, at Eversley, August 16, was a great success. About 100 were present, transportation being provided by electric cars. There was a long list of races, for which valuable prizes were given. One of the best events was guessing the combined weights of the officers. This caused a great deal of merriment, the prize being awarded to a lady who must have had some inside information, as she guessed the exact weight.

A baseball game between William Hoath's team and one captained by George Thompson took place. It was won by the former, with a close score. Mr. Hoath's team also won the tug of war.

Tea, coffee, milk, cream, etc., were supplied by Mr. Whytock, the superintendent of the farm, and Mrs. Whytock. Both were given a hearty vote of thanks, as were also Sir John and Lady Eaton.

As the party started for home, President Clark called the members together. He stated that the success of the picnic, as well as that of the association, was due to the efforts of the secretary. He stated that the association had celebrated his birthday and now wanted him to accept a little birthday present from the "boys." Mr. Simpson made a happy reply, thanking them for the thoughtfulness and for the spirit that prompted the gift.

Various Notes.

G. M. Geraghty, H. G. Dillemuth, Harry James, E. S. Simmons and S. A. McFadden have returned from their holidays.

At the recent communication of the Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., held at Ottawa July 20, John H. Dunlop, of Toronto and Richmond Hill, was elected district deputy grand master of the Toronto center district.

J. A. Neal has opened his beautiful new store on Danforth avenue for business, but he will have a formal opening during the mum season in October. He has a frontage of twenty-seven feet, with two entrances. The store extends back eighty feet and is fully equipped. It is finished in ivory.

Frank Smith, of Hamilton, was a recent visitor at Toronto.

H. G. Dillemuth has redecorated his store. J. J. H.

The Market.

Last week was one of the dullest weeks that the flower market has experienced in a long time. This is the coolest August that Omaha has had in some years. All greenhouse plants are showing wonderful growth and color. In some places the stock is fully two weeks earlier than usual.

Most of the growers are cutting a good crop of short-stemmed roses, especially of Columbia and Premier. The Russell roses are inclined to be weak-stemmed. Gladioli are the main flowers, followed closely by asters. The quality of the gladioli is fair, although the blooms are getting small and some show the effects of the recent rains. Francis King, Panama and America are being heavily cut at present.

Omaha has been fortunate this season in having local showers at opportune times. It has been a remarkable season for asters and growers who never produced good asters before are cutting some wonderful stock this season. The stems are heavy and the heads large, with good color.

Dahlias are coming in more heavily each day, but there is no sale for them, as the stems are short. The dahlias will probably move better after the asters are gone. Zinnias are too plentiful. Delphiniums are getting small and not keeping well. Marigolds, hydrangeas and buddleias are some of the other offerings at this time.

There were a number of funerals last

Dallas, Tex.—The Stuart Flower Farm has no glass, but is ideally situated for the growing of violets, pansies, cannas and other plants and bulbs all winter outdoors. The place is protected on the north and east by dense woods. The plan is to put in an irrigation system next year, and to grow plants and cut flowers for the retailers in the section around Dallas. The place is located seven miles from Dallas, and has a sandy loam with a clay subsoil.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

SEVENTEEN cases of Lilium Harrisii bulbs arrived at New York on the steamer Fort Victoria, from Bermuda, August 17, consigned to F. B. Vandegrift & Co.

E. J. STEELE, the pansy specialist, of Portland, Ore., is now busy with a force of employees, harvesting seed. Mr. Steele says that the weather in his section has been ideal for seed production this season.

THE official staff of the Brown Bulb Ranch, at Capitola, Cal., is composed of James A. Brown, general manager; W. C. Roberts, superintendent of production, and Alonzo J. Brown, secretary and treasurer.

A. L. AABLING, who formerly resided at Seattle, Wash., has now moved to Portland, Ore., in order to be near his seed-growing enterprises, on Government island and in the eastern part of Multnomah county. Heretofore the firm has grown vegetable seeds only, but it will now produce sweet pea seed also.

As far as onion sets go, the new season promises to be wholly unlike the two which preceded it. The difference is largely due to weather conditions in the Chicago district during June and July, however. The crop is short, but no excessive prices are expected, as anything of the kind would be out of line with the times.

THE provincial minister of agriculture of Quebec, Canada, states that the extended period of drought throughout the province has become most alarming and that agricultural conditions are worse than they have been for the last twenty-eight years. In his opinion the hay crop will be fifty per cent less than it was last year, cereals will give no straw, and there will be a minimum quantity of grain.

A PRODUCTION of timothy seed approximately seventy-five per cent of last year's, because of a reduction in acreage and yield per acre, is indicated in data obtained by the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates during the week ending July 30. Most sections show a decrease in acreage, amounting to fifteen per cent to twenty-five per cent for the United States as a whole. The differences between the 1920 and 1921 acreages range from a decrease in 1921 of about thirty-five per cent in southeastern Iowa and northeastern Missouri to an increase of twelve per cent in northeastern Iowa. Because of drought during the last half of June and the first week or two in July, many fields or portions of fields intended for seed were cut for hay in order to provide for a sufficient tonnage of hay. The inactivity of the timothy seed market since harvest time a year ago, accompanied by sharp declines in price, discouraged growers to save seed this season.

dealers throughout the country have been reluctant to place growing contracts because of the larger carryover than normal of many kinds of vegetable seeds, the decline in prices and the difficulty experienced by dealers in obtaining sufficient working capital from bankers. The growing condition of most of the crops, as reported to the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates around July 30, is fair to good. Although normal yields per acre are in prospect, the total production will be smaller than at any time during the past four years.

Beans.—The acreage of dwarf snap beans in Colorado is about fifty per cent of last year. Condition of the crop is twenty-five per cent better than last year and fifteen per cent better than normal and a yield per acre of 1,000 pounds is in prospect. Garden pole beans in California give promise of yielding 500 pounds per acre on an average, about one-half of 1920.

Garden beet.—The growing condition of garden beets in Washington is good and a normal yield is anticipated. Although the acreage is conceded to be small, a few growers report a larger acreage than last year. An average yield per acre of 300 pounds is indicated by the condition of the reduced acreage in California. The acreage in Connecticut is about fifty per cent of, and the condition about the same as last year.

Cabbage.—The favorable growing season, following a mild winter, has resulted in a prospective normal yield per acre of cabbage seed in the Puget sound district. Although the acreage planted was less than last year, the abandoned acreage is negligible and the total production probably will be larger.

Carrot.—The acreage of carrot is reported to be not over one-third of 1920, and a yield per acre of around 400 pounds is anticipated.

Lettuce.—The present crop condition indicates a yield of 300 to 350 pounds per acre on a reduced acreage of lettuce seed. The average yield last year was 325 pounds.

Onion.—The production of onion seed will be much less than last year's total of 800,000 pounds. Reports indicate that the acreage is only twenty per cent of 1920. Based on the present fair condition of the crop, the yield per acre is expected to be 200 to 250 pounds, compared with 340 pounds last year.

Parsnip and parsley.—The acreage of parsnip is reduced one-half and that of parsley two-thirds from 1920. The condition of these crops is below normal, but yields per acre equal to last year are in prospect.

Radish.—The present condition of the radish seed crop in California forecasts a yield per acre of 300 to 600 pounds on an acreage about fifty per cent of last year. About the same reduction is reported for the Michigan acreage. The fair condition of the crop indicates an average yield per acre of around 300 pounds in that district.

Tomato.—Unfavorable weather conditions delayed the transplanting of tomato plants for seed in southern California, and the crop is late. The plants are growing rapidly under good conditions, and a yield per acre equal to last year—180 pounds—is expected, although the acreage is reduced nearly one-half. The early tomato seed crop in New Jersey is reported to be normal, while the acreage of the late crop is reduced seventy per cent.

Turnip.—The acreage of turnip seed, both English and Swede, is reported to be about ten per cent of last year. Heavy imports of this, as well as many other kinds of vegetable seed, at prices lower than growers in this country felt

TREATMENT FOR ANTHRACNOSE.

A method of seed treatment for control of cucumber anthracnose and angular leaf spot has been outlined by W. W. Gilbert and M. W. Gardner. Seed treatment, say they, can be done most advantageously and with the least outlay of time and labor by commercial seed dealers, seed growers, pickle companies or other wholesale handlers, while the seeds are still in large quantities and before they have been distributed to retailers and growers.

Seed treatment is a relatively simple operation and can be done in storage houses if running water is at hand. Caution is strongly given, however, that the highly poisonous nature of corrosive sublimate (mercuric chloride) should be kept in mind throughout the entire process of seed treatment.

In practice the following method of procedure has been found advisable: In order to get the mercuric chloride into solution rapidly, an equal amount of ammonium chloride should be used. Purchase mercuric chloride and ammonium chloride on the basis of one pound of each to every 500 pounds of seed to be treated. Make up a concentrated stock solution of a strength of 1 to 20, by dissolving one pound of each in two and one-half gallons of water. This stock solution is diluted to make a 1 to 1000 solution by adding two quarts to twenty-four and one-half gallons of water. Stir thoroughly before using. Metal containers cannot be used for the mercuric chloride solution. In making up the stock solutions use graniteware measures and wooden pails; for the treatment use barrels.

Place seed in loosely woven bags, fifty pounds in each. The bags should not be over three-quarters full to allow for swelling of the seed and to facilitate stirring. Immerse the bag of seed in twenty-five gallons of the 1-1000 bichloride solution and agitate vigorously to secure thorough wetting of the seed. Remove the bag promptly at the end of five minutes and immerse at once in running water in a barrel and stir thoroughly. Wash about fifteen minutes. Dry the seed as rapidly as possible by spreading in a thin layer on the floor. Forced drying by an air blast or fan is much to be desired.

The bichloride solution may be used only twice, since its strength is reduced by use. Make up a fresh dilution from the stock solution for every two bags of seed.

Guard against reinfection of the treated seed. Bags to be used for treated seed should be soaked in the 1-1000 mercuric chloride solution for at least five minutes, rinsed and dried. This can most readily be done by using these bags for the original seed treatment, being careful that the entire bag is immersed.

FIRE AT NEW ROCHELLE.

A destructive fire occurred at the Rose Hill Nurseries, at New Rochelle, N. Y., Monday, August 15. The large packing house, 25x68 feet and two stories high, and a building which had a carpenter shop and storage room on the second floor and a garage on the main floor were totally destroyed. The garage contained a Republic truck, a Ford delivery car and Charles Siebrecht's Reo, which were all destroyed by the fire.

The large building also held many implements, tools and other supplies, which could not be saved. The fire was so intense that the flames flared as high as the 85-foot water tower and so hot that the 3-inch steam pipe covered with asbestos was bent and buckled out of shape. Two small 90-foot greenhouses and their contents were also a total loss. A small house across the road had one corner burned for a distance of about twenty feet and some of the rare Strelitzia Reginæ, or bird of paradise plants, were scorched. Many other plants and bulbs were lost, the number of which is not known at present. The total loss is estimated at about $12,000. The garage was insured for $3,000.

Henry A. Siebrecht had just left for the convention of the S. A. F., at Washington, where he enjoyed only the first day of the session and the reception of the president during the evening. When he received the news of the fire, he took the first train for home, regretting most sincerely not having the pleasure of meeting many more of his old friends.

SCRANTON HOLDS OUTING.

The Scranton Florists' Club, of Scranton, Pa., held its second annual outing recently on the Belin estate at Waverley. To this event, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association held a field day at the Cherry Hill Nurseries of the T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co., West Newbury, Mass., and the Boxford Nursery of Harlan P. Kelsey, August 24, leaving Horticultural hall, Boston, at 8:30 a. m. A shore dinner was a feature of the day's program.

THE Everbear Nurseries Co., of Winter Haven, Fla., has applied to the governor for articles of incorporation. The amount of capital stock of the corporation is to be $500,000. Until the first meeting of stockholders in May, 1922, the business of the corporation is to be transacted by A. H. DeVane, president; John A. Snively, vice-president, and W. H. Lewis, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors will consist of A. H. DeVane, John A. Snively, W. H. Lewis, E. N. Morrow, J. C. Swindell and T. L. Wilson.

CONNECTICUT NURSERYMEN.

A pleasant day, good refreshments and the largest crowd that ever attended a summer outing of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association combined to make Thursday, August 18, a memorable one in the annals of that organization.

The entertainment committee, composed of Paul Hubbard and Walter Campbell, made an effort to secure the use of the new state park at Madison. Lack of facilities at that place made it necessary to fall back on the old reliable place, Lake Compounce, at Bristol.

So, with few exceptions, every nurseryman, with his family, hied himself over to Compounce, where Messrs. Pierce and Norton did themselves justice with an old-time sheep bake.

Of special interest on the program of sports was the ball game between two teams captained by President Gottschalk and Secretary Rippin. Mr. Rippin could not get his spitball working, with the result that Mr. Gottschalk's team walked off with the game.

At a short business session it was decided to hold the annual winter meeting at New Haven. The "pep" instilled into the organization by its present officers is sure to reflect itself once more in a record-breaking winter attendance.

"TREE DENTISTS" AT WORK.

The visitors to the convention of the Society of American Florists at the capital last week were much impressed with the work being done for the preservation of the many historic trees in the park which lies between the building where the lawmakers hold forth and the Congressional Library. The chief interest was in the Washington elm, which gets its name from the story which is wound around it in a romantic way.

The work of preserving this and the other well known trees is being done by the Davey Tree Expert Co., of Kent, O., under the supervision of Martin L. Davey and his assistant, H. K. Perry. The former recently completed a term in Congress, where he became well known because of his knowledge of trees, and when it became apparent that some of the beauties of the Capitol grounds were being menaced by decay, he was called into consultation by the authorities.

The "tree dentists," as they have come to be known, started on the Washington elm. This tree stands about seventy-five feet high. It was first treated by the Davey Tree Expert Co. about eleven years ago; since that time it has developed only three local cavities, located midway up the tree on the main limbs. It was necessary to brace some of the limbs by means of ⅜-inch galvanized double-strand cables, seven being used for this purpose.

The workers are treating an American elm, almost directly in front of the center of the Capitol, which is estimated to be about 80 years old. They have braced one limb by means of a cable and filled three small cavities. The vitality of this tree is reported as quite good. An English elm was found to have thirteen cavities of medium size. This tree is about 100 years old and its weak spots required strengthening with eight of the galvanized cables. It towers about eighty feet in height and is about four feet through the trunk. It is one of the largest in the grounds.

Another elm has a cavity that is twenty feet in length. This huge stretch of material is laid off in blocks, giving the appearance of a human backbone, so made to permit the tree to bend naturally when swayed by the wind. Without such a system, a heavy wind would break the tree.

Another small elm has a cavity caused by the main trunk of the tree being blown out in a storm some years ago. It was sawed off square and the tree left exposed to the weather. A serious cavity resulted. A wonderful piece of work was here accomplished by the "tree dentists." Under the direction of Mr. Perry, the decayed wood was entirely removed with mallets and chisels, and the weak parts were securely braced by bolts and lock nuts inside the tree. Holes were bored through the tree, bolts were inserted and the lock nuts placed on the inside of the tree. Cables were also placed between the branches two-thirds of the way up to make the tree sway altogether. Without this care, the individual branches would lash around in the wind and the tree would be ruined. With the branches swaying in unison,

FRENCH HYDRANGEA

MONEY

To make it is easy for some, hard for others. HYDRANGEAS and ROSES make money for all, if you get the right stock at the right price and treat it right. The latter is your business, the first two are ours. Our are again good, better now than this time last year. Our collection contains all the worthwhile French kinds, in any shade of pink or white, while others come blue. And don't forget Otaksa. We can supply them from 4-in., 5-in., 6-in. and 7-in. pots at 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c each; no charge for packing. Delivery from September on. Get them early and pot up while they are full of life; it means so much for your success.

ROSES

Ramblers and Baby Ramblers, all on their own roots.

The Ramblers have been grown in the field for two years, every one tied up to stakes to ripen the wood; they are good. Dorothy Perkins, Excelsior and Tausendschoen, 30c each and charges for boxes.

The Baby Ramblers have been in the field for one year and have done well. The strongest only will be lifted. Do not compare them with budded stock, but as to blooming, they will do as well or better. Baby Rambler, Baby Tausendschoen, Clothilde Soupert, Ellen Poulsen and Erna Teschendorff. 25c each, no charge for packing. Delivery from early November on.

This followed closely the work on the American white ash with its "backbone filling." The blocks referred to are from four to six inches long and between them rubber roofing paper was placed to separate the sections. It is said that the durability of the paper does not count particularly, although it will last for a number of years, because its work was accomplished in the separation of the segments as they were put in—water cannot get in the cracks.

PEST ON PLUMS.

The plum web-spinning sawfly is distributed generally over South Dakota, but it is the eastern half of the state that suffers most severely from the ravages of the larvæ of this pest. The larvæ are gregarious and live and feed in webs which they spin about the leaves and twigs of their food plants. The foliage of plum trees and sandcherry bushes constitutes the preferred food of the pest and such trees and bushes may be entirely defoliated during June and July.

The adult insects make their appearance during the latter part of May or early June. After mating, each female lays forty-six eggs on an average and these, after a period of five to seven days, give rise to larvæ, or "worms." The "worms" feed for thirteen to twenty-three days and at the end of this period they fall to the ground, enter it to a depth of one to ten and one-half inches and hollow out cells, inside of which they pass the remainder of the summer, and all of the fall, winter and early spring. With the approach of warm weather in the spring, the larvæ change to pupæ and these give rise to

THE Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association held a field day at the Cherry Hill Nurseries of the T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co., West Newbury, Mass., and the Boxford Nursery of Harlan P. Kelsey, August 24, leaving Horticultural hall, Boston, at 8:30 a. m. A shore dinner was a feature of the day's program.

THE Everbear Nurseries Co., of Winter Haven, Fla., has applied to the governor for articles of incorporation. The amount of capital stock of the corporation is to be $500,000. Until the first meeting of stockholders in May, 1922, the business of the corporation is to be transacted by A. H. DeVane, president; John A. Snively, vice-president, and W. H. Lewis, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors will consist of A. H. DeVane, John A. Snively, W. H. Lewis, E. N. Morrow, J. C. Swindell and T. L. Wilson.

CONNECTICUT NURSERYMEN.

A pleasant day, good refreshments and the largest crowd that ever attended a summer outing of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association combined to make Thursday, August 18, a memorable one in the annals of that organization.

The entertainment committee, composed of Paul Hubbard and Walter Campbell, made an effort to secure the use of the new state park at Madison. Lack of facilities at that place made it necessary to fall back on the old reliable place, Lake Compounce, at Bristol.

So, with few exceptions, every nurseryman, with his family, hied himself over to Compounce, where Messrs. Pierce and Norton did themselves justice with an old-time sheep bake.

Of special interest on the program of sports was the ball game between two teams captained by President Gottschalk and Secretary Rippin. Mr. Rippin could not get his spitball working, with the result that Mr. Gottschalk's team walked off with the game.

At a short business session it was decided to hold the annual winter meeting at New Haven. The "pep" instilled into the organization by its present officers is sure to reflect itself once more in a record-breaking winter attendance.

"TREE DENTISTS" AT WORK.

The visitors to the convention of the Society of American Florists at the capital last week were much impressed with the work being done for the preservation of the many historic trees in the park which lies between the building where the lawmakers hold forth and the Congressional Library. The chief interest was in the Washington elm, which gets its name from the story which is wound around it in a romantic way.

The work of preserving this and the other well known trees is being done by the Davey Tree Expert Co., of Kent, O., under the supervision of Martin L. Davey and his assistant, H. K. Perry. The former recently completed a term in Congress, where he became well known because of his knowledge of trees, and when it became apparent that some of the beauties of the Capitol grounds were being menaced by decay, he was called into consultation by the authorities.

Tree Surgery on Capitol Elms.

The "tree dentists," as they have come to be known, started on the Washington elm. This tree stands about seventy-five feet high. It was first treated by the Davey Tree Expert Co. about eleven years ago; since that time it has developed only three local cavities, located midway up the tree on the main limbs. It was necessary to brace some of the limbs by means of ⅜-inch galvanized double-strand cables, seven being used for this purpose.

The workers are treating an American elm, almost directly in front of the center of the Capitol, which is estimated to be about 80 years old. They have braced one limb by means of a cable and filled three small cavities. The vitality of this tree is reported as quite good. An English elm was found to have thirteen cavities of medium size. This tree is about 100 years old and its weak spots required strengthening with eight of the galvanized cables. It towers about eighty feet in height and is about four feet through the trunk. It is one of the largest in the grounds.

Another elm has a cavity that is twenty feet in length. This huge stretch of material is laid off in blocks, giving the appearance of a human backbone, so made to permit the tree to bend naturally when swayed by the wind. Without such a system, a heavy wind would break the tree.

Another small elm has a cavity caused by the main trunk of the tree being blown out in a storm some years ago. It was sawed off square and the tree left exposed to the weather. A serious cavity resulted. A wonderful piece of work was here accomplished by the "tree dentists." adults, or sawflies, in seven to ten days. Thus it is seen that there is but one generation of this pest per year.

While there are several effective parasites and predaceous enemies of this insect, they do not keep down the numbers of the neurotoma larvæ to the point where their presence upon plum trees or sandcherry bushes is negligible. Consequently, spraying or dusting must be resorted to. If spraying is practiced, one pound of lead arsenate in paste form or one-half pound in the powdered form should be used for each fifty gallons of water, but if dusting is adopted, then one pound of powdered lead arsenate should be diluted with fifteen pounds of air-slaked lime or powdered sulphur before it is applied to the foliage. The spray or dust should be applied to the fruit trees or bushes while the webs of this pest are still small. A bulletin regarding the sawfly has been issued by the Agricultural Experiment Station, at Brookings, S. D., bulletin No. 190.

mayor to take up the matter of street venders, that there is an ordinance against children being allowed to vend flowers on the street and that this matter has been referred to the chief of police for enforcement. "I do not believe your association will have further cause for complaint," he says in closing this letter, and it is noteworthy that the hordes of children who had been on the streets selling flowers have been notable by their absence since the committee's call. Army, through the banquet tendered him at the New Washington Hotel by the Italian Commercial Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Salter, of Minneapolis, have been house guests of William Desmond for some time and have been the honor guests at several entertainments attended by local florists.

Word has been received from R. G. Slicker, formerly located in this territory, that he will hereafter travel out of Buffalo, N. Y.

A nice run of general business marked the start of last week for McCoy's, so that the increased cut from the greenhouse was easily handled.

The City Flower Shop reports a good increase in the number of outgoing telegraph orders for flowers. Bert Linegar has returned from his vacation trip, which included a run down the Olympia peninsula to Mora and the ocean.

Paint and calcimine have been freely used to brighten up Kenney's Home of Flowers, pink being the wall color used, with gray trimmings.

A dahlia show was held last week by the Orpheum Floral Co., with more than fifty varieties of this popular flower exhibited in the show window. A good sale of bulbs followed this showing.

Perry, Ia.—C. E. Louwerse, who formerly traded as Louwerse & Co., operating the Perry Greenhouse, has reëstablished himself at 1309 Second street, where he has opened a retail store. "Heavy losses, caused mostly by the poor stock some of the jobbers and wholesale houses in our trade persist in sending out," says he, "caused us to go to the wall, but through the kindness of some of our many friends we are enabled to keep on in the business in which we have grown up."

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

FROM STEAM TO WATER.

I have a greenhouse, 21x90 feet, heated with steam and I wish to heat with water. The house has 6-foot eaves, with three feet of glass and three feet of wood. I have a boiler large enough to heat two houses this size, as I expect to build another soon. I have 300 feet of 2-inch pipe and 1,200 feet of 1¼-inch. Can I use the 2-inch pipe for the mains and the 1¼-inch for the returns, which will be under the benches? The boiler is in a 5-foot pit. The coldest weather we have ever had was 18 degrees below zero. I desire to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees. E. K.—Mo.

We should prefer to use 2½-inch flow pipes and 2-inch returns for a house ninety feet long, but, by using a circulator, there should be no trouble in securing a good circulation when 2-inch flows and 1¼-inch returns are used. Run four flows, placing one on each side wall and the others on the purlin posts, and connect each flow with a coil of three 1¼-inch returns.

CHOOSING PIPING.

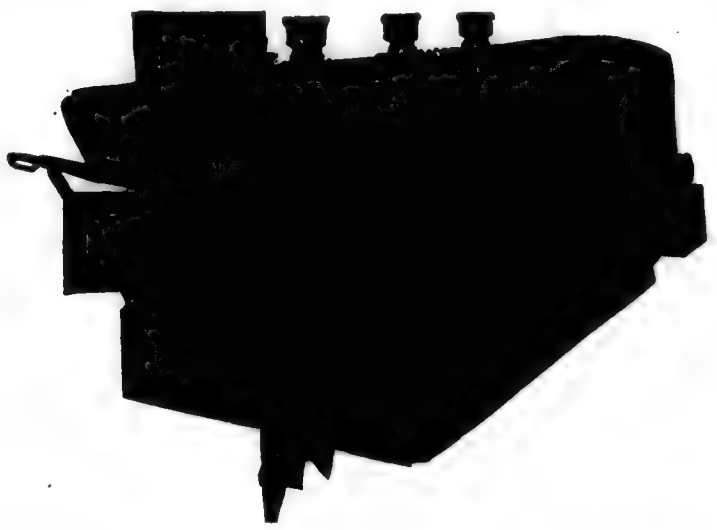
We should like to know the best way to pipe a greenhouse, 27 x 50. It is five feet six inches to the gutter and fourteen feet to the ridge. It has three and one-half feet of glass in the south wall and twenty inches of glass in the north wall. It must be heated to 60 degrees in zero weather. We had two small houses in the same place and used two 2-inch flows and two 2-inch returns from the boiler. The boiler is fifty feet from the end of the house.

C. P. S.—Ky.

It would be advisable to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns for the house described. Place one flow four feet below the ridge and the other on the side wall plates. Connect each flow with a coil of four 2-inch returns located below the flows. If the weather is likely to remain at zero for periods of long duration, it would be advisable to use five returns in each coil.

HARD OR SOFT COAL?

We are installing a Lord & Burnham heating system in our greenhouses, consisting of one W-36-6 hot water boiler and 3,400 feet of 2-inch pipe in coils. The greenhouses consist of four connected 18x75-foot ridge and furrow houses, with one 2-foot wall on the west side and three feet of sashes. They are protected on the north end by a work shed and the roof of a house on the east



BOILER BUYING

Not so long ago it was easy to sell almost anything. But to sell nowadays you have got to show the goods. You must show a man that he is getting full value for every penny or he will not buy.

A high standard of quality has made it always easy to sell Kroeschell Boilers, and right now in these times of balky buying, when other boiler factories are practically shut down, more Kroeschells are being bought than ever before.

Growers are buying Kroeschell Boilers because they know they are getting full value for every penny; because they have learned that there is no other boiler as efficient for greenhouse heating,

Write us a letter today and we will point out to you in clear facts why the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler is your best buy.

The Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler has the highest standard of heating values. Immense Self-cleaning Heating Surface, Longest Fire Travel, Perfect Combustion, Free Circulation, Thin Waterways, Honest Working Capacities, Unequaled Fuel Economy.

Engineering Advice and Quotations cheerfully submitted—Let us know your requirements

WHEN YOU BUY — GET A KROESCHELL "THE BOILER OF UNEQUALED FUEL ECONOMY"

KROESCHELL BROS. CO., 444 W. Erie Street CHICAGO, ILL.

Can Ship At Once

Just because it takes a whale of a lot of money to make up a stock of big steel boilers, most concerns make only to order.
That's why you have to give your order so far in advance.
Up to this year, that has been our method, also.
But this season we figured that a lot of you growers would put off buying until the last minute possible.
You would just naturally put it off to make sure of getting every possible price reduction

That meant some of you would delay ordering until it would be too late to make up a boiler for you.

So we invested a lot of money in materials and made up a good stock of steel boilers, just as we have always done with our Cast Iron ones.
That's why we can now fill your order at once.
Order received today, can be shipped tomorrow.

side is flush with the grade. There are 6,500 feet of glass in the houses, which are heated to a temperature of 50 degrees at night. As we are changing from steam to hot water, we are at a loss to know what kind of fuel to buy, and should like some information on the subject, especially a comparison of costs of soft and hard coal. We are advised by Lord & Burnham Co. to use hard coal in their boilers, but we have always used soft coal. Hard coal, egg and pea, costs about $13 a ton delivered and soft coal costs about $7.50. How much soft coal and how much hard coal would be needed for an average winter? Would the consumption of hard coal be enough smaller to somewhat nearly equalize the difference in costs, or would the only advantage be the ease of firing? If we purchase hard coal, is it a good plan to use egg and pea in combination, the pea for quick firing and as a bank over the egg? If so, how many tons of each should we purchase for the winter's supply? F. G.—N. Y.

So much depends upon the quality of the coal, especially if it is soft coal, that we cannot give a definite reply to your questions. At the prices mentioned, if both are of good quality, we should consider the soft coal the cheaper, but in most sections soft coal sells for from $9 to $10 per ton, if of good quality. Hence, we judge that the soft coal mentioned is not of the best and may prove to be the dearer.

Since soft coal requires a grate considerably larger than hard coal requires, it is advisable to use a boiler rated at nearly twice the actual radiating surface. As near as we can estimate from the data given, about 1,650 square feet of radiation will be required for the four houses. This means that to use soft coal a boiler rated for 3,300 square feet of radiation will be required. We are not advised regarding the rating of a W-36-6 boiler.

An average of six tons per month for the heating season will be required if hard coal is used. At the same cost per ton we prefer egg to pea coal, although the latter answers well for banking, and, at a somewhat reduced price per ton, the pea coal might be used to advantage for this purpose, using one-half as much as of the egg. From twenty-five to fifty per cent more soft than hard coal will be used.

IMPROVING A CHIMNEY.

We are planning to erect a greenhouse in addition to the present one. The new house will be 16x48 feet, and we desire to put in a boiler sufficient to heat both. In the new house there will be 6-foot walls of board, with two feet of glass in the south side of the house. The present house has been heated with hot air flues, but we desire to change to hot water and we want to know how large a boiler can be used with a chimney 8x12 inches inside. There is a partition in our chimney. Would it be possible to make an opening in the partition where the furnace pipe enters and then take out enough at the top of the chimney to make an opening 12x16 inches? N. D. B.—Ia.

It is not quite clear as to what changes in the chimney are suggested, but it appears that the chimney has two flues, each 8x12 inches, and it is proposed to make an opening between them at the point where the smoke pipe enters. This would considerably increase the efficiency of the chimney, but would not double its capacity. Just how large a boiler could be used with such a chimney depends considerably upon the construction of the boiler. Whether the chimney will be large enough for a boiler that will answer for the two houses will depend both on the size of the houses and the temperature desired. If the present house is of the same size as the new one, 16x48 feet, with two feet of glass in one wall, and a temperature of 50 degrees will suffice, a boiler with a grate twenty-five inches in diameter will suffice. For such a boiler a flue 8x12 inches in cross section would suffice, although it is advisable that the two flues be connected.

MORE HEAT WHEN WANTED.

I am selling my house, 20 x 100, to a college and the college is going to build an additional house, 40 x 100. These houses are to be heated by steam from the main heating plant. I have about 1,000 feet of 1½-inch pipe, 100 feet of 2-inch pipe and nearly 300 feet of 3-inch and 3½-inch pipe. How can I best use this and shall I need any extra? The houses are to be used for growing lettuce, carnations and bedding plants, and for experimenting by classes in agriculture. B. A. A.—Ind.

If the houses are well built and there is no glass in the side walls, the small house can be heated to 50 to 52 degrees by using one 2-inch overhead main and eight 1¼-inch returns. All of the returns may be under the side benches or two of them may be placed under the middle bench. If there is glass in the side walls, run an additional return for each thirty inches of glass. The new house will require two 2-inch flow pipes on the purlin posts and ten 1½-inch returns, most of which should be on or near the side walls.

The flow pipes in the houses will require 200 additional feet of 2-inch pipe, and 800 feet of 1¼-inch pipe will be used for the returns in the small house. The 3-inch pipe will answer for the main flows, but enough 1½-inch pipe will be required for connecting the coils with the boiler. In case either house is to be used for bedding plants, which require 60 to 62 degrees, two additional returns will be needed in the narrow house and four in the wide house, together with an additional flow pipe. We should advise piping one of the houses so that 60 degrees may be secured when desired.

The Market.

Little change was noticed in business conditions last week, but there seems to be general satisfaction among all the retailers. Funeral work has been plentiful and stock of all kinds has cleared well. There have been no large orders for this purpose, but the small ones have been numerous. There was an increase in gladioli each day last week and the quality of the season's production is all that could be asked. Exceptionally fine Pride of Goshen is seen and sells well as one of the better varieties. Schwaben and America are close seconds. Good Chicago White are seen and move well. The supply of asters is also on the increase and splendid pinkish lavender ones are seen. These, with the large white, bring good returns. There is also a good supply of the smaller varieties on the market. A fair supply of Lilium rubrum is seen and moves well. Carnations are in small supply.

Sweet peas are poor and only a few are seen. Dahlias have made a better showing the last week, but they do not sell extra well. Outdoor-grown snapdragons are received frequently and move well. Pink and hardy larkspur is in the market and sells well. Buddleia, lupine and salpiglossis are becoming plentiful and sell readily for basket work. Candytuft, yellow tiger lilies, annual gypsophila and gaillardias are plentiful and sell at summer prices. Easter lilies are scarce, only a few reaching us occasionally. Coreopsis, bachelor's buttons and helichrysums are all in good supply. Roses are reaching us in far better condition since the extremely hot weather has gone. They are fuller in bloom and the foliage is good. Russell, Premier, Columbia, Ward, Ophelia, Scott Key, Maryland, Butterfly and Crusader reach us and sell well. Brunners do not receive a heavy call just now. Valley is not plentiful, but the demand is good. There is no particular demand for orchids. There is a good demand for maidenhair fern, Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri. Some good strings of smilax have reached us recently.

Various Notes.

Two beautiful silver cups given by J. B. Keller Sons and George T. Boucher, and a handsome silver flower basket by the Hart & Vick seed store are the prizes for the best exhibit of flowers by nonprofessionals at the flower show, to be held at Exposition park October 5 to 10, during exposition and horse show week. Local florists are planning to make elaborate displays and the decorations by the park department will surpass those of previous years.

MR. GROWER

The work attached to the growing of Chrysanthemums and tying them to a stake can be more successfully done with the use of "Wire Ties."

Northport, L. I., N. Y., June 7, 1921.

Mr. Wm. F. Buschardt, Baltimore, Md.

Dear Sir:

Having tried out your "Wire Ties" on Chrysanthemums, we should indeed be sorry to go back to string or raffia, as your wire tie is a much better and a far quicker way of tying up Mums.

There is also a great saving of time when flowers are cut, as one tie answers for the entire plant.

Wishing you the best of success, I am,

Truly yours,

J. Geo. Jurgens.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION

Don't You Overlook These Vital Things About Water's Part in Your Crop's Success

If giving your plants a drink was all you did in watering, the dry weather wouldn't matter so much. But water to a plant is just like water to a boiler; it's just water until it's converted into steam. As water, it's just water. As steam, it's power ready to work for you.

Water is just as surely a plant's horse power, after it has dissolved the fertilizers in the soil so the roots can absorb them.
Unless they are so dissolved not a single mouthful can the plant get.

Water it is that makes it possible for the plant foods to be carried freely to every part of the plant.
Water it is that brings the nitrogen of the air down into the soil.
Water it is that loosens the soil up when delivered gently, the Skinner System way, so that the air can get down into the soil and freely unlock the nutritive elements.
Water it is that, evaporating through the leaves, carries off the plant's waste or poison.
Water it is that keeps the pores open so the plant can breathe.
Water, and only water, is it of which practically 85% of all plants actually are made.
Skimp that water and you see how vital the injury is. Give it all it needs, so it has no struggle to go in search for it; and all its strength goes into growth and blooms.

That's why the Skinner System of Irrigation doubles and triples a crop.
It's why it more than pays for itself the first season.

Give us the length and width of the piece of ground you want to irrigate, and we will send you some interesting facts.

The Market.

Considering the torrid weather, business has been good, but good stock is scarce. There are some good roses, Francis Scott Key, especially, standing the heat in good order. A few growers are cutting some from their young stock, which is of much better quality. Carnations are almost out of the running now. There is an abundance of outdoor stock, with gladioli heading the list. The season has been especially favorable and the quality of stock is above the average.

Various Notes.

Many of the trade are enjoying respite from the heat in the nearby mountains. Adolph Konecny is in Estes Park and G. L. Roberts is also enjoying a short rest there. The latter is manager of the Elitch Gardens Co.

Homer Hill, Fred Malers, E. L. Hill, carnation man for Conrad Lengenfelder, and R. E. Hill, of the Elitch Gardens Co., have returned from a successful fishing trip.

Charles Meyer has returned from Chicago and his brother, Fred, has left for Chicago.

Among the visitors last week were J. G. Angel, of Oklahoma City, and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Simonson, of McPherson, Kan.

C. A. Benson has completed his three new houses and has them planted now.

Two steel-frame houses are being built for Charles France by Mr. Coole, formerly with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. Mr. Coole has also laid out Elitch's steel-bar houses and has just finished a range of four steel-framers for A. Mauff.

Charles Tracy has installed a new boiler and is now building a new house, 25x80.

The Market.

Business has been improving. A heavier demand has kept almost all available stock utilized. Roses have been the most plentiful of all. The quality has been good in most cases, although there are some inferior ones.

Gladioli have not been so abundant. Asters are scarce. A great many more could be used and the supply is almost fought over. Some good ones are coming in, although the majority are inferior.

Lilies are also limited in number, with the trade clamoring for more. A few rubrum, Easter and gold-band lilies are seen.

A small number of short-stemmed carnations are to be had. There are some delphiniums, zinnias, larkspurs, hydrangeas, phlox and other summer outdoor varieties.

Funeral work has been a heavy item, causing the acceleration of business.

Various Notes.

Irwin Bertermann has returned from Washington, where he attended the S. A. F. convention, thoroughly enjoying himself. John Bertermann and family are at Lake Wawasee.

Glen Moore, of Rushville, and David B. Kelly, of Franklin, visited in the city this week.

While the Carlstedts are away on their vacation, Herman Junge is again seen around the Smith & Young commission house. Mr. and Mrs. Carlstedt attended the S. A. F. convention while east.

John Grande, Sr., has been cutting some good carnations.

William Hack is cutting some good gladioli.

Leo J. Rickenbach has a fine patch of late gladioli just coming into bloom.

Mrs. Fred Ross, of the Ross Floral Co., Greenwood, has some good asters.

Meikel & Warner, of Noblesville, have an attractive new delivery car.

The Market.

Another week of cooler weather, with several rains, has improved things a little. Outside stock looks much better and is in ample supply. Zinnias, asters, delphiniums, tuberoses and marigolds are all coming in steadily and little is going to waste. However, business seems uncertain. The market, although better, is still unsettled. Roses are much better and find a ready sale. Gladioli are scarce, but have not jumped in price.

Various Notes.

Several of the trade received their shipments of Dutch bulbs last week and a few have received the first of their Paper Whites.

Louis Kirch, who has just returned from the convention, was much pleased with things in general. Mr. Kirch, one of Louisville's oldest florists, commented on the displays and also on the president's address, which, he says, was impressive. William Mann and Henry Fuchs also make the same report.

Benching carnations and mums has been completed through the city and all are in fine condition. Despite the fact that some carnations were lifted during the dry weather, they look good and are promising for fall. E. G. R.

The Market.

Flowers are scarce now, even though it is the dull summer period. Prices, however, are not so high as they were last summer. Gladioli are still used freely in floral designs, although not to so great an extent as they were before asters came into the market. Growers report that chrysanthemum plants are fine and a good crop of blooms is expected. The first of the early yellow varieties arrived in the market last week.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros. report that they got the first mums sold in Newark this season. They were more than a week earlier than usual.

Henry A. Strobell states that he has had a large amount of funeral work recently.

Fred P. Wolfinger has had an attractive combination fruit and flower display in his window. Artistic fruit baskets were arranged in the front of the window, with a background of ferns and flowers. Although the fruit was artificial, it looked natural and the whole window made a pleasing effect.

HAIL AT WICHITA.

Loyd C. Bunch is the secretary and treasurer of the Kansas State Florists' Association, which held its annual meeting August 4 and 5. Mr. Bunch was there all through the meeting, attending to his various association duties, although during the day of August 5 he received word that his greenhouse range at Fredonia had been hit by hail. When he arrived home, he found that the range had, indeed, been hit by hail. The storm lasted ten minutes, left only a few squares of glass in the whole range and destroyed all the stock, even breaking several hundred 4-inch pots, which were standing on the benches.

Mr. Bunch reports that the cleaning up is progressing nicely, and that the reglazing is well along this week. He said: "If the storm had only cleaned out the putty as well as it did the glass, I should have been saved a great deal of work and expense."

A wise business man figures costs by the year, right down the line, and especially so if his business has to do with greenhouses. He knows, either by experience or from a close study of the subject, that the only businesslike method of determining material costs in greenhouse building is by the year—first cost and up-keep cost.

CYPRESS, "the wood eternal" for greenhouse construction, is positively the cheapest wood to use, figured by its years on the job, without repairs or replacements.

All good constructors in these days are insisting on genuine "Tide-Water" Cypress, "The Wood Eternal"—every board and bundle bearing the famous Cypress Trade-mark.

Vol. 3, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is a little book filled with a big bunch of facts and figures about greenhouse construction—profitable reading. There are 48 books in the "Library," all of which give useful facts and plans about HOW, WHEN and WHERE to use CYPRESS, "The Wood Eternal," AND WHY. Which one shall we send you?

EVERTITE
GLAZING CEMENT

Applied easily, quickly and economically with the new "Oh Boy" automatic glazing gun.

EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT remains elastic at all times—forming a waterproof and airtight joint over the sashbar. It will stand the extreme expansion and contraction that a greenhouse is subject to and will not check or crack—nor will it harden. It lasts from five to ten years.

BULBS

AMERICA FOR THE AMERICANS!!

You need no longer be dependent on The Netherlands for your Tulip supply.

Since 1914 we have raised Tulips in Michigan with great success and we are strong for them. You, too, can raise your own supply of Tulips. (See official report by the Department of Agriculture in the Florists' Review of May, 1921.)

If you are alive to a paying proposition, act at once and take advantage of this.

Owing to limited space on our farm at Grand Rapids, we are forced to sell the following named varieties at a sacrifice:

Early Tulips, Yellow Prince and Artus.

May-flowering, or Cottage Tulips, Caledonia, Gesneriana Lutea, Gesneriana Spathulata, Golden Crown, Ida and La Merveille.

Darwin Tulips, Clara Butt, Gretchen and Inglescombe Yellow.

Planting stock, 2-year-old.....$6.00 per 1000
Planting stock, 1-year-old..... 3.00 per 1000

Grasp this: Next year you will pay $4.00 per 1000 duty on Tulips. Please send cash with order.

LETTER FROM FERD. FISCHER.
To My Customers in America:
Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.
I have paid strict attention to my salmon and red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed soon will be offered by the American Bulb Co., who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Co. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world. Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER.

POINSETTIAS

TRUE CALIFORNIA POINSETTIAS.

This stock is grown from stock plants grown in California. They can be grown quite different from the old variety of Poinsettias. Last winter at times we would grow them real dry, then real wet, then in a 70 degree temperature, again in a 50 degree temperature to try them out.

After such treatment, we grew them with beautiful foliage from the ground up, and with an extra large bloom of the most dazzling splendor.

We are offering 2-in. stock of this same variety, as we grow no other, at $10.00 per 100.
Cash with order.

"NO KICKS"

Along in January we received a most interesting letter from The Japan Seed Company, of South Norwalk, Conn.

It was so 100 per cent near the kind of a way we like to have everybody feel that we do a stroke of work for, that we promptly wrote for permission to publish it.

They gave us full permission and then added, "Considering that last year we had to Kick with everyone we did business with, it is a pleasure for us to be able to speak a good word for Hitchings when it is due them."

Below is their first letter:

"At this time we would like to give a word of praise for Mr. McArthur, Jr., and his assistant. These two very capable, efficient mechanics were right on the job all the time, seeming to take a personal interest in the work they were doing and which they did to our entire satisfaction. Sending out men like these, certainly must make for pleasant business relations.

"The greenhouse we have is a Hitchings House about twelve years old and is 75 x 25. It was taken down three years ago and lay on the ground unprotected for one whole winter. Last fall we moved it over here, five miles; the whole house in six sections only; just piled gables and sides complete, onto a long farm wagon and pulled them over. It speaks something for a Hitchings House when we tell you that this was accomplished without even a sash having been split. Then we propped it up last fall with 2 x 4's, so that if the house could warp, it certainly had every chance in the world. This spring we put in our piers and moved the house onto them and the whole thing went together like a new house.

"Allow us to express our satisfaction with all the work you have done for us."

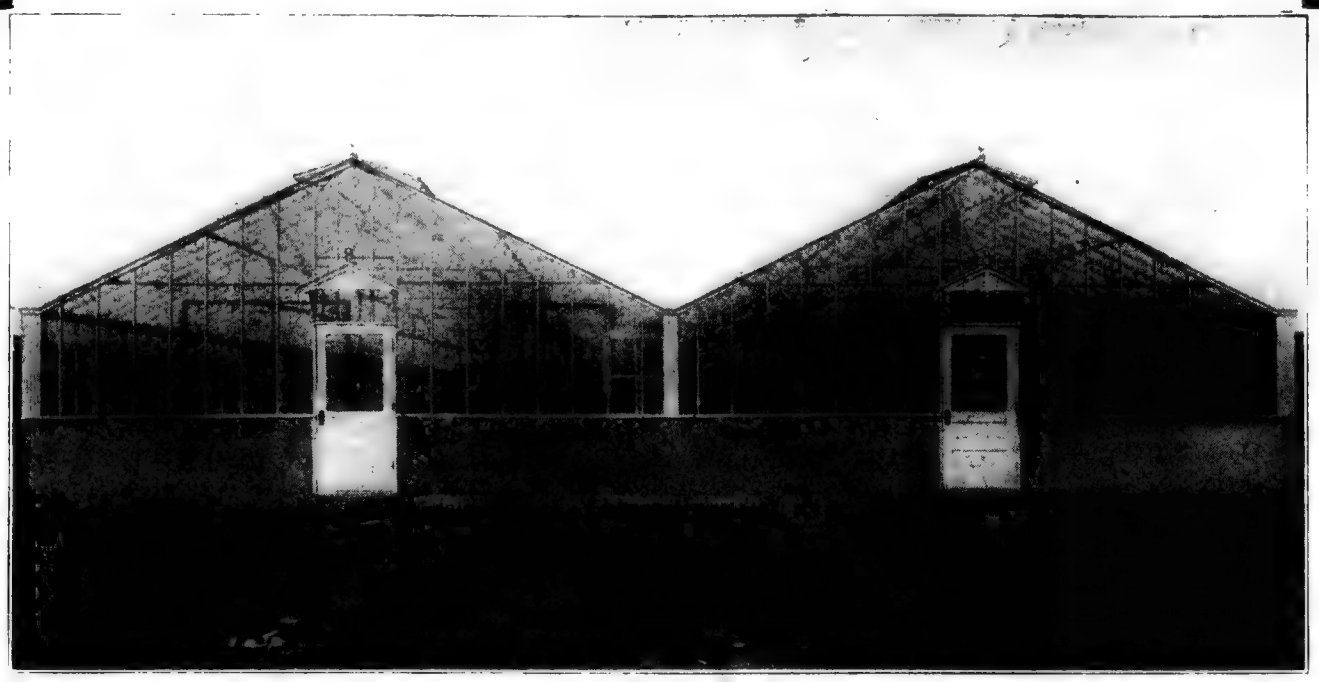
The Famous AGMCO Steel-Bar Was Awarded A Certificate

Everyone who saw this celebrated construction, set up full size at the Convention in Washington, acknowledged it as a wonderful step forward in greenhouse construction. You cannot afford to build until you know about the steel-bar house. It puts the old types out-of-date.



All you need to erect a steel-bar roof is a wrench, a screwdriver and a hammer. No screws or nails used. No cutting or fitting. Bars automatically spaced for glass. The simplest and most remarkable construction ever put out. Several patents applied for.

Pictures do not always do justice to the appearance of a greenhouse.

Take, for instance, the above houses which we recently built for the City of Chicago, Tuberculosis Sanitarium. You never saw a better job of concrete work in the walls, all straight as a die and cast smooth and of even consistency.

Gutters and purlins are straight and true. All joints in the woodwork are neatly made. The glass is evenly laid and the putty scraped off clean.

It's the kind of a job to be proud of and it's the kind we always do.

When do you want us to give you an estimate?

Greenhouse Builders

Built The Unit Way

What queer things ideas are!
So often you get one and don't know how you got it.
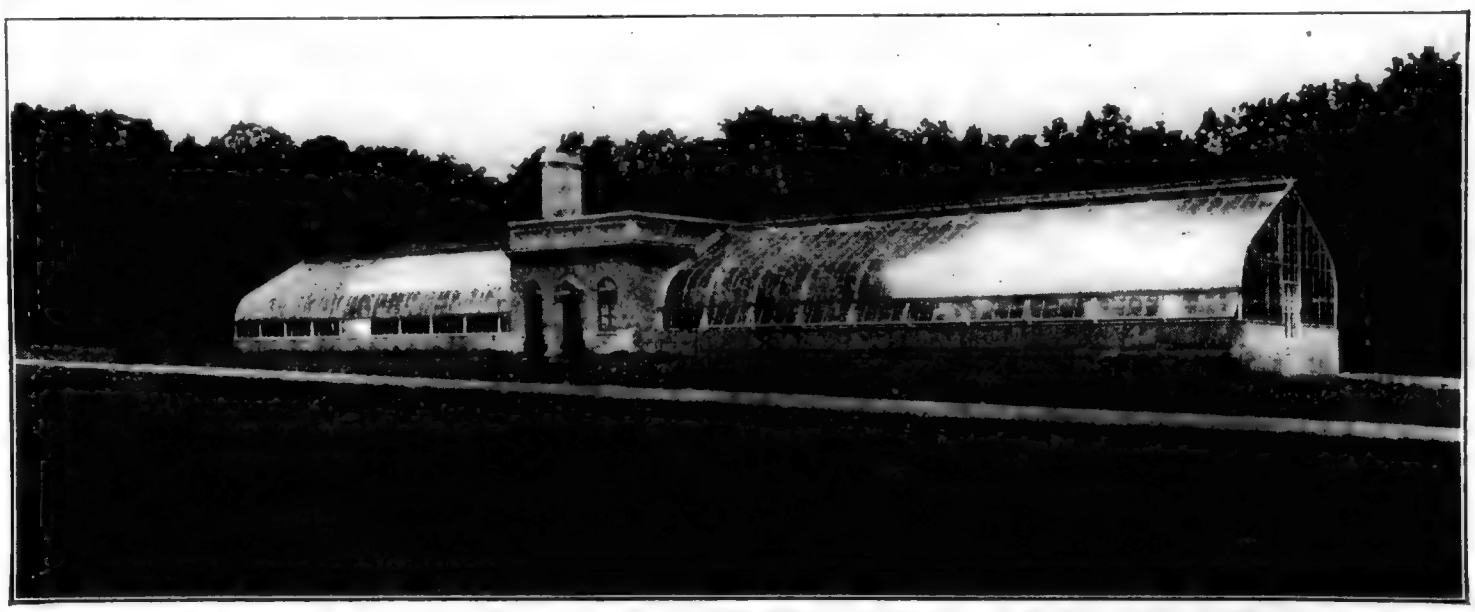
Then again you just start to put to practical use one idea and without rhyme or reason up pops another.
That's exactly how our unit way of building happened.

Mr. Burnham was going by a furniture window one day several years ago, and stopped to look at the display of sectional book cases.
The sign told how you could buy one or more sections at a time, and add others as you needed them.
There were sketches and photographs showing different arrangements of the sections from just the usual two sections and base, up to a large group combined with a writing desk.

Fifteen minutes afterward he came into the office all smiling and told us what he had seen and how it was exactly the same principle on which we built and planned our Iron Frame greenhouses, whether for growers or private use.
Then he said let's call it "The Unit Plan." So we did.
Each house in this Unit Plan is made up of sections either 8 feet 4 inches long, or 12 feet 6 inches.
The length of the house depends on the number of sections used.
A range, in turn, is only a group of houses or units.

When we plan a layout, always it is done unit by unit. This means that each house is directly considered in relation to each other. Or if but one house or unit is to be erected, then we so plan it, so that other units can be added both economically, while at the same time giving the best growing conditions.
Done this unit way of ours, you know when you start, exactly where you are started for, and therefore where you will eventually land.



Take this layout below for example: The work room and left hand unit were first erected.
Two years afterward the right hand one was added.
The first unit was complete unto itself and decidedly attractive.
The adding of the second unit simply completes the front or ornamental part of the group as originally planned.
Later a connecting passage can be added on the rear of the work room and a one unit house full length of the front ones, divided into as many compartments as practical.
Still another unit house can then be added back of that, and so on.
Done this unit way, every move is complete unto itself. The layout can always be practical and attractive.

Let's sit down together and talk over and lay out a unit plan of a range for you. Prices are down.
Say when and where and we'll be there.

"STANDARDIZED GRADING OF ROSES"
"Uniformity Needed"

The following are extracts from the address by Joseph Kohout at the S. A. F. convention at Washington, August 18, 1921, printed in the Florists' Review, in the Convention Number, page 42:

"The standardization of the grading of cut flowers" * * * "the need of which has long been felt all over the country," * * * "for no system whatsoever has been used."

We call attention that such a system has been in use over a year, by Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Mr. Kohout related a suppositional case, as follows: "Let us suppose an out-of-town retailer finds he needs 100 Roses about 24 inches long. He will look in the trade paper and find that Roses listed as 'Fancy long' are priced at 20 cents. He wires for 100 'Fancy long,' and receives Roses on 18-inch stems. He expected and required 24-inch. He wires to another house, same wording, and receives 36-inch Roses, which were their 'Fancy long,' whereas the 18-inch were the other house's 'Fancy long.'"

By Poehlmann's system this could not happen. The man needing 24-inch Roses would wire for 100 Roses, "Seconds," and 24-inch Roses he would get. There can be no misapprehension when you order from our Bulletin; it's as open as a book. The system generally in use in listing Roses, as Mr. Kohout states, is "Fancy long," "Extra," "Select," "Medium," and "Shorts." How does a retailer know what he is going to get, because what one wholesaler terms "Fancy long" would be the same length that another wholesaler would term "Medium," so that if you were to wire each of three houses for 100 "Fancy long" Roses you might get three different grades.

On the opposite page we submit our Current Price List for the purpose of showing our system, which is open to any and all wholesalers to adopt if they so desire.

GERANIUM

(REGISTERED)

Seedling of 1917.

A beautiful, brilliant pink, shading to white center. Immense trusses, composed of double flowerets. Flowerets measuring two inches in diameter.

Habit compact, bright green foliage, no Jonnell, prolific bloomer, flower stalks forming in every, or every other, joint, and quite often two from the same joint at the same time.

It is a self-branching and very early bloomer, an extra good pot plant or bedder.

A money maker for Mothers' and Decoration Day.

Plants will be ready November 1, 1921.

Out of 2¼-inch pots.

AUCTION SALES

Holland and French Grown BULBS

On Tuesday, September 20th, at noon we will offer at auction consignments of Holland and French grown bulbs. The Holland Bulbs will consist of Hyacinths, Tulips, Narcissi and Crocus; the French of French grown Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora and Lilium Candidum.

We have been advised by our Holland shippers that they are sending us very large shipments of Choice Bulbs for our Fall Auction Sales.

If you have not already ordered bulbs for the fall season, we would suggest that you wait for these auction sales, as you will be enabled to secure bulbs at prices considerably lower than those for which they can be imported on direct orders.

We will also offer on above date local consignments of Potted Plants, such as Palms, Ferns, Rubbers, Dracaenas, etc., and of Nursery Stock. such as California Privet, Home grown acclimated Evergreens, etc.

Send us your name and address if you wish copies of our Auction Circulars mailed to you.

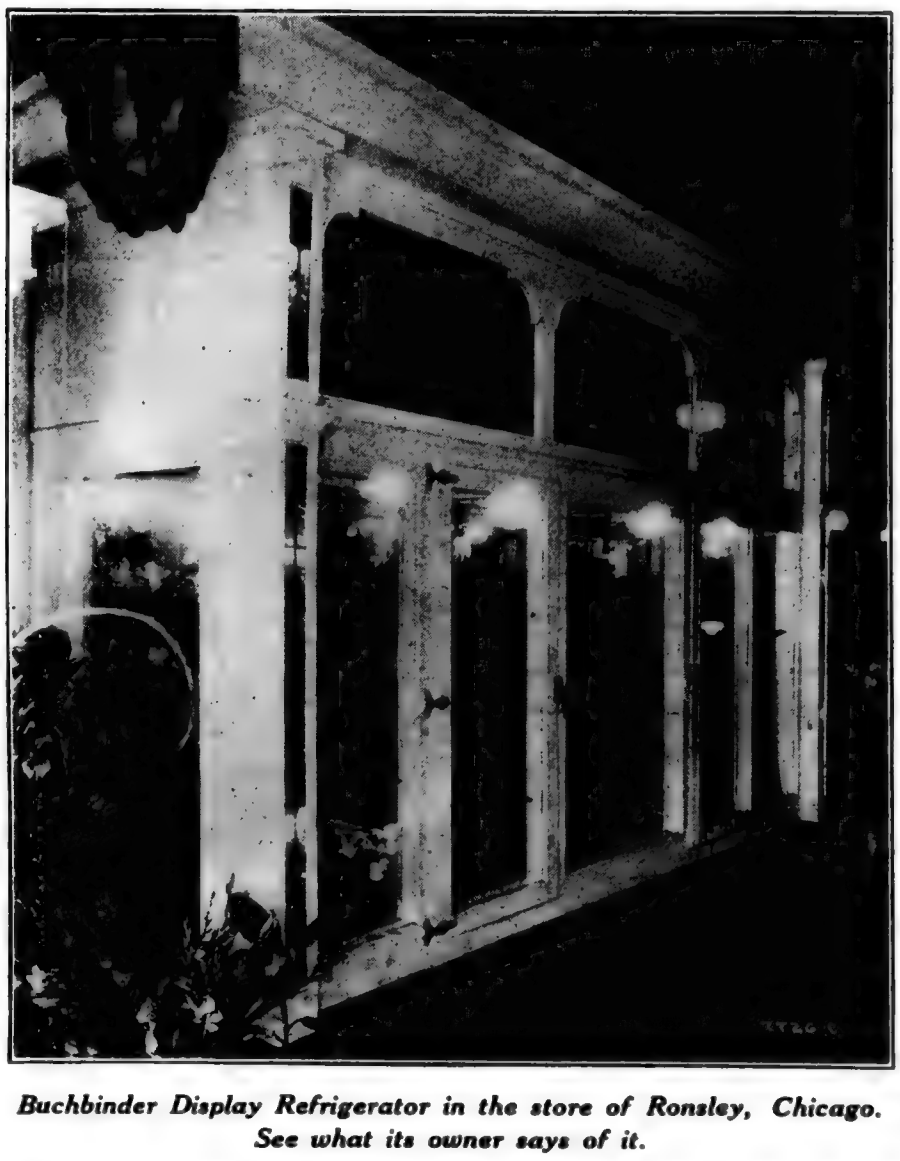
A. H. Schneider, of Oak Park, Ill., said: "In my other store I have a Buchbinder refrigerator which has been in use over five years. I am more than pleased with the way this refrigerator has held up." Consequently Mr. Schneider's new store will have a complete outfit of Buchbinder fixtures, including a large display refrigerator.

John Healy, of Oak Park, Ill., says: "After using another refrigerator for only a few months I discovered I had made a mistake and I am glad to know I soon will have a larger and better Buchbinder refrigerator, also the new improved work bench and counter."



Fred Kirchhoff, 4711 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, says: After talking to a number of prominent Chicago florists who have Buchbinder refrigerators and flower store fixtures, I was thoroughly convinced of the merit of the Buchbinder product and gave them an order for a large display refrigerator."

Fred Greager, 6952 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, says: "After seeing John Michal's new set of Buchbinder refrigerators and flower store fixtures and other outfits installed by your firm, I am glad to place an order with you for a new Buchbinder display refrigerator."

John Michal, 7045 Stony Island Ave., Chicago, says: "Six years ago you sold me a complete set of fixtures, together with a beautiful refrigerator. Now that my new establishment is ready I unhesitatingly give your firm an order for a large refrigerator and complete set of fixtures."

Morton Nielsen, 3346 Lawrence Ave., Chicago, says: "When I saw that men like George Asmus, of Schiller the Florist, and other leading men had installed Buchbinder refrigerators and store fixtures it seemed to me I could not go wrong by equipping my new store with Buchbinder fixtures."

These, like many hundreds of florists throughout the United States, know that Buchbinder refrigerators and store fixtures cannot be better.

Gentlemen:-

I want to let you know how thoroughly I am pleased with the fixtures you installed in my new store. You promised me one of the most attractive lay-outs in Chicago and I am pleased to say I got it.

The big display refrigerator has been in use long enough to prove to me it keeps flowers in good condition longer than any other refrigerator I ever had. I also have noted a decrease in the ice consumption.

I want to thank you for the prompt service given and to assure you that you are at liberty to refer any prospective customers to me. I never shall be too busy to say a good word for your work.

Very truly yours,

BIBLICAL LILY RANKS AMONG BEST

Thought to be the lily of the Bible, Lilium candidum has many sobriquets, such as Madonna, Annunciation, or St. Joseph's lily. Magnificent in the garden and useful to the florist, this lily deserves the praise it receives from this writer, who grows it splendidly.

By W. N. CRAIG.

BULBS of the ever-popular Madonna lily, Lilium candidum, usually arrive in America during September. The crop in the north of France is reported this year to be small and the bulbs, owing to the prolonged European drought, smaller than for some years. While there can be no doubt that this is the purest and most beautiful of all our hardy garden lilies, everyone does not succeed with it, and this article is penned with the intention of assisting some who may have failed with it and, perhaps, have become discouraged.

As L. candidum matures its bulbs early and commences quickly to make a circle of new leaves, it must be planted as soon as possible after being received. Not infrequently the bulbs will be found with both roots and leaves on them. In such cases, if the ground for them is not ready, they should be placed at once in 4-inch or 5-inch pots of sandy loam and stood in a coldframe, where they can be protected from drenching rains until established. The plants can, if necessary, be carried over winter in pots in a cold, unheated cellar, but they should be kept outdoors until they have had several freezings. They should be planted out in spring as soon as the ground is free from frost and workable.

Planting the Bulbs.

Where the ground is ready for the reception of bulbs in the fall, plant them immediately on arrival, to an average depth of four inches. Put a layer of broken charcoal below them; over this spread some coarse sand and cover the bulbs with sand. Let no fresh manure come near them. If you want to use manure, spread it on the surface and let the juices leach down. Used thus, manure is distinctly beneficial, while incorporated in the soil it would be harmful.

An excellent way for those having greenhouse facilities to grow Lilium candidum is to plant a number of bulbs in 10-inch or 12-inch pots or small tubs. I have used tubs up to fourteen inches in diameter, each containing a dozen bulbs. As some of the larger bulbs will throw two spikes each, such tubs make a magnificent show when in flower. Some years ago I was able not infrequently to get thirteen to fifteen flowers on the best stalks, but of late few carry more than eight or ten. These, however, when grown as suggested in a cool greenhouse, will attain a height of six feet, and when plunged in the garden or planted out—the former plan, however, is best—they produce a striking effect, especially when associated with hardly larkspurs, tracheliums or other blue flowers.

The bane of this lovely lily is the disease which sometimes attacks it, customarily just as the buds have developed. To prevent this, it pays to give a weekly spraying of Bordeaux mixture or some other fungicide from early spring until the buds show color. Do not wait until the disease has appeared; rather proceed on the assumption that prevention is better than cure.

Commercial Possibilities.

While some lilies are easily propagated from seeds, L. candidum is not one of these. At the Arlington experimental farms much has been done with L. longiflorum, but I believe success is not hoped for with the far more beautiful candidum. If only we could propagate the Madonna lily as easily as the newer Lilium regale, how happy we should be! A good number of the latter will flower in fifteen months from seed. Even with scale propagation, there would seem to be possibilities for some wide-awake growers. An ideal spot for such work, I have often thought, would be Cape Cod, in Massachusetts, where L. candidum grows well in many gardens. In one prominent nursery at West Barnstable, Mass., in this section, such lilies as auratum, speciosum in variety, Henryi, regale and others have proved commercial successes, and I hope that the beautiful but steadily diminishing candidum may prove tractable there. Some of the finest spikes of L. candidum I ever grew —which, when shown at an exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society some years ago, were awarded a cultural certificate—were grown at West Harwich, on Cape Cod.

The balmy southern states produce good longiflorum bulbs. I fear that they are too warm for the successful culture and propagation of candidum. Along the northern Pacific and Atlantic coasts would seem to be ideal locations for making successful commercial attempts with this most beautiful of all white lilies.

The principal commercial value of L. candidum is not as an Easter flower, but rather as a lily to be grown cold and flowered in June, when it is in demand for weddings. It will not stand forcing like longiflorum. Subjected to heat, the stalks are spindling and the flowers small and lacking in substance, compared with those produced in a comparatively low temperature. As the flower stalks develop, I find that a dose of liquid manure weekly is of great benefit.

IN EUROPE

Dewar's Observations Abroad.

Alexander P. Dewar, the manager of the seed store of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., Boston, arrived home from his European trip August 22. He was notified when at Marseilles of John K. M. L. Farquhar's death and hastened his return a number of weeks in consequence. Most of his time was spent in England, Scotland and France. He would have visited Holland and other countries had he not been obliged to hurry home. It was ten years since Mr. Dewar had been in Europe and, as he is a keen observer, his opinions on general conditions and the horticultural outlook were full of interest.

The long drought and extreme heat, with practically no rain falling for three months, had made the south of England and southern France almost like sierras. Grass on lawns and pastures was entirely brown. Wheat crops were fairly good. Potatoes had no size; turnips, mangels and other root crops were in a wretched condition. Leaves on shade trees were falling in showers and shrubs were wilted and shriveled almost beyond recognition. In the great London parks many thousands of people literally lived under the shade of the trees.

At Covent Garden.

In Covent Garden market, London, business was active in spite of the summer heat. Cut flowers were none too plentiful. Great quantities of single and double gypsophila were seen and numerous annuals and perennials rarely offered in this country. Roses were of poor quality, owing to the heat. Carnations are not thrown in heaps on the stands as they are here, but are packed in boxes by the growers and are reshipped from Covent Garden unopened. Enormous quantities of pale blue statice were being sold and wreaths of these flowers in the high-class flower stores were exquisite. Fresh wreaths are always on exhibition at the flower stores and customers can pick one out to suit themselves. Gloxinias, begonias, achimenes and other flowering plants were offered.

In France the flowers were much the same as in London and tasteful arrangements in the flower shops always invited one's attention. Far less material is used than is used here, but to a far better effect. So serious was the drought in France that it was impossible to purchase a salad in the south of France at any price. A prominent seed grower at Marseilles showed Mr. Dewar a bag containing about fifty pounds of seed and told him that was all the seed that had been obtained from an acre of plants, the normal yield for a year being 600 to 800 pounds.

Among Seedsmen.

Mr. Dewar was formerly in the noted London seed house of Hurst & Sons and made his headquarters there during this trip, calling also on Cooper, Taber & Co., Watkins & Simpson, and other large wholesale houses. All reported serious shortages in practically all flower seeds and a heavy decline in about all vegetable seeds. Beet seed is notably short. There was, however, a fairly good carryover of vegetable seeds, which will alleviate conditions somewhat. Seed trade conditions were rapidly approaching normalcy, and not only in the seed trade, but in other lines the people in Britain seemed optimistic as to the future.

He found the railroads almost tied up by the coal strike on his arrival. When he left factories were stocked to repletion with it, all the railroad dumps and sidings were full of coal and the demand from the householders, owing to the high prices, was negligible. As a consequence the miners were working only one or two days a week. The people said that they would use substitutes and do without coal in every way in order to force a drop in prices.

In Scotland, the north of England and the north of France, vegetation was much fresher than in the south of England and in the south of France. In spite of the heat and drought, the national sweet pea show at London in July was wonderful, 20-inch stems, carrying four flowers, being common. Royal Scot was the most admired novelty in the show, a new mammoth white of Stark's raising and acquired by Burpee, promising to create a sensation, outclassing all other whites. W. N. C.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—Against Arthur T. Boddington & Co., Inc., was filed a petition in bankruptcy August 27 by H. Langeler, who presented claims amounting to $747. Mr. Boddington has conducted a seed and bulb business at 128 Chambers street for a number of years. In the spring of 1915 a committee took charge of his affairs in order to satisfy creditors. The result was the incorporation of the business, most of the creditors receiving shares of stock for their claims.

BLUING PINK HYDRANGEAS.

What is the best method to use in making pink hydrangeas produce blue flowers and what are the best varieties to select for this purpose?

G. & S.—Ill.

It is commonly supposed that the use of small pieces of iron and especially iron filings in the soil will make pink hydrangeas turn blue. Certainly where the water and soil are impregnated strongly with iron, plants nearly always come blue instead of pink. In our own case plants which one year were pink will come blue the next and succeeding years without the use of iron at all. I have not tried the influence of iron on the pink French hydrangeas, like Radiant, Mme. Chautard and General de Vibraye, but on otaksa, which remains the standard variety for summer use.

At Newport, R. I., where unusual numbers of hydrangeas are grown, nearly all are blue and nothing is done to color them. Some growers aver that the use of alum in the water will turn pinks into blues, but the general opinion here and abroad is that the use of small pieces of iron in the soil is the best method of procedure where blue colors are wanted. The most intense blues we have are among the French hydrangeas. No iron is needed to make them come blue. These French hydrangeas do not stand up so well, however, as outdoor plants as the old otaksa.

IDEAS FOR WINDOW DISPLAYS.

Good display plans do something more than make immediate sales. They are a tonic to jaded buyers. Flowers should be the medium of the florist's window display; they are in themselves an attraction. But an occasional novelty brings in buyers. Here are some:

Do you pull down the window shade when you are changing the window? If you do, attach to the shade a large card containing a big question mark. Then place between the shade and the glass a smaller card reading:

WHEN THE QUESTION ARISES
You'll find right here the gift that will make any woman happy.

Letter a sign on an old music roll for player-piano, reading:

MUSIC TO HER EARS.
"I remembered that you liked violets."

Place a small bunch of flowers—one of the season's specials—in the center of the floor of your window, surrounded on three sides by mirrors. Use this sign:

DESERVES REFLECTION.
When did you last take her home any flowers?
Only ....

Place a large dictionary on the floor of the window, well to the front. Have it opened at the word "happiness." The word should be ringed with a heavy pencil. Behind the book have a sign:

FIND OUT WHAT HAPPINESS REALLY MEANS.
"Say It with Flowers."

Get an enthusiastic fisherman friend to lend you a nicely mounted specimen of a fish. Place it in the window with this sign:

A FISH OUT OF WATER.
How will you feel when you find he's sending her flowers—and you're not?

Get a desk telephone instrument with a short length of cord dangling from it. Put it in the window. The accompanying card should read:

IT'S NO USE TALKING.
"Say It with Flowers."

LOUISVILLE'S NEW STORE.

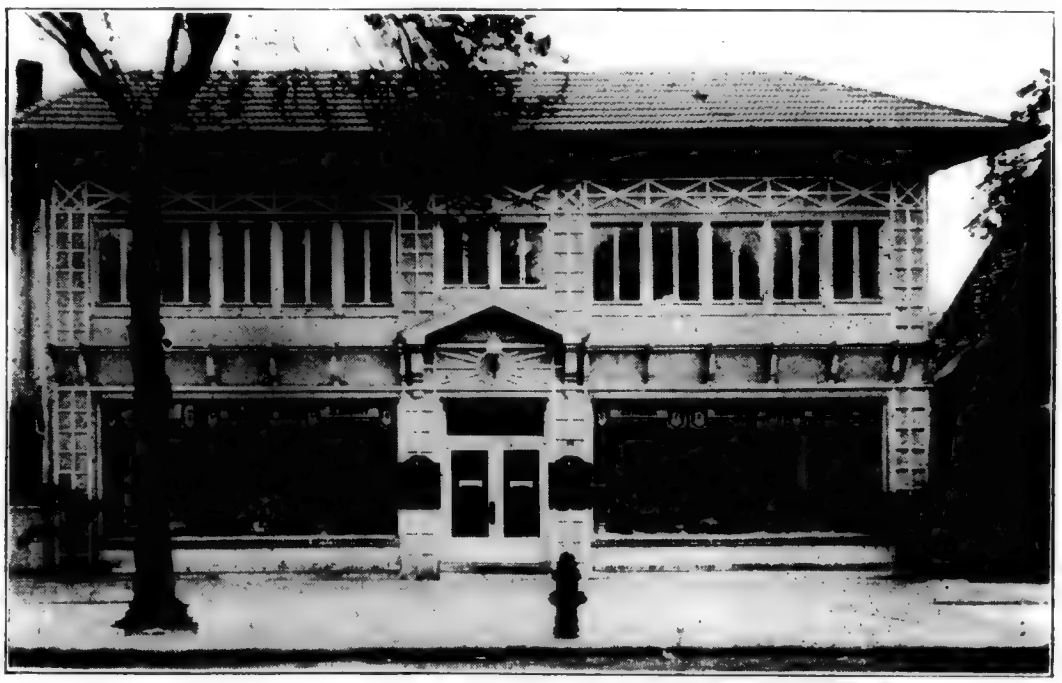
The champions of Kentucky can now add another cause for fame to the blue grass, the moonshine, the horse races and the traditional Kentucky colonel. This new cause for boasting comes in the form of a building recently completed and now occupied by Marret & Miller, at Louisville. As shown in the reproduction on this page, the new store is up in the front rank of large and attractive florists' establishments.

It is a building two stories high, forty feet wide and sixty feet deep. This allows plenty of room on the main floor for showing the stock and handling the customers, and plenty of room on the second floor to store the stock and have space for a workroom. The building is simple in its architecture, yet it is large enough and decorative enough to make it attractive and a striking sight. The spacious windows on either side of the door make an excellent display space for blooms and advertising material and also afford an unobstructed view of the well-arranged interior.

This new store is the outgrowth of an old business. The firm was organized in 1878 under the name of Rompen & Marret, with J. Edward Marret as the junior partner. This partnership lasted several years and then the business was taken over by Mr. Marret and operated under his name until January 1, 1918, forty years after it was started, when his son-in-law, J. S. Miller, purchased it. From that time until his death, which occurred June 26 of this year, Mr. Marret was inactive in the business, but it continued to run under the partnership name and Mr. Miller says he will not change the firm name, as the name of Mr. Marret has been identified with the business for so many years.

Mr. Miller also states that since building the new structure the business of the store has been increased over twenty-five per cent, on account of the increased facilities for handling it.

SHOWING THE PUBLIC.



The benefits to be derived from the remarkable speediness of the florists' telegraph delivery service are well enough known to those who have made use of it, but there are many people who must be shown before they will even start to think about the advantages. The Colonial Flower Shop, of Pittston, Pa., accomplished this kind of education with a unique window display, intended to point out the speed and efficacy of telegraph delivery. The service denoted in the display is the delivery of flowers purchased on one side of the ocean and delivered a short time later on the opposite side. The ocean is represented by a small pond of water, with camps and buildings denoting this side of the Atlantic, while on the other side, as represented, are cottages, with wires strung along denoting the rapid progress of the telegraphed message. When lighted at night, the display was particularly attractive.

MAKE SEPTEMBER SELL FERNS.

"Sale on ferns all September. We have made an unusually large and favorable purchase of choice ferns. We will offer these to our patrons at reasonable prices during the whole month of September—select stock, $2.25 each; extra large specimens, $4, $5 and $6 each." The foregoing printed on a neat folder, along with a final admonition to "buy ferns in September," forms the working basis of an idea that has made September a profitable "fern" month for McClure-Coffman, of Huntington, W. Va. And as this company is an earnest exponent of coöperation, the idea is sent along in the thought that others may profit from it. This is how T. Harold Coffman, of the company, tells about it:

"The month of September in the flower business is not the best that it could be, so in order to make it a favorable month, we have a large collection of ferns to sell and advertise them as a good buy. At the end of the month last year we had sold several hundred that otherwise would not have been purchased. This alone made September a good month for sales, as well as for profit.

FROST'S FLOWER CAR.

The new delivery automobile of S. A. Frost, Toronto, Ont., is one most appropriate in design for a florist and calculated to advertise its owner as it goes through the streets of this year's F. T. D. convention city. The body is pearl gray and is of long, rectangular shape. Scroll work beneath the window of the driver's door and that beside his seat, where the small name plate is, constitutes the sole ornament. All but a few inches, at the bottom, of the sides and rear doors is glass. In the center of the glass on the sides is the inscription, "The Flower Car." With solid wheels, the car presents a most stylish appearance.

WIN FIRST GOLF TOURNEY.

The Washington convention was marked by an innovation in the sports events. This was a golf tournament, arranged through the efforts of Z. D. Blackistone, himself an ardent and proficient follower of the Scottish game. Though Mr. Blackistone is a bowler as well, he believes in variety in sports and therefore endeavored to inject a novelty into the contests at Washington. Two factors diminished the registration of a large number of entrants: First, the novelty of the tournament itself, for a good many florists were unwilling to admit they were golfers, though they play a good game at their local country clubs, because they feared that bane of the golf aspirant, a gallery; second, the competitors were obliged to rise extremely early, for they played off shortly after 7 a. m. But those who engaged in the tournament arranged by Leaders in S. A. F. Golf Tourney.

Mr. Blackistone enjoyed heartily their round over the course frequently used by President Harding, the Potomac public course, and they felt a larger number of entrants would appear next time.

The winners in the competition at Washington were, strangely enough, from the same city and the same firm. Walter E. Cook, head of the seed company bearing his name in Cleveland, and his partner, James Fisher, captured the silver cups, the former the one for the low net score, the latter that for low medal score. Mr. Blackistone, manager of the tournament, followed so close on their heels that one wonders how well he would have done if he had not been promoter of the tournament. The three leaders in this pioneer S. A. F. golf tournament appear in the illustration on this page, Mr. Cook at the left, Mr. Fisher in the center and Mr. Blackistone at the right.

FLORISTS MEET PRESIDENT.

Last week's issue of The Review, carrying the conclusion of the Washington convention report, told of the post-convention visit of a number of florists to the White House. After the president had received the bouquet of white gladioli and Mrs. Harding had been presented with the basket of roses and delphiniums, President Harding listened to an invitation to attend the national flower show at Cleveland next spring and gave assurance of his presence if possible at that time. Then he shook hands with the visiting florists and posed with them for the photograph reproduced on this page. William F. Gude, who headed the florists' party, stands in the foreground, close to the president.

HONOR HILL'S SERVICES.

When E. G. Hill announced his intention of retiring from the position of president and director of the Florists' Hail Association of America at the annual meeting at Cleveland a year ago, the members and fellow officers of the organization listened with regret. For more than twenty-five years Mr. Hill had served as president of the organization, grown in the meantime from an infant association trying to find its feet to a solidly entrenched enterprise. The members at the annual meeting of the Florists' Hail Association at Cleveland appointed a committee, composed of Charles P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., and James S. Wilson, of Des Moines, to express their appreciation of Mr. Hill's long and valued service. The report of this committee, prepared for presentation at the Washington meeting, reads as follows:

We, your committee on resolutions in respect of Mr. E. G. Hill's services to this association, appointed at the Cleveland meeting, offer herewith the following:

Whereas: Mr. E. G. Hill has for over a quarter of a century faithfully served this association as its president and is now voluntarily retiring,

Therefore, be it resolved: That the officers, directors and members of the Florists' Hail Association of America, now in session at Washington, D. C., herewith express our heartfelt appreciation and gratitude to Mr. Hill for his services these many years and for his untiring and successful efforts on behalf of this association.

And be it further resolved: That while we most sincerely regret Mr. Hill's decision in not again accepting the presidency of this association, we do out of respect for his long services hesitate to further urge this duty upon him, and therefore wish for him with his retirement Almighty God's richest blessings for his future good health and happiness.

EASTER LILIES FROM SEED

Part of a treatise entitled "The Production of the Easter Lily in Northern Climates," written by David Griffiths, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

IT IS assumed that the grower of Easter lily stocks will start with seedlings. He may sow seed each season, but it is more likely that he will grow seedlings the first year and propagate vegetatively thereafter. When vegetative propagation is chosen, the plants must be hardy enough to go through the winters safely outdoors. It has been amply demonstrated that the lily is sufficiently hardy in the latitude of Washington, D. C., to live through the winter either with or without a little mulch. The probability is that it will be found to be hardy much farther north. If the grower goes back to seed each year, it makes no difference whether the species is hardy in his locality or not, for the plants will not be in the open ground during the winter.

The stock plants may be of any standard commercial variety, or any two standard varieties may be crossed. Good results have been obtained by cross-pollinating the varieties giganteum and Harrisii, giganteum and formosum, or even two plants of any one of the above varieties.

A grower will succeed more often by pollinating one plant on to another than by using only one parent plant, or, in other words, selfing or pollinating a plant with its own pollen. It should be understood, however, that the basis of the stocks now grown by the Bureau of Plant Industry is selfed plants. But there was a deliberate purpose in view in starting in this way. The set of seed was uniformly small in nearly all of these selfs. Commonly, but not always, the set of seed in selfed plants is small as compared with that obtained when two plants of the same variety or of different varieties have been crossed.

When and How to Pollinate.

Pollination should be performed as soon as the stigma is receptive and the pollen ripe. This stage can be determined by watching the anthers as the flower opens. When the flower starts to open, the anthers will usually be found with simply a slight crack along one side, exposing a narrow line of dusty yellow pollen. After a time, which will vary with the light, temperature and moisture conditions, the sides of this rupture will roll back, exposing the mass of dusty pollen over the entire surface of the anther. As soon as this condition is evident, the pollen should be transferred to the stigma which is to be fertilized. The time which it will take from the gaping of the flower until the stigma is receptive, i. e., ready to be pollinated, will vary with atmospheric conditions. Under autumnal conditions in the greenhouse in cloudy weather it has taken twenty-seven or twenty-eight hours after the tube began to open before the stigma was receptive, while in the open in July flowers starting to open about sunrise were ready to be fertilized at 9 or 10 o'clock. The grower will have to determine this period quite definitely. In general, it can be said that the stigma is ready to receive pollen as soon as its surface becomes glossy on account of the secretion of a viscid fluid, which in this lily is about the time when the edges of the anthers have rolled back and completely exposed the yellow, dusty pollen content. The sooner the pollination is done after these conditions obtain the better.

Degree of Hardiness.

The Easter lily may be grown under wide extremes of conditions, but it is difficult under conditions which might be termed intermediate. It seems to be a safe crop when properly handled in the climate of either Washington, D. C., or the frostless Bermudas, but in the gulf states it succumbs to the occasional low winter temperatures. This is not by any means without a parallel, the most striking one, possibly, being the hardiness of the Concord grape on the great lakes and its tenderness to frost conditions in Florida, and is readily explainable by the fact that farther north the plants are dormant during cold weather, while in the intermediate region they may be subjected to severe freezing weather when in full vegetative vigor.

There is evidence at hand that with care this lily may be grown much farther north in selected localities than has thus far been advised. There is little doubt that in those northern regions where the snowfall is heavy and early, even though the temperatures are low, it can be safely grown in the open ground.

Growing the Seed.

Until such a time as the trade produces seed of the Easter lily and offers it for sale, it will be necessary for the grower to grow his own seed. The most feasible way to do this now is to procure imported bulbs either in the early winter, when they are generally offered for sale, or at Easter, when most of the plants are in bloom, and grow seed for planting the following January.

To insure a good set of seed, it is necessary to hand-pollinate each flower. The blooms are so large and their parts so conspicuous that this is a simple and easy task. Seed may be produced in limited quantity without this trouble, but in the greenhouse, especially, the fertilization will be largely accidental and the set will be poor or none at all.

If it is the florist's object to cross particular varieties, care should be exercised that no pollen except that which is wanted gets on the stigma. It will be necessary to remove the anthers from the flower to be fertilized before they open and spread their pollen. If the plant which has been pollinated is set two feet or so away from others which bear pollen, it is ordinarily safe from contamination in the greenhouse. Usually the florist is not interested in following up a line of breeding, and all that he needs to do is to see that plenty of pollen is put on the stigma at the proper time.

If pollinations are made at Easter, the seed will be ripe early in June.

Necessity for Hand-Pollination.

In the flower of the Easter lily the stigma is well isolated from the anthers. The action of the wind or other agency may cause the pollination of a flower with its own pollen, which, of course, is the closest kind of selfing. Also, it is possible, when plants are grown in the open, that cross-pollination at times may take place through the intervention of insects and birds, but of this there seems to be little evidence. The necessity of hand-pollination to obtain full fertilization consequently becomes apparent. Some seed will be obtained without any attention other than allowing the flowers to wither naturally in the field, but a much better set can always be obtained by thorough artificial pollination.

There is but little information as to the length of time that the seed of the Easter lily will remain viable after it is harvested. Experience has shown that if planted as soon as it is gathered it takes about twice as long to germinate as when held and planted six months later. Perfect germination has occurred when the seed was 18 months old. This shows that perfect results may be expected from seed held over to the second year. Whether seed can be safely held longer is not known. All the seed worked with in these investigations was stored in paper sacks in the packing shed of an ordinary greenhouse.

Part of a treatise entitled "The Production of the Easter Lily in Northern Climates," written by David Griffiths, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The writer of this article is widely noted for his extensive and successful experiments in the propagation of Easter lilies. Here he describes the results of his work in a specially clear and comprehensive manner, treating the subject under two subheads: First, "Production on a Seedling Basis," or the growing of the plants and flowers from seed; second, "Production on a Vegetative Basis," or propagation by means of home-grown bulbs. The first section of the article is printed herewith; the second installment will appear in an early issue of The Review.

Whether seed can be safely held longer is not known. All the seed worked with in these investigations was stored in paper sacks in the packing shed of an ordinary greenhouse.

Planting the Seed.

The time of planting seed will depend upon how the florist is going to handle his stocks, and possibly upon when his seed becomes available. Sowing can be done at any season if suitable moisture conditions for germination are maintained. If seed is planted outdoors, it should be sown in late autumn for spring germination.

For germination in flats, the usual compost of loam, sand and leaf-mold, with a very little well-rotted manure, is preferred. Good success has been obtained with a variety of potting soils, even with quite heavy clays ameliorated with a little sand and rubbish.

The best practice in sowing the seed is to fill the flat to the proper depth and strike the surface to a level. The seed is then scattered over this surface and pressed down rather firmly with a piece of board. The whole is then covered with one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch of fine soil sprinkled over the top. In outdoor plantings it is better to put the seed three-fourths to one inch deep.

Handling the Seed Flats.

To the experienced plantsman the best direction that can be given on the subject of handling is, "Keep the flats in proper condition for germination." This condition does not differ for most seeds. Moisture should be kept at the surface constantly, but good provision for drainage should be made, so that the soil will never become water-logged.

If it is not possible to keep the surface properly moist without it, a pane of glass can be laid over each flat, but if the moisture conditions of the greenhouse are as they should be this is not necessary. It will be all the better not to have had the glass on when the plants begin to come through, for at this time, especially if the plantings are thick, moisture and aeration must be carefully watched lest damping-off occur.

The flats after germination are preferably kept rather dry. Watering should be copious, with provision for rapid drainage, but at comparatively infrequent intervals, so that the seedlings and the surface of the soil will not be too wet. Clay seed pans can be used, in which case it will not be necessary to wet the young foliage at all for a time.

The time it takes for the seed to come up will vary greatly with conditions. The first lot of seed produced in these experiments ripened in June. It required six or seven weeks to germinate when sown immediately after being gathered. The same seed planted the following January came up in three weeks.

Potting the Seedlings.

The exact stage of growth at which Easter lily seedlings should be potted may vary considerably. Usually it has been the practice to transfer them to 2-inch pots when the second leaf was fairly well developed, although this has been done frequently when the first leaf was well straightened out. It does not make much difference which practice is followed. At whatever stage they are transferred, the plants seem to stand still for about three weeks after potting, and until the roots get out to the sides of the pot the top growth is always next to nothing; but after this the development is rapid.

There is an opportunity for the development of a business in the production of 2-leaved or 3-leaved seedlings, to be furnished to florists or others to grow either in pots or in the open ground. Such seedlings might be sold either directly from the seed flats or, after being established, from a first shift. The plants are as easily transported in the 1-leaved to 3-leaved stage as at any other time. They have been shipped from Washington, D. C., to California in mail packages several times, and have arrived in perfect condition.

Transfer to the Field.

If the seed of the Easter lily is sown January 1 and the seedlings are potted in early March, they will be ready to go into the open ground in late April or early May, or when they will be safe from any inclement weather. They are then knocked out of the pots and planted without disturbing the ball of earth. There seems to be no checking of growth, the plants taking hold of the ground with no loss of time.

When handled as stated, the 2-inch pots are well filled with roots by the time the plants go into the field. It is therefore possible to knock the plants out and carry them to the field in flats, from which they are set with a trowel.

Conditions in the Field.

The experience of the Bureau of Plant Industry with these lilies has been restricted to a heavy, retentive clay soil, ameliorated by the use of some sand and plenty of rough stable manure. None of these stocks have as yet been grown on sandy soil.

The seedlings have usually been set out in 3-foot beds five to eight inches apart each way, which seems to afford ample space. Between the beds a 15-inch path has been left, which is also ample; a 12-inch path might be sufficient.

After planting, it is desirable to work a little mulch of some suitable material between the plants to assist in preventing the ground from baking, preserving moisture and keeping the soil cool. For this purpose sand and spent manure from sweet-potato beds, old manure, and even fresh strawy manure have been used. The care of these plantings during the summer has consisted in keeping down the weeds by hand and watering during dry weather. In well prepared soil, mulched with some debris, hand weeding is not a serious matter.

Development During the Summer.

Lily plants set in the field from 2-inch pots in late April or early May will begin to throw up scattering stems in July, and some blooms will appear late in the month. These early-flowering forms will be short, few-flowered, and in general disappointing. As the season advances the stems become longer and bear a large number of flowers, but never are the plants in the field as tall as those in the greenhouse, although they often reach a height of twenty-four inches or more. When the time for frosts arrives there will be plenty of plants showing either flowers or buds to the number of three to seven, and in rare instances as many as a dozen. Possibly twenty-five per cent will have flowered, and the earliest will be maturing their seed, but most of the plants, nearly seventy-five per cent of them, will be in the form of large rosettes of basal leaves and plants which have started to form stems.

Repotting from the Field.

Before there is danger of severe frosts in autumn the lily seedlings should be repotted for winter flowering. The minimum temperature to which they should be subjected outdoors is about 28 degrees.

The plants can be dug conveniently with a spading fork, ordinary care being used not to bruise them. Most of the soil is taken off the roots and they are laid loosely in boxes, to be transferred to the packing shed. Here within three or four days they are put into the smallest-sized pots into which they will go. Most of them, though, will have to go into 6-inch pots, for the reason that on account of the large root system they

LOS ANGELES LEADERS

The exhibition features being prepared for the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen are expected to draw many trade visitors to Los Angeles October 20 to 23. Additional interest will be found by them in a number of establishments in the vicinity which occupy a prominent place in our industry. Some of these are described in current issues of The Review, one of them on this page.

RETAILER AND GROWER.

Tom Wright's Double Success.

Although a young man in point of years, T. H. Wright, or Tom Wright as he is known to everybody in the trade, is a veteran in the Los Angeles flower business and is entitled to a place among the leaders. Starting business in a small way and with practically no capital, he has built up one of the largest retail businesses in the city, if not the largest, and has also a fine range of greenhouses, consisting of about 150,000 square feet, which is to be increased again shortly. For a number of years Mr. Wright had a small range of glass at Edendale, on the west side of town, but about twelve years ago twenty acres of land were purchased on the south of the city and the first of the up-to-date greenhouses erected. As the demand at the retail store continued to grow, more houses were built and this fall two houses, 36x185 feet, will be added.

Success with Roses.

Roses have always been an important crop here and this year there are ten houses, 27x300 feet, devoted entirely to them. Beauties, formerly grown in large number here, are gradually being done away with, as in other places, and, although they have always been a success here, it is thought that the space can be used to more profit by planting the more popular, newer varieties. Two varieties are especially good here, Columbia and Butterfly. Young stock of both, planted this season, is producing freely, while the growth of the plants leaves nothing to be desired. Crusader does well here and Mr. Wright says the company has little trouble with its turning blue in summer, as this fine rose is reported to do in some places. Premier, White Killarney and others are all in fine shape, Ophelia also producing freely, but, for some reason not yet discovered, Russell is not an unqualified success. It grows fairly well and many blooms are cut from it, but it cannot be classed as a real success as yet. No doubt as time goes on a way will be found to improve it and it may be mentioned in this respect that Mr. Wright is tiling all the Russell benches this year, since the soil here is heavy and apt to hold water too long.

Cyclamens.

Alongside the rose houses are those devoted to cyclamens, of which 22,000 are being grown this year. Naturally, they are in all stages of development and all are good, but the palm must be given to the 3-inch and 4-inch stock, which is remarkably fine in every way, clean, with large foliage and growing at a great rate. Mr. Wright's grower is careful in his seed sowing and at the younger stages of the plants, so that the stock never gets a check, but grows continuously and freely all through the season. Gardenias are grown here, the young plants being benched in a thin layer of good compost and, as they develop, mulched with cow manure. This is not broken up into small pieces, but laid on in large chunks, so that the roots find it and run under and through it, yet always have plenty of fresh air. The result is seen in deep, almost black, green foliage and great numbers of flowers. They are a healthy and vigorous lot of plants, of which Mr. Wright is justly proud.

Adiantum Wrightii.

An important and valuable novelty is the new fern Adiantum Wrightii, which has already been noted in The Review and of which more will be heard later. It is a large grower and a great producer, the fronds being larger than those of A. Farleyense or A. gloriosum. Besides growing freely, the fronds last exceedingly well and an interesting point about it is that fumigation does not appear to discommode it at all. At any rate, a house with a bench of A. Wrightii and several benches of A. California and other maidenhairs was fumigated rather heavily. Wrightii was absolutely uninjured, while all the other varieties were more or less damaged. It comes true at the rate of about ninety per cent from spores and an immense number are being grown for distribution late this year. Many orders are already in for it and Mr. Wright aims to have at least 150,000 2-inch plants before he disseminates it.

About 1,600 cattleyas of the labiata varieties are grown, and while there is not much in the way of blooms now, the plants are interesting, owing to the fine growth being made. C. Trianæ is especially good, also C. gigas, but, in fact, they are all in excellent order and a fine collection. Phalænopsis Schilleriana and other orchids are also grown in quantity and these, too, are in the most robust health.

About 35,000 mums are grown in all the popular varieties and these, too, look promising. Indoor carnations are not making much show now, but the young stock is fine and the benches are being prepared for its reception.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Officers Elected.

The twelfth annual show of the American Gladiolus Society, held at Alma College, St. Thomas, Ontario, Can., August 24 and 25, was, according ing can be done at any season if suitable moisture conditions for germination are maintained. If seed is planted outdoors, it should be sown in late autumn for spring germination.

For germination in flats, the usual compost of loam, sand and leaf-mold, with a very little well-rotted manure, is preferred. Good success has been obtained with a variety of potting soils, even with quite heavy clays ameliorated with a little sand and rubbish.

The best practice in sowing the seed is to fill the flat to the proper depth and strike the surface to a level. The seed is then scattered over this surface and pressed down rather firmly with a piece of board. The whole is then covered with one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch of fine soil sprinkled over the top. In outdoor plantings it is better to put the seed three-fourths to one inch deep.

Handling the Seed Flats.

To the experienced plantsman the best direction that can be given on the subject of handling is, "Keep the flats in proper condition for germination." This condition does not differ for most seeds. Moisture should be kept at the surface constantly, but good provision for drainage should be made, so that the soil will never become water-logged.

If it is not possible to keep the surface properly moist without it, a pane of glass can be laid over each flat, but if the moisture conditions of the greenhouse are as they should be this is not necessary. It will be all the better not to have had the glass on when the plants begin to come through, for at this time, especially if the plantings are thick, moisture and aeration must be carefully watched lest damping-off occur.

The flats after germination are preferably kept rather dry. Watering should be copious, with provision for rapid drainage, but at comparatively infrequent intervals, so that the seedlings and the surface of the soil will not be too wet. Clay seed pans can be used, in which case it will not be necessary to wet the young foliage at all for a time.

The time it takes for the seed to come up will vary greatly with conditions. The first lot of seed produced in these experiments ripened in June. It required six or seven weeks to germinate when sown immediately after being gathered. The same seed planted the following January came up in three weeks.

Potting the Seedlings.

The exact stage of growth at which Easter lily seedlings should be potted may vary considerably. Usually it has been the practice to transfer them to 2-inch pots when the second leaf was fairly well developed, although this has been done frequently when the first leaf was well straightened out. It does not make much difference which practice is followed. At whatever stage they are transferred, the plants seem to stand still for about three weeks after potting, and until the roots get out to the sides of the pot the top growth is always next to nothing; but after this the development is rapid.

There is an opportunity for the development of a business in the production of 2-leaved or 3-leaved seedlings, to be furnished to florists or others to grow either in pots or in the open ground. Such seedlings might be sold either directly from the seed flats or, after being established, from a first shift. The plants are as easily transported in the 1-leaved to 3-leaved stage as at any other time. They have been shipped from Washington, D. C., to California in mail packages several times, and have arrived in perfect condition.

Transfer to the Field.

If the seed of the Easter lily is sown January 1 and the seedlings are potted in early March, they will be ready to go into the open ground in late April or early May, or when they will be safe from any inclement weather. They are then knocked out of the pots and planted without disturbing the ball of earth. There seems to be no checking of growth, the plants taking hold of the ground with no loss of time.

When handled as stated, the 2-inch pots are well filled with roots by the time the plants go into the field. It is therefore possible to knock the plants out and carry them to the field in flats, from which they are set with a trowel.

Conditions in the Field.

The experience of the Bureau of Plant Industry with these lilies has been restricted to a heavy, retentive clay soil, ameliorated by the use of some sand and plenty of rough stable manure. None of these stocks have as yet been grown on sandy soil.

The seedlings have usually been set out in 3-foot beds five to eight inches apart each way, which seems to afford ample space. Between the beds a 15-inch path has been left, which is also ample; a 12-inch path might be sufficient.

After planting, it is desirable to work a little mulch of some suitable material between the plants to assist in preventing the ground from baking, preserving moisture and keeping the soil cool. For this purpose sand and spent manure from sweet-potato beds, old manure, and even fresh strawy manure have been used. The care of these plantings during the summer has consisted in keeping down the weeds by hand and watering during dry weather. In well prepared soil, mulched with some debris, hand weeding is not a serious matter.

Development During the Summer.

Lily plants set in the field from 2-inch pots in late April or early May will begin to throw up scattering stems in July, and some blooms will appear late in the month. These early-flowering forms will be short, few-flowered, and in general disappointing. As the season advances the stems become longer and bear a large number of flowers, but never are the plants in the field as tall as those in the greenhouse, although they often reach a height of twenty-four inches or more. When the time for frosts arrives there will be plenty of plants showing either flowers or buds to the number of three to seven, and in rare instances as many as a dozen. Possibly twenty-five per cent will have flowered, and the earliest will be maturing their seed, but most of the plants, nearly seventy-five per cent of them, will be in the form of large rosettes of basal leaves and plants which have started to form stems.

Repotting from the Field.

Before there is danger of severe frosts in autumn the lily seedlings should be repotted for winter flowering. The minimum temperature to which they should be subjected outdoors is about 28 degrees.

The plants can be dug conveniently with a spading fork, ordinary care being used not to bruise them. Most of the soil is taken off the roots and they are laid loosely in boxes, to be transferred to the packing shed. Here within three or four days they are put into the smallest-sized pots into which they will go. Most of them, though, will have to go into 6-inch pots, for the reason that on account of the large root system they

The exhibition features being prepared for the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen are expected to draw many trade visitors to Los Angeles October 20 to 23. Additional interest will be found by them in a number of establishments in the vicinity which occupy a prominent place in our industry. Some of these are described in current issues of The Review, one of them on this page.

RETAILER AND GROWER.

Tom Wright's Double Success.

Although a young man in point of years, T. H. Wright, or Tom Wright as he is known to everybody in the trade, is a veteran in the Los Angeles flower business and is entitled to a place among the leaders. Starting business in a small way and with practically no capital, he has built up one of the largest retail businesses in the city, if not the largest, and has also a fine range of greenhouses, consisting of about 150,000 square feet, which is to be increased again shortly. For a number of years Mr. Wright had a small range of glass at Edendale, on the west side of town, but about twelve years ago twenty acres of land were purchased on the south of the city and the first of the up-to-date greenhouses erected. As the demand at the retail store continued to grow, more houses were built and this fall two houses, 36x185 feet, will be added.

Success with Roses.

Roses have always been an important crop here and this year there are ten houses, 27x300 feet, devoted entirely to them. Beauties, formerly grown in large number here, are gradually being done away with, as in other places, and, although they have always been a success here, it is thought that the space can be used to more profit by planting the more popular, newer varieties. Two varieties are especially good here, Columbia and Butterfly. Young stock of both, planted this season, is producing freely, while the growth of the plants leaves nothing to be desired. AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Officers Elected.

The twelfth annual show of the American Gladiolus Society, held at Alma College, St. Thomas, Ontario, Can., August 24 and 25, was, according to the statement of the officers, one of the finest gladiolus shows yet staged. Judging by the crowds that thronged the college halls, there is a strong general interest in the flower.

Because of the show being held in Canada, all the western Ontario towns turned out strong. Visitors included growers, retailers and amateurs. A visit to the show was well worth while. Many visitors came by motor car, there being about seventy-five from the state of Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Sharpgood and their son, Wilbur, of Griffin, Ga., came 1,300 miles by motor. There were about twenty visitors from New York state who came the same way and another twenty from Michigan.

The show was opened by Hon. Dr. Tolmie, minister of agriculture for Canada. Father Leopold, of Oke, Quebec, was another speaker. He is principal of the agricultural college at Oke, and is a commercial grower of gladioli. He has 75,000 blooms of 400 varieties.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, C. R. Hinkle, St. Joseph, Mich.; vice-president, Frank E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont.; secretary, Davis Tyndall, Brockton, Mass.; treasurer, Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., and executive committee, J. J. Prouty, J. Coleman and H. E. Meader.

The choice of the next place of meeting was left to the executive committee.

Wednesday evening there was a sing on the campus. Thursday morning there was a drive around the city and Thursday evening there was a big banquet at Port Stanley.

The report would not be complete without a reference to the trial gardens of the St. Thomas Horticultural Society. These are adjacent to the college, cover 45,000 square feet and include 35,000 gladioli. They are irrigated by the Skinner system.

The Dale Estate donated hundreds of roses, which were used for decorative purposes.

The Exhibits.

The exhibits were so numerous that they filled the assembly hall, the class rooms and the corridors. All classes were keenly contested.

The judges at the show were H. E. Meader, Mrs. A. H. Austin and Prof. Hottes. Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Britsch, of Toledo, assisted in arranging the exhibits. On account of the extent of the displays the work of the judges was heavy and announcements of winners were delayed on that account.

There were exhibits from all over the United States and Canada. Prominent among the noncommercial exhibits was that of Mrs. M. B. Hawkes, of Bennington, Vt., and her mother, Mrs. Beard, of Monroe, La.

C. R. Hinkle showed a unique flower which he said was an old flower in a new dress. It is a sport of the variety Mrs. Francis King and has assumed a dress of apple-blossom pink. He also showed a new primulinus seedling, which he named Elizabeth Tabor.

Joe Coleman, of Ravenna, O., had some new seedlings. C. Zeestraten, of Chautauqua, N. Y., had a beautiful display, as also did Peter Vos & Son, of Grand Rapids, Mich. A. B. De Groot was in charge of a large display for the United Bulb Co., of Mount Clemens, Mich. M. F. Wright, of Sturgis, Mich., presented a novelty resembling an orchid, which he has named Lois. John J. Prouty, of Baldwinsville, N. Y., exhibited many varieties. W. H. Purple, of Canandaigua, N. Y., had several new seedlings.

The St. Thomas Horticultural Society had an excellent display occupying two large class rooms. The blooms were superior and much admired. They were not entered for competition in deference to visiting exhibitors.

Madison Cooper, of Calcium, N. Y., took twenty-seven prizes. He exhibited in the noncommercial classes. C. Zeestraten won about twenty. Mrs. M. B. Hawkes was a big winner and also Robert Campbell. Some of the awards were as follows:

Best collection of twenty varieties, C. Zeestraten, R. F. Cameron and H. C. Oven.
Best collection of six yellow varieties, H. C. Oven.
Best collection of white varieties, United Bulb Co. and C. Zeestraten.
Best collection of crimson or red varieties, C. Zeestraten, R. F. Cameron and H. C. Oven.
Best collection of blue or lavender, United Bulb Co., C. Zeestraten and H. C. Oven.
Best collection of twenty-five varieties, C. Zeestraten and United Bulb Co.
Best seedling, J. Coleman and W. H. Purple.
Best ten varieties, R. F. Cameron.
Best three vases, five spikes each, three varieties, red, white and blue, Madison Cooper.
Best and most harmonious display of primulinis hybrids, C. R. Hinkle.

Visitors Present.

No attempt was made to register the people from St. Thomas and only a partial registration of visitors from throughout Ontario could be obtained on account of the crowds. If cards were used instead of one book, the numbers who crowd around the registration table could be much more easily handled. Among those present were:

HELP—WANTED AND GIVEN

WHO CAN TELL?

We want some old-fashioned carnation plants of the variety named Prosperity. Would you kindly tell us where we could get some, if you know?

J. T. N. Co.—Cal.

READERS PLEASE ANSWER.

I should like to know if any of The Review readers have had experience with concrete flower pots. Are they as satisfactory as clay pots for growing? T. R. G.—N. Y.

PLEASE DO AS HE SAYS.

We notice in our Convention Number, "M. W. H., Miss.," answered by "C. W.," about the perennial pea. We have them in pure white, pink and rose and find ready sale for them, but C. W. says they are to be had in rose-striped, blue and purple. Will you kindly tell us where we can get these? Dreer has the pure white, but if any one has the other colors we wish they would just put an ad in The Review.

HELP! HELP!!

Some time ago I wrote to The Review for information in regard to fine begonias, hoping some florist would advise me where they can be procured. No one has come to the rescue. I am sure there must be florists who are growers of fine decorative plants who should advertise these begonias in The Review.

I am having trouble with small gray spiders on Rex begonias. Will some one advise me how to get rid of them before the plants go into winter quarters? I do hope someone will help me at once. I have been a subscriber to The Review for over fifteen years, but have seen nothing of this gray spider pest. J. F.—Ill.

MISSIONARY FLORISTS.

Taylor University, at Upland, Ind., will place at the disposal of students who wish to work their way through, 9,423 feet of ground space this fall, and next year 17,240 feet more, for general greenhouse work. In connection will be run three to five acres for market gardening. Our aim is to furnish employment for 200 students on an average of two hours each day. We are also planning to plant twenty-five acres to nursery stock.

Taylor University stands for a high standard of Christian life and is now a life service school, sending out more missionaries and preachers than all the other schools in the state put together. Altogether improvements planned reach a half million dollars. Our aim is to beautify the grounds at an expense of $25,000 and make other improvements in proportion.

If this appeals to any florist or nurseryman and he has any stock that we can use, as a gift, we shall appreciate it. We need 8,000 to 10,000 geraniums, 1,000 to 2,000 carnations, 200 callas, daffodils, hyacinths, narcissi, primulas, ferns, snapdragon, etc.

B. A. Atkinson.

IT GOT THE BUGS.

I had ten rows of asters. Next came five rows of Augusta gladioli. The asters began to bloom. Aster bugs came. I got mad and I got Slug Shot. Next day only three bugs on the asters and three millions on Augusta gladioli. No trouble since except an occasional bug here and there. It seems to be sufficient to dust all foliage and flower stems thoroughly. Thought it was too good to keep. John W. Saling.

WATER HYACINTHS AID SALES.

Here is the way that I sell more bulbs in the fall and also increase my sales during August and September. I believe that every housewife would plant more bulbs if she had something in which to plant them. I start at the end of the bedding plant season to sell water hyacinths. They are good sellers, and thus a supply of bulb bowls is created in the homes. The water hyacinth is only an annual and is thrown away when cold weather comes, thus leaving an empty bulb bowl.

I also grow the hyacinths in soil. I make a mixture of about one-third well turned cow manure and two-thirds soil. Then I fill several tubs about one-third full of this mixture, the remainder of the tubs being filled with water. Then I crowd the tubs full of bulbs, and let the bulbs grow for about three months in the direct sunlight. At this time there will be a round, hard stem, with a fan-like leaflet at the end. I then pot them into 5 or 6-inch pots, being careful not to pack the soil in too hard. The pots are kept in a saucer of water. The plants produce much larger blooms than when grown in water, and find a ready sale.

I sell them at 75 cents retail, and also sell a bowl, thus paving the way for another sale when the hyacinth dies.

BABY ICE MACHINES.

In The Review for July 28 a subscriber in Pennsylvania asked for information on the possibility of using an ice machine to cool a florist's refrigerator where the cost of ice is only $5 per week. The editor offered to relay the information if any reader could give the name and address of the manufacturer of a reliable machine for operating small display boxes in flower stores.

I will say I installed a machine in my display refrigerator and find it is more than one-half cheaper than ice. We paid 60 cents per hundred pounds for ice and used 100 pounds a day, making $4.20 per week. With the machine the average cost of operation is only $2.40 per week. I have an Isko machine, manufactured by the Isko Co., Chicago, Ill., and distributed by the Hibbard Co., Cleveland, O. If any florist cares to write me about it I shall be glad to reply. Wm. E. Penick.

ORCHIDS FROM SEED.

The excellent and timely article by W. N. Craig in The Review for July 14 on the subject of raising seedling orchids should be preserved by everyone interested in this class of plants. Not only are the cultural hints of great value, but the little touch of orchid history is of interest, especially to the older race of orchid growers. While, as Mr. Craig says, the cattleya will probably always be the commercial orchid of greatest importance in America, it does seem a pity that the demand for other and even more beautiful species is not better. There is such a sameness to cattleyas and such an infinite variety in the orchid family that it must be acknowledged by all that we are missing some of the most beautiful of nature's products when we leave out the latter.

This leads to a thought of which cognizance should be taken. There are many orchid species that are just as well worth taking care of as hybrids. Many years ago, when Cattleya labiata was one of the rarest of orchids, several British growers started to grow it from seed, self-fertilized, of course. The reintroduction of the species flooded the market with plants some years later, rendering the seedlings of little value in money, though of great interest. Again, the beautiful yellow Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ, which at that time was worth somewhere around a guinea a leaf, was grown in quantity by a friend of the writer and one of the cleverest of the British hybridists. There are good varieties and species in American collections that are well worth perpetuating and the work should prove interesting and profitable.

F. T. D. MEETING

THE TORONTO CONVENTION.

F. T. D. Meeting in October.

The invasion of Canada will take place Tuesday, October 11, when the 3-day convention of the F. T. D. will open at Toronto, Ont., at the King Edward hotel. The hotel committee has made arrangements for reserving three floors, 110 rooms, all with bath and in single, double and three-room suites, in this beautiful hotel. The old rule of "first come, first served" will hold on these suites and reservations for them may be made to H. G. Dillemuth, the chairman of the hotel committee, at 10 West Adelaide street, Toronto.

Toronto inhabitants and some of its former visitors claim that it is the perfect city for a convention, especially in the fall of the year. The various local committees in charge of the convention are working diligently in order to make their brothers from the states realize that the Canadians are a live-wire group of workers. The chairmen of these various committees are as follows: Executive committee, general chairman, H. G. Dillemuth; Canada at large, W. W. Gammage; vice-chairman, S. A. McFadden; general secretary, H. W. James, and treasurer, L. H. Walters; publicity committee, J. J. Higgins; finance committee, Len Waters; ladies' committee, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Waters; entertainment committee, Ernest S. Simmons; reception committee, J. A. Neal; hotel committee, H. G. Dillemuth, and trade's exhibit committee, H. W. James.

There are two things that the committees and Albert Pochelon, the secretary, want the F. T. D. members to know: First, that the directors of the association at their annual meeting decreed that there were to be no collections or unexpected calls for funds of any kind at the convention. The second comes in the form of this announcement from the secretary's office:

Reduced Rates.

"The F. T. D. has been granted a reduced rate on all trunk lines to those attending the annual meeting, October 11 to 13, at Toronto, Ont. This is good news to our members and visitors who are not members who wish to attend this live-wire meeting.

"The certificate plan arrangement will be placed in effect for this convention under the following regulations: Delegates will purchase one-way tickets at the regular one-way fare. The agent selling the ticket will, upon request, issue a certificate of standard form with each ticket purchased. The fare for the return trip will be one-half of the adult one-way fare applying from place of meeting to the original starting point, by the route used in the going trip, as shown on this certificate, provided that the certificate presented has been properly validated by the agent appointed for that purpose at the meeting. The reduction returning will apply provided there are not less than 350 members in attendance at the meeting, including dependent members of their families holding certificates or regular round-trip tickets sold at not less than the regular one-way fare."

TORONTO PREPARATIONS.

H. G. Dillemuth entertained the chairmen of the various committees for the F. T. D. convention at a dinner August 23. After dinner the program was gone over and several details discussed. The program will be issued early in September and those desiring advertising space in it should send copy at once.

Permanent offices have been opened at the club rooms of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club, 12 Adelaide street west, Toronto, with a staff in charge. Information regarding program, exhibition, hotel reservations, etc., may be had by writing to this address.

The whole mezzanine floor at the King Edward hotel has been reserved, including twenty rooms, rest rooms, convention hall, ladies' parlor, etc. The luncheons and banquet will be held in the beautiful new banquet hall.

Messrs. James, Dillemuth and Higgins were in Brampton recently in the interests of the F. T. D. Mrs. Moore and Messrs. Geraghty, Waters, James, F. Dunlop and Higgins visited the Hamilton florists recently in the interests of the F. T. D. convention. J. J. H.

LAMBERT'S REWARD.

The accompanying illustration is from the photograph taken of one J. A. Lambert, representative of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., when he blushingly received this most elaborate shower bouquet, arranged by an artist of the C. E. Hubbard flower shop, at Topeka. This bouquet, composed of several varieties of vegetables, was presented Mr. Lambert at the banquet of the Kansas State Florists' Association, reported in last week's issue of The Review, in recognition of his untiring efforts in boosting the annual meeting and for having been made the goat. Topeka Florists' Club.

A CORRECTION.

For the information of the trade at large, I wish to rectify the statement of Professor H. B. Dorner in his article on schooling for florists, appearing in the August 18 issue, in which he states that only six state institutions in the United States are giving commercial courses in floriculture. That number should be increased to seven, for the Pennsylvania State College does offer a commercial course in floriculture, covering a period of two full years, or four semesters. In these courses, the same fundamentals are given as at any other institution which offers a course in floriculture.

A MORAL TALE.

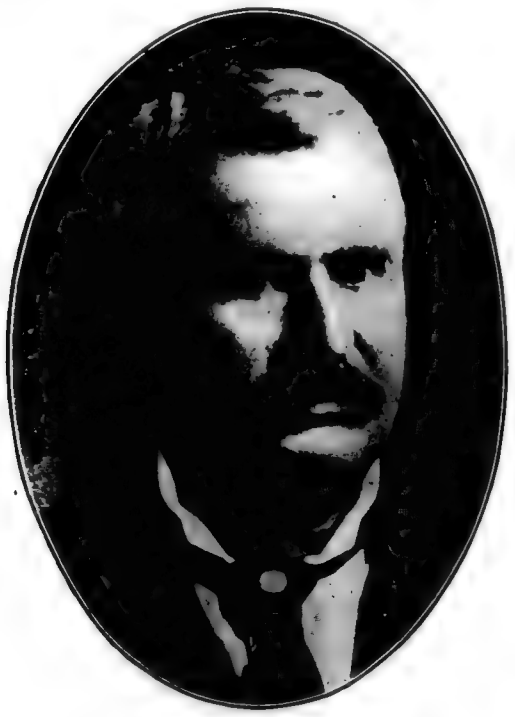
"Flowers—in and out of Season" strikes the Donora Floral Co., Donora, Pa., as an appropriate heading for the following clipping, which carries a moral many florists would like to impress on the public:

I attended a funeral one day. The casket was expensive and was covered with $50 worth of cut flowers. The burial robe was pure white satin. The grief-stricken husband spent money like water on the last sad rites. That was all right, but I happened to know that he never spent money that way while his wife was living. He never before had taken a single cut flower to her. He had never told her that she could wear a white satin dress and buy any of the expensive things he could well afford. He had allowed her to toil day after day, while he piled up money in the bank. She kept denying herself in order that he might accumulate. Had that man spent as much on his wife the last ten years of her life as he spent on her funeral, she might have been alive today. At least she would have been far happier. The scales dropped from his eyes when the undertaker came, just as they will drop from your eyes if you wait to put your flowers on the bier.—The Osborne Village Deacon.

TOO MUCH FERTILIZER.

Please advise me what to do with potted ferns from which the fronds are dropping, some turning brown. We have no greenhouse, but have kept ferns successfully in our store through the winter and spring. These ferns are new, with many young shoots. The trouble seems to be with the older and outside fronds. E. H. P.—Ind.

Without seeing the ferns in question, it is rather difficult to say just what is the cause of this trouble, although it is possible that they have been given too much fertilizer, either in the soil or in liquid form. If you have a fairly well shaded location outdoors, the ferns may be plunged in the ground nearly to the tops of the pots and, with regular watering, they will, probably, recover in a few weeks. W. H. T.



OBITUARY

Peter Youngers.

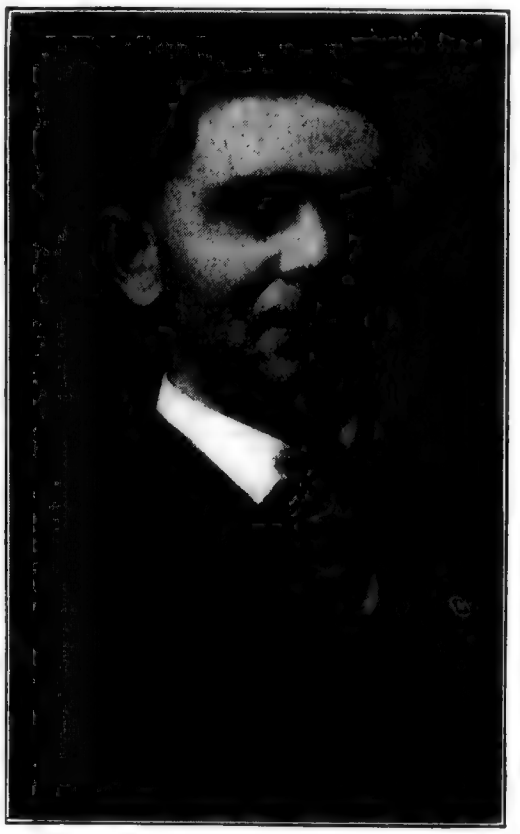
Unexpectedly and quite suddenly Peter Youngers, of Geneva, Neb., died of heart failure at his summer home, near Mercer, Wis., August 15. He was 68 years old. Honored as one of the prominent citizens of his home town, Mr. Youngers was also nationally known and deeply respected by the nursery trade. For Peter Youngers possessed the invincible qualities that had promoted him from a street urchin in New York city to a recognized leader in the nursery trade; to treasurer and later president of the Nebraska State Horticultural Society, in 1888; to membership in the state board of agriculture and in its board of managers; to the president of the Western Association of Nurserymen, in 1906; to treasurer of the American Association of Nurserymen in 1913, and later to honorary membership in that organization; to a charter membership in the Nebraska Hall of Agriculture, in 1916, and to many other honors.

When a youth of 19 years Mr. Youngers went to Nebraska and found employment as a field hand in the nurseries at Crete, Neb. He applied himself wholeheartedly to learning the details of the nursery business and not long after, in connection with A. J. Brown, established the nursery business of Youngers & Co., at Geneva, Neb. This soon became one of the largest nurseries in the state, employing from forty to 120 men. Later it became known as the Geneva Nurseries. Just a few years ago Mr. Youngers withdrew from the nursery business and applied himself to his other investments. He was the only honorary member of the A. A. N. at the time of his death.

The funeral took place from the family home, Thursday afternoon, August 18. The funeral services were held on the lawn, to permit room for the many friends who gathered, and the floral offerings from these were numerous and beautiful.

Peter Youngers.

Perhaps S. C. Bassett, of Gibbon, Neb., long associated with Mr. Youngers on the state board of agriculture and in the Nebraska State Horticultural Society, best describes the character of Mr. Youngers in this tribute: "In the passing of Peter Youngers Nebraska loses one of its grass-root pioneers, one of the builders of the state."



Herman Gerald Hershey.

Herman Gerald Hershey was born near Gettysburg, O., December 18, 1880, and died at his home in Clinton, Ind., August 21, 1921, at the age of 40 years. His earlier years were spent in Darke and Miami counties, O., where he began his work as a florist in the greenhouses at Piqua, O. His later business activities in his chosen field were almost wholly in Indiana and Illinois. He was manager of the C. A. Rieman greenhouses, at Connersville, Ind., and later owned and operated greenhouses in Marshall, Ill., and Clinton and Brazil, Ind. He was aggressive and sincere in all his business relations.

The widow of the deceased, before their marriage, was Miss Lillian Weltz, of Newcastle, Ind. She and George Von Waitz survive. Other relatives who survive him are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hershey, Piqua, O.; two sisters, Mrs. Maude Frisch and Mrs. Emma Hoyle, both of Piqua, and three brothers, F. R. Hershey, Hereford, Tex.; C. B. Hershey, Swansea, Mass., and J. Blaine Hershey, Bradford, O. One sister, Mrs. Laura Johnson, preceded him in death in 1909.

Mr. Hershey's last sickness was of several months' duration, during which time he suffered greatly and was confined to his bed about ten weeks. He was patient during his illness and he was calm in the hours and days of a certainty of approaching death, making plans for the continuation of his business and giving a father's counsel and admonition to his son, and a husband's love and fond farewell to a devoted companion. His departure will be greatly felt in business circles, among his relatives and especially in his own home.

The business will be continued both at Clinton and Brazil by Mrs. Hershey.

TROUBLE WITH CALLAS.

I should like some information as to what is wrong with my calla lilies and I am sending some bulbs so that you can examine them. They were potted little more than a week ago. The center of them seems to rot. I have had this trouble at the time the bulbs were drying off. As soon as the leaves would dry off to the bulb the center would start to rot. At such a time I have dug them up and placed them in a dark cellar and the rot has stopped. But now when they are planted again I have the same trouble. About one-third of them seems to be lost in the pots now. Will you tell me the trouble? A. J. L.—Mo.

You are not the only grower who has more or less trouble with calla bulbs. It is presumed that you cultivate your callas in raised benches or solid beds under glass, as you speak of digging them up and placing them in a dry cellar. It is always well to let the soil get quite dry for a short time before taking up your bulbs, to assist in ripening them. If you dig while the soil is moist and the plants have luxuriant green foliage on them, there is more or less danger of rot attacking the bulbs. If you have a spare coldframe, it would be advisable to pack your bulbs closely in flats, just covering them with soil, or a bench in an empty greenhouse would answer if you give the glass a light shade.

When you pot the bulbs, do not at once soak them with water. If the soil is fairly moist, do not water for a day or two and go lightly on watering until root activity starts. When in active growth, callas can scarcely be overwatered, but the bulbs are easily injured by an excess of moisture before the growth starts, especially if the weather is warm. It would be advisable to go lightly on the water for a time and, while I do not know what your compost may have been, it would be well to leave out chemical fertilizers and animal manure, unless it is well decayed. Give them all they want when they are in active growth. C. W.

NARCISSI FOR NORTH.

Will you let us know whether varieties of narcissi such as Emperor, Sir Watkin and Gloria Mundi are hardy in the latitude of Buffalo, N. Y.? Will Spanish iris thrive in that latitude and can it be grown in coldframes?

C. B.—Can.

All the varieties named are just as hardy as poeticus or Golden Spur. Sir Watkin and Emperor do especially well in grass land, as well as in cultivated borders. Spanish iris can be grown in coldframes and also succeeds well outdoors. Do not plant it outside until just before the ground freezes up. I have found it to be just as hardy as the German iris. C. W.

F. T. D. MEETING

THE TORONTO CONVENTION.

F. T. D. Meeting in October.

The invasion of Canada will take place Tuesday, October 11, when the 3-day convention of the F. T. D. will open at Toronto, Ont., at the King Edward hotel. The hotel committee has made arrangements for reserving three floors, 110 rooms, all with bath and in single, double and three-room suites, in this beautiful hotel. The old rule of "first come, first served" will hold on these suites and reservations for them may be made to H. G. Dillemuth, the chairman of the hotel committee, at 10 West Adelaide street, Toronto.

Toronto inhabitants and some of its former visitors claim that it is the perfect city for a convention, especially in the fall of the year. The various local committees in charge of the convention are working diligently in order to make their brothers from the states realize that the Canadians are a live-wire group of workers. The chairmen of these various committees are as follows: Executive committee, general chairman, H. G. Dillemuth; Canada at large, W. W. Gammage; vice-chairman, S. A. McFadden; general secretary, H. W. James, and treasurer, L. H. Walters; publicity committee, J. J. Higgins; finance committee, Len Waters; ladies' committee, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Waters; entertainment committee, Ernest S. Simmons; reception committee, J. A. Neal; hotel committee, H. G. Dillemuth, and trade's exhibit committee, H. W. James.

There are two things that the committees and Albert Pochelon, the secretary, want the F. T. D. members to know: First, that the directors of the association at their annual meeting decreed that there were to be no collections or unexpected calls for funds of any kind at the convention. The second comes in the form of this announcement from the secretary's office:

Reduced Rates.

"The F. T. D. has been granted a reduced rate on all trunk lines to those attending the annual meeting, October 11 to 13, at Toronto, Ont. This is good news to our members and visitors who are not members who wish to attend this live-wire meeting.

The reduction returning will apply provided there are not less than 350 members in attendance at the meeting, including dependent members of their families holding certificates or regular round-trip tickets sold at not less than the regular one-way fare."

THERE are so many shortages of stock that even moderate demand seems likely to create a brisk market this winter.

No florist who expects to buy or sell through the mail should attempt to do business without a printed letterhead.

UNCERTAINTY concerning the three "T's" continues. Taxes are not settled, the tariff is still argued upon, and transportation rates are without prospect of change. A congress that knows not its own mind tinkers with all three.

AFTER having made twenty-six trips to Europe, J. D. Eisele now looks on the Pacific coast as affording, under present conditions, greater interest for American horticultural traders. Mr. Eisele recently has visited most of the leading establishments in California.

THERE will be much building of residences this fall, offering an opportunity for the city florist to sell shrubs to plant around them. Florists in the smaller places have made more of their opportunities in this respect, showing how gratifying a business can be done.

BECAUSE of weather conditions, the field-grown carnation plants available are not so good as usual; they are smaller and, as the result of the heat and drought, there is a lot of red spider. Some growers who did not care to bench their own stock have been unnecessarily surprised to find the plants they ordered by mail were little if any better.

BITUMINOUS coal output declined slightly during the third week of August. The total for the week ended August 20 is estimated at 7,704,000 net tons, a decrease of 52,000 tons compared with the week preceding. How greatly the present rate of output must be increased to regain anything like normal may be judged from the figures of output in the corresponding week of other recent years. In the third week of August, 1920, there were produced 11,040,000 tons; in 1917, the figure was 10,590,000 tons, and in 1918, over 12,470,000 tons. In 1919, a dull year for the coal trade, the corresponding week showed 10,675,000 tons. Even in 1914, the last preceding year of marked business depression, the August rate was 8,700,000 tons a week. Another 1,000,000 tons must be added to the present weekly rate before it can equal even that of 1914.

NEVER nurse a grudge; it doesn't get you anywhere in business.

FLOWERS are reported scarce in some localities, though it is a time of customary abundance. If the supply is insufficient at a dull season, what will it be when buying is stronger?

AS important as the return toward pre-war prices is the return to standards of conscience that once prevailed. Perhaps if that could have been accomplished first, fewer bankruptcies and less unemployment would have resulted.

IF anyone believes cost of production has anything to do with selling prices in this trade, he is mistaken. There are only three factors affecting prices: Demand, supply, quality. And the third factor often is eliminated when the first exceeds the second.

ONE of the curiosities of human nature is that the man who is loudest in his professions of honesty and good faith is the first to take advantage of the technicalities. And it often happens that the person who objects to being "dunned" doesn't pay until he is.

ONE by one the florists who do not pay their bills, who send out unsatisfactory stock, who do not answer letters, or whose methods otherwise fail to line up with the golden rule, are being spotted. Then some of them change their names, but it avails them little; they can not approach success until they do as they would be done by.

LOW prices are not what any of us are after, but a standard of prices that is fair to all, so that a dollar's worth of wheat buys a dollar's worth of leather and a dollar's worth of cotton buys a dollar's worth of flowers. At the same time we must be able to get a dollar's worth of service and a dollar's worth of labor for our silver cartwheel—a phase of the readjustment many fail to observe.

So frequently do readers of The Review ask for information and advice concerning the way to effect a local trade organization and to participate in civic affairs that they will welcome the opportunity to read of what has been done by the Oregon Florists' Club, formerly the Portland Floral Society, reviewed by President Guy M. Pilkington in his speech on accepting office, printed on page 68 of this issue.

NOT only the Editor's desk, but several others in The Review office as well, were decorated this week by vases of Herbert & Fleishauer's new aster, Pacific Beauty. After their three-day journey from McMinnville, Ore., they made an excellent appearance. The blooms, pale lavender with white center, are large and full-petaled, and are borne on long, sturdy stems which should make them valuable for vase and basket use. The shortage of other flowers in the middle west has made a splendid market for asters this year.

GLASS MAY COST LESS.

A dispatch from Cleveland August 30 said: "An agreement was reached here today between the National Window Glass Workers' Association and National Association of Window Glass Manufacturers whereby the union, according to Joseph Neenan, president, accepted a twenty-eight per cent reduction in wages. Approximately 15,000 men and sixty factories are involved."

According to well informed men in the window glass trade, there exists today in America less than one-sixth of a normal stock of window glass, and manufacturing will be started this autumn to accumulate stock against the revival of building which is expected next spring.

FLOWERS WILL BE BOUGHT.

A daily paper which carries only business news last week made a survey of the commercial field through telegraphic inquiries to leaders in mercantile lines. Since this journal is the largest and most influential of its kind, its findings merit attention and consideration. These are summarized as follows:

Mercantile stocks are generally reduced to a minimum.

Liquidation has proceeded very commonly to its practical completion and price deflation has "touched bottom" of practical values, on which buyers and sellers can and do agree.

Shelves are bare, both with retailers and wholesalers, and buying is proceeding in healthy vigor on the basis of actual commercial necessity.

Crops are not satisfactory in staples of grain and foodstuffs; acreage is reduced and condition not up to standard. As an offset, however, accumulations from 1920 crops are well cleared.

Canning packs are bound to be small, both because of acreage and crop conditions, but especially because canners are not planning to operate this year, prices being still below going costs of production. Prices are therefore stiffer and probably will continue to rise.

Credits are easier, banks are supporting sound borrowers, collections are satisfactory and rates comfortable. Bad crops will leave a probable deficit in farm debts, but thus far banks are not forcing sacrifice liquidation.

Everywhere there is evidence of a promising fall trade, with no lack of practical buying power and a very real necessity to replenish trade and family stocks.

With scarcely an exception, the tone of public sentiment is optimistic, tempered with conservatism. The belief prevails that revival is unmistakably at hand.

The value to florists of such a report is that it indicates probability this autumn of a resumption of buying, and the ability to buy, on the greater part of the public. And since flowers will be bought in proportion as other things are, it behooves us all to be prepared for the business that's coming.

WHY THEY RECOMMEND IT.

Although no campaign is waged by the subscription department of The Review, a steady growth is constantly apparent in its circulation. The rate of growth, too, seems to be constantly increasing, and nearly 1,000 names have been added to the list of subscribers in the last year—the more notable since other publishers have been suffering a falling off in their subscription list. The answer lies in our readers themselves; they are responsible, since they constantly recommend the paper to florists who are not subscribers. Numerous new subscriptions state, "So-and-so recommended your paper to me." Why readers recommend The Review to others in the trade is explained in the words of W. H. Culp, Wichita, Kan., the newly elected president of the Kansas State Florists' Association. He says:

I consider the value of The Review to me in measure which cannot be stated in dollars and cents. It has often given me a pointer or hint on a line of work that was just what I needed. In addition, its general news and information are a wonderful factor in binding the trade together in purpose and in fellowship.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. M. W., Tenn.—Seems to be Euphorbia corollata.

W. & P., N. Y.—Kerria japonica variegata, sometimes called Japanese rose; grows six to eight feet high, rarely more.

The Market.

Last week opened with poor business and it gradually grew worse as the days sped on and closed with the worst congestion of the present season, values on about all lines taking a toboggan. August 29 did not open especially encouragingly. Somehow, the bottom has dropped out of the market, temporarily at least. This would have been less surprising had there been hot, uncomfortable weather, but, as a matter of fact, August has been remarkably clear, cool and comfortable, and flowers; both outdoors and under glass, are of excellent size and substance for this season. We hope in a few days to see a change for the better; it will be particularly welcome to everyone.

Gladioli may be becoming fewer in number, but as yet there are few signs of it. They are of good quality, but sell at low prices. Asters, we have been told, are in bad shape this year, plants diseased, dying, and so forth, but the stands are overloaded with grand flowers on long stems and it is a pity that they have to be cleared out at such low prices.

The best selling roses are Columbia, Double White Killarney and Francis Scott Key. Greater numbers of Ophelia appear than of any other variety, but the quality is not good now. August 27 large numbers of roses were sold at 50 cents per hundred downward; in fact, no prices were asked: "How much will you give for the lot?" was a common query, and no decent offer was refused.

A few short-stemmed, new-crop carnations have appeared, but sweet peas are still nil. Lilies of all kinds drag badly, even speciosums hanging fire. Cosmos, dahlias, bachelor's buttons, nemesias, salpiglossis, annual chrysanthemums, etc., are all a slow and uncertain trade.

There is a little valley, but the quality is inferior. No gardenias are forthcoming and few cattleyas. Some short-stemmed bouvardia is about the only other choice flower seen. For shower bouquets retailers are using Clematis paniculata and Euphorbia corollata. At the stores crotons, dracænas and ferns are in a little better demand. There are practically no flowering plants to be seen.

Association Outing.

So well did the members of the Boston Florists' Association enjoy their picnic outing at Nantasket that another was arranged for and held August 25. In point of attendance it went ahead of the earlier celebration, about seventy ladies and gentlemen enjoying a splendid dinner at the Palm Garden. In addition to the regular menu, there were extras which seemed to put some of the usually sedate members in a hilarious mood. Robert Harris distinguished himself as an entertainer and had the courage to go on the stage and dance with some of the sweet lady performers. J. K. Chandler made a short address and relieved his mind on the prohibition question. He considered a dry law bad for the cut flower trade and propounded the theory that under the old law many men felt happy and bought flowers freely, regardless of cost, and now under the dry regime they are more canny. Therefore, prohibition must be bad for the cut flower trade. Mr. Chandler seemed to have some sympathetic listeners.

The dinner was fine, the entertainment grand and everyone had a royal good time and got home in the "wee sma' hoors."

Garden Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of children's garden products at Horticultural hall, August 27 and 28, filled the main hall, the small hall and part of the lecture hall. Exhibits came from about 500 children and the competition was so strong that three sets of judges occupied several hours in making awards. There were no fewer than ninety entries for twenty-five string beans and nearly as many for beets, tomatoes, potatoes and corn. Collections were numerous and in greater variety than in former years.

In connection with the exhibition, the children gave two pageants in the lecture hall August 27, and Miss M. R. Case lectured on school gardening each day before large and attentive audiences. There also was a well-attended meeting of supervisors and school garden teachers the first day. It is encouraging to see a maintenance of interest in gardening in and around Boston, well up to the war-time standard, and the crowds of interested visitors show how popular these shows are.

Various Notes.

Alexander P. Dewar, manager of the seed store of R. & J. Farquhar Co., returned from Europe August 22. Some of his observations on European conditions are given on another page of this issue.

Thomas Roland is marketing some excellent crotons, Dracæna Massangeana and ferns in variety. He has a number of houses of cyclamen in grand condition, which he will start to market toward the end of September. Begonias are also unusually fine. A house of Golden Glow chrysanthemums will be ready to cut from in a few weeks at Nahant. At Revere roses promise well and are in rather light crop now, while prices are low.

A. R. Hutson, head salesman for W. H. Elliott, is spending a month with his wife and family at his summer cottage at Marion, Mass. Henry Hass acts as salesman in his absence.

William H. Carr, the well-known flower salesman at the Flower Exchange, went into farming on a large scale at North Pembroke, Mass., a little over a year ago. At the Marshfield fair, August 23 to 25, he captured seven premiums, including the corn championship, and naturally he feels duly elated. His fields of squash, corn and other crops are as fine as can be seen in this section.

Donald Carmichael is back from a month's vacation, spent at his old home in Scotland after a long absence. He found conditions different from what they were when he left years ago. The war has changed things tremendously. Farmers now have their automobiles instead of a horse and carriage and tractors are numerous. He brought back a few "wee" samples of real "mountain dew" for his special friends' delectation.

The Mann Co. has a fine variety of annuals on sale at the stand in the wholesale flower market. The following were noted August 27: Gypsophila elegans, gomphrenas, helichrysums, annual chrysanthemums, statice, Arctotis grandis, nemesias, snapdragons, salpiglossis, gaillardias, coreopsis, cosmos, bachelor's buttons and single asters.

Thomas Capers, of Wellesley Hills, has his carnations, some 10,000 in number, planted and well established. He is growing Benora, Beacon, Ward and Matchless. Outdoors he has Delphinium chinense in quantity and finds it profitable.

At Penn's Duncan Robertson and others were busy making up bridal and other bouquets. The windows and store contain a grand assortment of gladioli, with helichrysums and larkspur also in favor. Bouquets of pale blue larkspur and Ophelia roses are in great demand at present.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. have received large importations of baskets from Germany and expect more at an early date. They are, as usual, optimistic as to the fall trade.

Don't forget the club's field day at Framingham September 3. Those not going in automobiles are advised to take the Boston & Worcester limited, which runs express to Framingham Junction, and get off there, where they will be met.

Coming shows at Boston include the great dahlia, fruit and vegetable show September 10 and 11, and the great exhibition of tropical ferns, orchids, stove and greenhouse plants, cacti, etc., coming two weeks later.

Albert C. Burrage is planning to make a notable orchid display at the Cleveland show next spring. W. N. C.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

During the last ten days of August the number of tickets written has not been unsatisfactory to any wholesaler of moderate expectations, nor has there been cause for complaint concerning the left-hand column of figures on those fairly numerous tickets, the quantity of stock moved being well above the average for the time of year; but there has been lamentation and foreboding over the right-hand column of figures, prices being low and totals only about the same as a year ago in spite of the greater volume of business. Considering that nobody's cost of production is less than last year in any material degree, the decrease in average prices opens interesting avenues of thought. Demand seems to be all right; it is the supply of roses which now is above usual levels, and it may be that prices will advance when this early crop goes off. Otherwise the growers won't buy many Pierce-Arrows next spring.

The unwieldy supply is due principally to a big rose crop coming just at the time the gladiolus is at flood tide. Both roses and gladioli have been received in larger quantities than the market could consume. There has been waste, to pull down an already low average price. The quality of roses seldom has been better at this time of year; he would be a most particular buyer who could not be satisfied out of such stock as now is available in quantity. There is only one difficulty with the rose supply insofar as the buyers are concerned; this is the preponderance of pink, or to say it another way, the absence of white, red and yellow. There are pink roses of all seasonable lengths in five or six varieties, Columbia predominating, with Premier second, but there are only small quantities of white, yellow or red. During the last week the regular demand for roses has not been large enough to consume more than a small part of the receipts and the buyers for the best stores have refused materially to increase their orders because of price reductions. The greater part of the stock has been moved through flower stands that are in touch with the crowds and where price is an incentive to activity.

Carnations cut from the early benching are beginning to make their appearance in some quantity. The growers who grow part of their stock inside all summer have profited by it this year, their plants being in much better condition than those that have been in the field. Some of the flowers now being received are of excellent quality, although, as would be expected, the stems are short.

The height of the gladiolus season appears to have been reached somewhat earlier than usual. One grower is reported to have sent in 20,000 a day last week and there are hundreds of consignors of lesser quantities. Much of the stock is of excellent quality, but there has been no chance to clean up. Prices, which have been good, now are below what they were at this date last year, but still are a little above the low level of last year's glut.

Asters are not much more abundant than they have been, but the quality is greatly improved. Valley is more plentiful, the principal forcer having increased his plantings in anticipation of increased demand as the autumn season opens. There are only a few lilies. Cattleyas are in small supply and the prospect is that there will be few of them hereafter.

The market is full of garden flowers, such as marigolds, zinnias, coreopsis, etc., but there is not much demand.

Club Meeting Called.

The officers of the Chicago Florists' Club have decided to call a special meeting of the club in September. Though it was voted last June to dispense with the meetings during July, August and September, various causes have led to a desire for a gathering before October. The meeting will be on the regular night, which falls on September 8, and will be held at the regular place, the Hotel Randolph. An exhibition of seasonable flowers, with the emphasis on dahlias, asters and gladioli, will be staged and it is hoped that a large number of growers will participate. Notices of the meeting will be sent out by Secretary Lautenschlager.

Exhibits should be sent to Tim Waters, care Randolph Hotel, Randolph and Wells streets, Chicago, express prepaid. The club committee will stage exhibits to the best advantage. An invitation is being extended to the trade of Chicago to attend this exhibition.

The special order of business will be the fall flower show in connection with the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America.

California Chrysanthemums.

C. L. Washburn says that when he was in San Francisco a few days ago the market there showed remarkably fine Chrysolora and Monrovia chrysanthemums and the same flowers are beginning to appear in this market and in retailers' windows about town. The growers around San Francisco are producing a larger quantity of mums this year than ever before and the shippers have planned to supply the western half of America. One of the largest coast shippers will have a representative in this market shortly and may open a temporary salesroom here.

Schramm's Labor Saver.

There are numerous visitors at the establishment of Frank Schramm, at Crystal Lake, attracted by the opportunity to see how first-class roses are grown and by the opportunity to watch the operation of the Fairfield coal unloading equipment with which Mr. Schramm is handling this year's supply of fuel. It is the only installation of its kind in the Chicago territory, but there are several growers who are planning to install the equipment soon. Mr. Schramm is enthusiastic about it. He

GEORGE B. HART, 47-55 STONE STREET, ROCHESTER, NEW YORK.

Schramm says the installation will pay for itself in a short time through the saving of labor and that it relieves the men of one of their hardest tasks.

Schneider, of Oak Park.

Forty years ago, in a rented greenhouse, A. H. Schneider, pioneer Oak Park florist, started his business. Today he owns a half block of greenhouses at Schneider and Harlem avenues, and this summer wrecked the old range that he built thirty-seven years ago. In its place are being built four new greenhouses and a modern store building, which he is equipping with Buchbinder fixtures in marble and white enamel.

Mr. Schneider was born in Oak Park and can remember when that now wealthy suburb was little but woods. He started as a florist at the age of 19. The other day his place was visited by an Oak Leaves reporter, who wrote enthusiastically: "The greenhouses now are green with tens of thousands of poinsettias, cyclamen and berry plants, which at Christmas time will supply the wholesale and retail trade. There are row upon row of chrysanthemum plants, too, still young and green. In November, when the chrysanthemums bloom, and in December, when the poinsettias are at their zenith and the little green berries of the berry plants have all turned scarlet, the greenhouses will be a red and golden paradise."

Various Notes.

The other day a retailer had an order for some work to contain orchids and found difficulty in obtaining them, so he took some spikes of Gladiolus Louise, detached and wired the individual flowers. The customer was much pleased, especially when it was noted that the price was much below what it would have been with cattleyas.

C. S. Clausen says that, in spite of the dry weather of June and July, there will be an average crop of gladiolus bulbs in the middle west. He believes the bulbs will be in good demand, because the cut spikes have brought better prices than usual this season, even in the time of largest supply.

Morton Nielsen, who is graduating from A. Lange's practical school for florists, is preparing to go into business for himself, opening a store at 3346 Lawrence avenue. He has ordered a complete outfit of fixtures to be built by Buchbinder Bros.

After motoring to Lakewood, Wis., with his family, Fred Stollery has returned to the city after a two weeks' vacation, but Mrs. Stollery, with their daughter, Edith, and son, Percy, and his wife, remained for a longer stay.

Fred Greager, opposite Oakwoods cemetery, has added to his store this summer by removing about thirty feet of greenhouse and building up to that line. He is putting in a large new Buchbinder refrigerator in silver gray with art glass trimmings. His address is 6952 Cottage Grove avenue.

avenue, under the "L" station, and has built up a reputation for short-notice work which has enabled him to thrive in a neighborhood where florists are numerous.

A. W. Stollery, son of George Stollery, has entered a partnership to engage in the delivery of parcels for north side business houses. His experience in the delivery department of Stollery Bros. will serve him in good stead. The service will bear the name of Uptown Chicago Parcel Delivery, being one of the first to adopt the new title given to the north shore business district from Wilson to Argyle.

Last week 100 business men on the upper north side formed the Uptown Chicago Exposition Association, to carry out the plans for a north side exposition patterned on the Pageant of Progress, which Herman Dieu Schiller laid before them. Mr. Schiller was elected president of the association and George Stollery was chosen a director.

Tuesday evening, August 23, the A. L. Randall Co. girls gave a dinner party in honor of Miss Margaret Alther, who will become the bride of Ed Jacob September 14. The bride-to-be was presented with a beautiful silver water pitcher.

N. J. Wietor says he never has seen a stronger call for field-grown carnation plants that there is this season. Last week his firm offered Mrs. Ward in a 5-line ad in The Review. The paper was mailed Thursday and Saturday the telegrams began to arrive. By Monday they had sold out, over 10,000 plants. It cost 90 cents for the ad.

Fred Price took up his new connection August 21 with Peter Reinberg, Inc., where he has a stockholder's interest and the title of assistant manager.

Charles Erne reports the arrival of the first gentians. They always sell well, as blue flowers are scarce at this season.

Edward Mallinson has been vacationing on the installment plan this summer, but will be back at Fleischman's September 6 ready for a busy season.

M. W. Stoll, at Seventy-fourth street and Stony Island avenue, has given the coal man the laugh. Mr. Stoll has acquired two carloads of oak railroad ties sawed into furnace lengths, sufficient to heat his three greenhouses until spring.

Adolph Poehlmann and family still are at Three Lakes, Wis., but John Poehlmann and Walter Poehlmann have returned after a fortnight's outing. They enjoyed splendid fishing.

George Wienhoeber and C. J. Michelsen, with their families, returned August 26, after a motor trip of 2,100 miles to Cass Lake, Minn.

Matt Mann left August 27 to join his partner, A. J. Zech, near Mercer, Wis., where the fishing is good.

Paul R. Klingsporn returned August 29 from his old home at Philadelphia, where he spent the week following the S. A. F. convention.

John Prickett, of the Des Plaines Floral Co., and William Sauerland, who is running the Sol Garland place at Des Plaines, have returned from a vacation spent in the Dells section of Wisconsin.

Olsem & Zender, who in July completed their first year in operating the greenhouses at 6620 North Robey street, are in position to report progress. Everything is in first-rate condition and, whereas last year they had to buy considerable stock, this year the houses are filled with roses and carnations, and there are some of the latter for sale.

INNOVATORS

APPRECIATION

We have a pardonable sense of satisfaction in the public announcement of our good friends, Poehlmann Bros. Co., that they have been using, for a year, a price list of Roses giving prices by inches.

Those who have received our price list know that pricing Roses by inches was an innovation which we devised more than four years ago, and have advocated ever since.

Our Vice-President, Mr. Kohout, having observed the use of this system for so long, realizes its advantages and spoke with authority when he publicly advocated its general adoption.

We trust and have always believed that this rational system will ultimately be the standard price list form.

Visitors.

Mrs. Sallie McClendon, of Mayfield, Ky., has been in the market this week. She is posting herself on the best sources of supply, as she expects to be a steady buyer here this winter.

J. J. Hess, treasurer of the S. A. F., spent several days here last week, on his way home to Omaha, after the Washington convention.

F. H. Holton, of Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, was one of last week's visitors.

Max Scheinuk, of New Orleans, was here last week.

Harvey E. Kidder, of the Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich., was a caller here last week.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill., was a Chicago visitor following the doings which called so many Masons to Rockford last week.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Asters are coming into the market in larger quantities than a week ago, but they are not yet so plentiful as they have been in past years. The quality has improved considerably the last two weeks. Gladioli are not so plentiful. It is still early for early yellow mums in quantity, but each week sees a larger quantity coming into the market. Business continues to be quiet, though there is considerable funeral work. Many florists, retailers and growers are finishing up their alterations and renovations preparatory to the opening of the new season.

Various Notes.

Fred Philips, of Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, has returned from North Asbury Park, on the New Jersey shore, where he spent his vacation during the month of August. He spent much of his time in deep sea fishing. He caught a number of small fish, but was unable to get any of the large top-notch sea bass.

A. C. Begerow, 946 Broad street, is the first Newark florist, and probably the first one in New Jersey, to deliver flowers by airplane. Jersey City lodge 211, B. P. O. of Elks, sent twenty-five large American Beauty roses to Governor Edwards on Governor's day. The bouquet was made up by Mr. Begerow and delivered to an airplane at a landing in St. George's avenue, Rahway, N. J. The flowers were carried from this place to the governor's summer home, at Seagirt, by airplane and there delivered to him. R. B. M.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

We are fond of saying that business would have been better but for the weather. This could not be said of the last week of August. The weather was perfect and business was awful. Toward the end of the week it grew so bad that even the cheerful lost their happy smiles and the mournful looked as though they had not a friend left in the whole wide world.

The statisticians assert that the month of August has been better than that of last year. The first three weeks the sum total of sales ran well ahead of that of August, 1920, while the small loss in the closing days of the month were not sufficient seriously to affect the result. The real trouble lies in the supply. There was a tremendous increase in roses, which was quite unexpected, and a decided increase in gladioli and in asters. There was no increase in business values; there was a slight decline. The result was that the good flowers sold at lower prices and the poor flowers brought little or nothing.

At the City Club.

The September meeting of the Florists' Club will be held Tuesday evening, September 6, at 8 o'clock. Lawrence A. Peacock, New Jersey's greatest dahlia grower, will speak on dahlias and will make an exhibit.

Officers will be nominated for the coming year.

Baseball.

Bickmore, minus the services of Hofner, who had a sore hand, defeated Niessen at Lansdowne, August 23, after an exciting contest, by a score of 12 to 11. The line-up follows:

BICKMORE.	NIESSEN.
C. Founds, s.s.	Campbell, 1b.
H. Alwine, c.f.	Shields, c.
Fiend, 1b.	Higgins, c.f.
Harper, 3b.	Brown, l.f.

B. Alwine, r.f.	Lee, p.
Deysher, l.f.	Ruley, r.f.
Freeman, c.	Millett, 2b.

The Independents defeated Rice 10 to 9 in seven innings at Belmont, August 25. With the score 6 to 0 against them, Haverson, the Rice shortstop, made a home run, bringing a runner in ahead of him. This started things going. Rice, aided by errors, added six more runs in following innings. With the score 8 to 6 against them, the Independents won the game in the sixth by making four runs. Following is the line-up:

M. RICE CO	INDEPENDENTS.
Young, r.f.	Peil, 3b.
Cranler, 3b.	Lafferty, 2b.
Toney, l.f.	Reilly, r.f.
Haverson, s.s.	McHenry, 1b.

Alexander, c.f.	Opitz, s.s.
Rosen, 1b.	Gannon, l.f.
Hagen, p.	Isadore, c.f.

The schedule for next week is Bickmore vs. Craig.

The Coming Season.

The social season of 1921 and 1922 will be an unusually long one—ninety-seven days from Thanksgiving until Lent. Thanksgiving day, the last Thursday in November, comes on the earliest possible date, November 24. Christmas and New Year's day both fall on Sunday. St. Valentine's, February 14, will come on Tuesday. Ash Wednesday will be March 1; Easter Sunday, April 16. Mothers' day will come on Sunday, May 14, while Memorial day, May 30, will come on Tuesday.

Verbum Sapienti.

The following interesting communication was received from Henry F. Michell. It is of great value, expressing clearly Mr. Michell's views on a matter of importance:

It is a common occurrence for automobilists touring through the country to say to each other in passing greenhouses, "I wonder who owns those hothouses or what they grow in them."

Recently, on an automobile trip, the writer noticed that about ninety per cent of the florists who are located near a main road or directly on one, do not display any signs above or alongside the greenhouses indicating whose houses they are, or, at least, indicating that they are open for business.

It is a fact that there is no cheaper or better advertisement than a nice, attractive sign, with your name and line of business painted thereon, suspended above or alongside the greenhouses in a position where it will be plainly seen from the road.

Why do big business houses pay out yearly large sums of money for their ads along main highways? It must pay them to do it. True, they are mostly firms who do a national business, but many local business men also find this class of advertising very profitable.

Nearly every florist can do the same thing without the same expense; so why not get in line with the great national advertising campaign and put "Say It with Flowers" on your own greenhouses?

The progressive florist, who has already done this, has, no doubt, reaped the benefit of increased sales from year to year, and don't forget touring by automobile is increasing every day.

There is nothing like keeping your name, line of business and specialties before the public constantly, as "keeping everlastingly at it brings success," according to one of America's largest advertising agencies.

Florists everywhere should adopt the ideas which have brought success to other tradesmen; so why not get busy right now and have a few signs made up containing your name and address and a line similar to the following?

"Stop here for that bouquet,"
"Fresh flowers at all times."
"Flowers for all occasions."

or just

"Say It with Flowers."

Rice Entertains Conventionites.

Many visitors to the S. A. F. convention at Washington stopped at Philadelphia on their way home. A considerable number were received by the M. Rice Co. at its office and factory building on Spring Garden street. Among them were the following:

J. G. Schatmeier, of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., New Orleans, La.
Charles Eble, New Orleans, La.
C. A. Kuehn, Jr., and wife, St. Louis.
Charles L. and Roy Baum, Knoxville, Tenn.
W. H. Sievers, wife and son, Buffalo, N. Y.
Mrs. Percy Waters, Toronto, Ont.
George Yarver, Toronto, Ont.
Charles and Louis Bassi, New Rochelle, N. Y.
John B. Trottier, of the Westminster Greenhouses, Providence, R. I.
Mrs. C. E. Hubbard and daughter, Topeka, Kan.
Edward Habeeb, Cumberland, Md.

Various Notes.

Carnation plants are extremely scarce. The drought in June has made doubling up necessary.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons had several out-of-town visitors at one time in the Bellevue-Stratford Flower Shop. They were returning from the convention.

Charles H. Grakelow was elected president of the Pennsylvania Elks' Club August 22.

Leonard J. Sieger is no longer with the Robert Craig Co.

Louis and Charles Bassi, of New Rochelle, N. Y.; John Sissen, of Durham, N. J.; G. Merkel, Mentor, O.; C.

Hecock, of Elyria, O.; F. Thompson, of Princeton, N. J., were here recently.

Joseph Cousins is running the city salesroom of the Joseph Heacock Co. while Carl A. Corts is away on his holiday.

The friends of Frank P. Myers will be sorry to learn that he is ill at the Chestnut Hill hospital.

Martin J. Gannon divides his moments of leisure between baseball and the study of the principles of business.

Elmer W. Gaehring delights in motoring and camping out.

George Aeugle, who has been enjoying a week's fishing, says that business would be all right were customers as plentiful as fish.

Stephen Mortensen, of Southampton, has begun sending flowers of the new rose, American Legion, to the S. S. Pennock Co.

Macaw Bros. have a new 3-ton Packard truck.

C. U. Liggit has returned from a trip through Chester and Lancaster counties.

Stewart H. Miller is away on his vacation. Phil.

The annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 7 to 9, at the Academy of Music, at Broad and Locust streets, Philadelphia. The revised and final copy of the schedule of prizes has been sent out. The entries must all be in the hands of the secretary, David Rust, 606 Finance building, Philadelphia, by 6 p. m., Friday, November 4. The plants can be delivered at the exhibition hall Sunday, November 6, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The close of August finds the cut flower market in pretty poor shape, not worse, perhaps, than in other years, but more noticeable on account of a previous run of good months. The demand for stock is at the minimum, and the supply is overlarge; consequently, prices on almost everything have toppled, and even at that the iceboxes at night tell a story anything but interesting to growers. Staples suffer with the rest of commodities common to the season, and congestion is rapid and unavoidable. Outdoor flowers predominate and weather conditions favor the situation. Gladioli continue in abundant supply, and, with asters of fairly good quality, furnish stock which forms the main requirement of retailers. Dahlias are coming in greater quantity than ordinarily at this season and are a problem for the commission man; choice varieties on good stems move fairly well, especially flowers which in cutting encroach upon the plant growth liberally in order to provide stems to meet decoration requirements, but the general run of stock, short in stem and mussed in flower head, is hard to move at 10 cents per bunch or less; in fact, some arrivals cannot be given away.

Roses are arriving in quantity, and the quality generally is good. There is a small demand for them, and prices have gone down to less than $1 per hundred for the No. 2 grade. Retailers aver that it is no use stocking up, for the public, such as is left in town, is not buying. American Beauty is in small supply, but buyers are wanting, and prices remain unchanged. Hybrid teas are not running to long-stemmed grades, which would make a clear course for Beauties if anything like a demand existed.

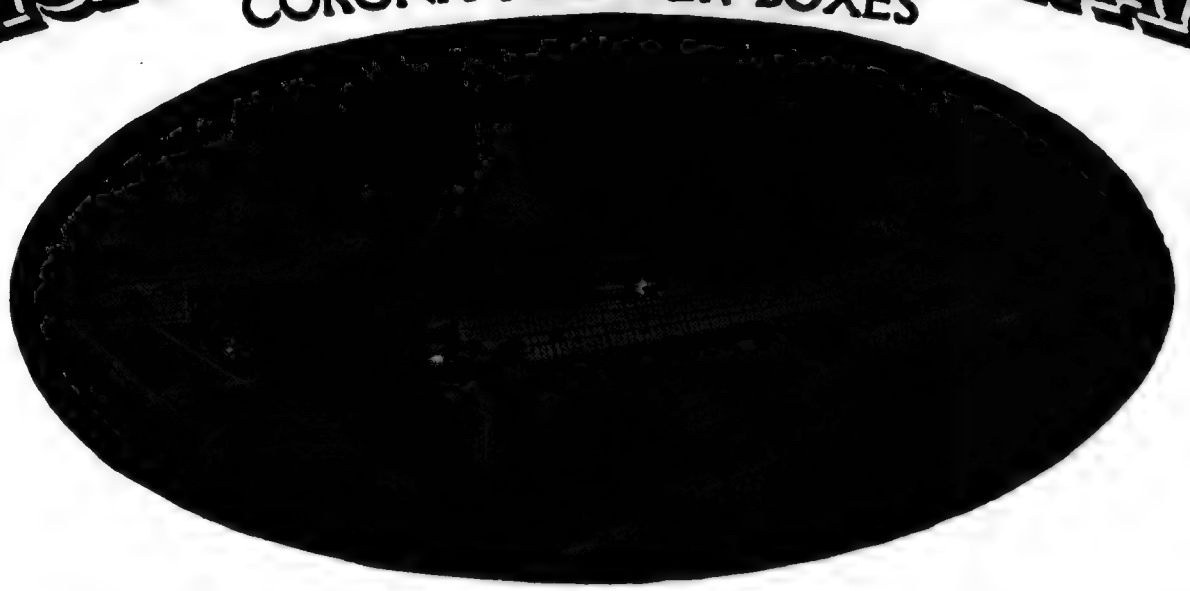
A few carnations from field-grown plants are arriving, but interest nobody. Growers report benched stock as doing nicely, with the prospect of a fair cut toward the end of October.

The supply of cattleyas is light, with labiata making an appearance. Except for special wants, there is little demand for them. A few gardenias are to be had, but they command only small figures.

Lilies are on the scarce side, a moderate demand cleaning out arrivals slowly. L. speciosum album is available, but sales drag. There is a small supply of lilies of the valley at prices previously quoted.



Country flowers, so-called, are in heavy supply, but variety is dwindling. Tuberoses are the latest acquisition to the list, which is swelled by large arrivals of cosmos.

The Market.

The usual summer dullness, with an occasional busy day, due to funeral work, is the condition of this market at the present time. While the wholesale houses have little complaint to make regarding their business in comparison with last year, the majority of the retail stores all report business poor. There are, however, some exceptional stores, which report that the month of

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

August will be better this year than last year. This section of the country was one of the last to feel the great depression and there is no question that it will be one of the last to get any improvement. Reports are, however, that some of the steel industries are resuming operations and, if such be the case, it will not take long until business resumes its activity.

There seems to be a fair supply of all flowers, with the exception of long-stemmed roses. At times there is a demand for these and it is impossible to take care of the orders. The roses that are being received in the market are practically of the new crop and some excellent stock is to be seen. American Beauties have been more plentiful during the last week and of a fairly good quality. Easter lilies continue to be in demand, while the supply is limited. Gladioli are more than plentiful, but the majority of this stock is short and of poor quality. There is no difficulty in moving the good stock. The aster crop in this section has also been poor and many times it is impossible to take care of the orders for good asters. Galax and leucothoë are again being received in daily shipments and are quite in demand. A new, attractive evergreen known as Cooney leaves is now being offered on this market. The leaves are of an excellent quality and make up exceptionally well in sprays and baskets. There are still a few garden flowers in the market, but the demand for these flowers is limited.

Various Notes.

The E. A. Williams Co. displayed some fine yellow chrysanthemums, grown by the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. These are the first mums that have been seen in this market this season.

Frank J. Zak, one of the north side florists, has just returned from his vacation. His store was closed for about three weeks during his vacation and was reopened on Saturday, August 27.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, O., paid a visit to the greenhouses of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. during the last week.

Arthur I. Hall, of the A. W. Smith Co., is enjoying the month of August at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ludwig are spending their vacation at Atlantic City.

Harvey Sheaff, of the E. A. Williams Co., Inc., has been on a two weeks' vacation and is expected to return this week. Charles Ulmer is in charge of this company's store during Mr. Sheaff's absence.

A large delegation from this community attended the Washington S. A. F. convention. Among those present were H. J. Hook, W. R. Wampler, H. A. Frishkorn, Fred Burki and A. H. Burki, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.; E. J. McCallum, W. T. Usinger, H. L. Blind, S. S. Puryear and E. M. Nigel, of the McCallum Co.; E. McGrath and son, of McGrath & Langhans; E. Briggs, David Hill and Joseph Thomas, of Greensburg, Pa.

While Hiram A. Frishkorn, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., was attending the Washington convention, he received a yellow watermelon from Hans Schroeder, of Brownwood, Tex.

What promises to be the largest meeting of florists ever brought together in this city will take place September 20, when the three local florists' clubs combine for their September meeting. Out-of-town speakers will be Albert Pochelon, of Detroit; Herman Knoble, of Cleveland; Professor Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College, and Mr. Weisman, an authority on soils and fertilizers. A supper will precede the meeting. The committee wishes to make it plain that florists who are not members of these clubs are especially invited to attend this meeting. H. J. H.

DISEASED CORNFLOWER PLANT.

I have sent you under separate cover a cornflower plant that appears to be infected with some plant disease. Will you ascertain the cause and recommend a remedy for the disease?

T. W. S.—Pa.

The plant on receipt was so completely dried up and broken that it was practically out of the question to tell what had ailed it. During the hot months, outdoor plants are subject to the attacks of many insect pests and diseases. Cornflowers, as a rule, are fairly immune from both, except it may be an occasional plant turning sickly and dying. This may be due to stem-rot or some fungoid disease brought on by favorable conditions for producing it. If you have but an occasional plant like the one sent, it would be advisable not to worry about it. If the trouble is more general, give a spraying of a good fungicide like Bordeaux mixture, repeating it if necessary. C. W.

EXAMINE THE SOIL.

I am having trouble with some of my geraniums and do not know how to rid the plants of it. I put them in new soil about a month ago and they started off well, but now they have begun to shed their leaves, continuing to do so until all the leaves are off. Last winter they did this and then got over it. I potted them in one-fourth cow manure and a sandy, black soil. I have sent samples of them in a separate package. They are blooming finely and every plant has two blooms. Will you tell me what the trouble is?

A. G.—Okla.

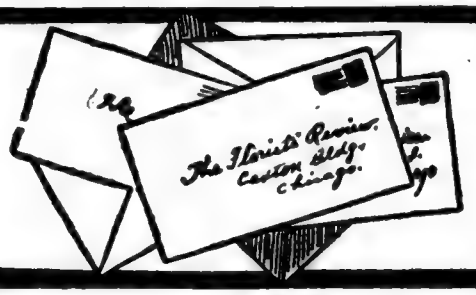
When the plants act this way, it is advisable to examine the soil at the roots to see if it is in the same condition all the way through. It may be that it is too dry underneath and, though the surface may appear moist, the plants likely are not receiving sufficient water at the roots for them to make their best growth.

Sometimes the trouble comes from potting or planting plants that have a dry ball of roots and until the soil becomes evenly moist clear through they will not make good growth. M. P.

SEND ANOTHER SPECIMEN.

I am sending you a geranium leaf from our plants and should like to have you tell me what is the disease with which they are afflicted. What can I do for them? G. W. S.—Kan.

One cannot determine just what is the trouble by the leaf sent. It seems to have been taken from the lower part of the plant and is one of the older leaves which, through lack of light and air, has commenced to decay. M. P.



ROOTING POINSETTIAS.

Will you please tell me the best way to root poinsettias? M. W. H.—Miss.

In rooting poinsettias, rub off the cuttings while they are comfortably short and stocky. Those with heels are much the best. Lay them in a dish of cold water for a short time. Be sure that the water is pure and do not use a metal dish. You can root the cuttings singly in small pots of sand and loam, or, if preferred, you can put them in a regular propagating bench, where careful watering, shading and a minimum of ventilation are necessary. Do not let air currents strike them and pot them before the roots are more than one or two inches long. It is best to trim back the leaves on cuttings.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Salem, Ore.—E. B. Flake is opening a florists' department in connection with his pet store.

TACOMA, WASH.

The last week has been rather quiet among the retail florists, although, as one in the trade said, "it's quiet one week and the next is good." A visit to several of the wholesale growers developed the fact that all were more than busy getting ready for the fall and winter trade. F. A. Chervenka, of the Woodlawn Park Floral Co., took time to show his visitors through the big range. The company specializes on ferns, cyclamens, begonias, roses, carnations and callas. J. T. Simpson, of the Acme Floral Co., was so busy he hardly had time to say a word. H. Benthien & Sons were well up with their fall work. Their evergreens never looked better and the variety shown amazed their visitors. At the houses of A. G. Seamons the same activity was evident. Mr. Seamons said he looked for a good fall and winter business.

The Smith Floral Co. has plans to enlarge its retail store. An elaborate color scheme has been devised for the interior decoration.

The florists held their annual picnic at the Benthien grounds. The day was ideal and refreshments, games and dancing in the evening filled out the program. All had a fine time. The association has adopted the coöperative plan of advertising and checks are being received by the secretary for the July assessment. President Chervenka secured several new applications for the S. A. F. and made a good talk on the advantages of the national association.

W. Snyders, coast salesman for Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was a visitor at the florists' meeting, Tuesday, August 23. After the session all adjourned to his sample rooms and spent an hour looking over his line of florists' supplies. L. B. M.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Last week showed an excellent demand for all classes of stock, except the poorest and shortest cuts. Roses were in particularly good demand and were cleaned up daily. The supply of good gladioli, although larger than that of the previous week, was insufficient to meet the demand, although there was an abundance of cheaper stock. Asters continued plentiful, but there was an excellent demand for good, long-stemmed shipping stock and stock fit for decoration. There was an overabundance of short-stemmed, inferior flowers. Dahlias of all kinds are plentiful and good and the large-flowering zinnias are just as showy. Valley is about even with the demand, but orchids are scarce. Sweet peas are improving a little, but are not a factor on the market. African marigolds are fine and ship well, owing to their long-lasting character. Cornflowers, yellow daisies, and small flowers generally are not much in demand. The new-crop carnations sell well, but the majority of the flowers on the market are poor. There is a fine supply of lilies, both rubrum and Belladonna.

Retailers in most cases report a heavy demand for funeral work and a fair amount of box and transient trade. Wholesalers report a slight improvement in shipping orders and a good local demand.

Various Notes.

J. D. Eisele and George B. Clark, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, have been in the city, inspecting the various seed farms in the locality.

The asters are again in full beauty at the Howard & Smith trial grounds, at Rivera, and are again a distinct advance over those of last season. The non-lateral character is even more pronounced in this excellent strain, while the flowers retain their great size, contour and distinct coloring. A point noticeable is that less and less roguing is necessary every year, showing that the strain is well fixed. To select a few of the best, the light blue, deep rose, lavender and deep purple may be mentioned. While these have been termed peony-flowered and Crego, the excellence of the flowers seems to call for some more descriptive name, for, to take the latter types, they have none of the thinness of the regular Crego types, but are deep, well built up flowers of fine substance and grace, the blooms measuring in many cases five inches or more across. The peony types are also well filled up, refined and of splendid form and great for shipping purposes. The celosias, too, are wonderful just now.

T. D. Robertson, of Fullerton, has just returned with Mrs. Robertson from a short vacation at Balboa beach. He says that prospects for landscape work in Orange county are particularly good this season and he is well prepared with a good line of stock. Mr. Robertson

Fall Days are Cyclamen Days

Cyclamens never grow much while the hot weather lasts.

The chances are that your plants are pretty tall and lanky, with poor colored foliage and not much of that.

Now that the nights are getting cooler they ought to start to grow.

At our own Greenhouses, only two miles from the Ocean, we never have any trouble with our stock in the Summer.

You just ought to see our plants!

Fine, large, stocky plants. If shifted now they will grow into money fast.

Varieties best in the world. Any or all colors. 100% Salmon if desired.

Here is the list and prices. Stock packed light, in paper pots. Specially made crates. Moderate charge for packing.

Frank Warner reports a most enjoyable automobile trip to San Diego in company with Edward Rust, of Pasadena, and E. B. Clark, of San Jose. They found business good in the southern city and spoke of a pleasant visit with John Morley, the well known park superintendent, and George Otto.

T. Wright is increasing the coat of tan put on at Catalina island by outside work on the new greenhouses going up at the range. A house, 30x300 feet, was put up and ready for the glass in seven days, a good record when it is considered that only the regular staff was engaged. The new fern is being vigorously pushed and the new house is to be filled at once with cyclamens.

Exchanging the ocean breezes for the mountains, H. Lowe, of Long Beach, is on a trip to Bear lake.

At Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson's they are still shipping strawflowers and statice in quantity, a great deal of the stock going out by mail.

C. Gutting has some extra fine seedling dahlias at the Superior Dahlia Gardens and quite in advance of everything in cultivation.

M. Williamson, manager of the store of W. Armacost & Co., left San Francisco for Catalina last week. At the store a big shipping demand is reported.

The fine new store of Lichtenberg's gives Harry Hanson a chance to show fine displays in his characteristic way. C. C. Thomas is back again in the store and he reports that Mrs. Thomas' health is much better since she has recovered from the effects of her operation. Frank Lichtenberg still limps, but is sticking to business. H. R. R.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ARE NOW READY FOR SHIPMENT

They are excellent in quality. The supply promises to be ample.

Express refrigerator cars leave for Chicago and New York every Tuesday and Friday. They run via Ogden, Cheyenne and Omaha.

We ship Chrysanthemums dry-packed. The boxes are light. This means a saving in express charges.

quality is not so good as earlier in the season. Chrysanthemums are becoming more and more plentiful, the varieties now coming in being Chrysolora, Golden Glow, Monrovia and October Frost, the first-named being the most plentiful. There are enough roses to take care of the demand. Carnations are scarce, and somewhat dear. Lilies of the valley are even more scarce. Orchids are off season and hard to obtain. The first of the fall violets have appeared this week in small quantities. Dahlias are becoming more plentiful. Oriental pods are just coming in and strawflowers are still of good quality and reasonable in price. Gladioli are of good quality and plentiful, in spite of the fact that the end of the season has been predicted for some time.

The New Market.

"New Home of the San Francisco Co-operative Flower Market. Wholesale Only."

This notice, with the added information that business would commence September 1, was displayed over the front of the building at 410 Bush street, formerly known as the St. George garage. The building is light, lofty and well ventilated, with a floor space of 58x155 feet and driveways both from Bush street and St. Anne street. More than half the space has been taken at the present writing and the remaining space is going fast. At a meeting of the Coöperative Flower Market corporation, held a few days ago, the following officers and directors were elected: President, P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co.; secretary, C. W. Brown, of Brown & Kennedy; treasurer, James T. Hayward, nurseryman, of Burlingame; assistant secretary, K. Cannon, nurseryman, and directors, H. Plath, of the Ferneries; B. M. Joseph, of Joseph's; Manuel Rolleri and David Arata, growers, and Frank Thatcher, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. Stock was issued at the meeting.

Various Notes.

All the San Francisco dahlia growers have announced their intention of exhibiting at the dahlia show to be held by the Alameda County Floral Society, at Hotel Oakland, Oakland, Alameda county, September 4 and 5. A list of over fifty prizes has been announced.

F. C. Jaeger & Son report excellent advance orders for chrysanthemums, 150 dozen every week having already been contracted for. F. C. Jaeger, Jr., states that the outlook for good stock is excellent this fall, but he believes that, owing partly to increased acreage, even the best chrysanthemums will be cheaper this season than they have been since pre-war days.

P. B. Norton, partner of J. A. Axell, believes that the high express rates are detrimental to California shippers. Bigger plantings are causing the chrysanthemum crop to be larger than usual. J. A. Axell is expected home about September 1, coming via Spokane and Seattle.

In the matter of express rates, several of the growers and shippers believe that florists should do as other merchants are doing and agitate for more satisfactory rates. It seems to be a case of waiting for someone to take the initiative.

After a trip through the Sacramento valley, I. Inque has returned to the office of the United Flower & Supply Co., impressed with the idea that San Francisco is the florists' paradise. "Flowers that would last a week here wilt in three hours in the Sacramento valley," he stated. During the last week in August this company made its initial chrysanthemum shipments. Its growers have increased their acreages.

Domoto Bros. have just received a large shipment of Easter lily bulbs from Japan. Other shipments are expected.

Enomoto & Co. are much gratified with the chrysanthemum crops coming in from their nurseries.

Early Frost, Monrovia and Chrysolora are all yielding good crops in the chrysanthemum acreages of the Growers' Floral Co.

Bush street, has just changed hands and is going into the business of shipping, in addition to its local trade. B. T. Shimizu is the new proprietor. The nurseries are in Alameda county.

Bon voyage baskets of fruit and flowers are now being sent as freely as ever to the outgoing steamships, according to Mrs. Copeland, of the Misses Hannon store. This firm has specialized in baskets and has a new line from the Hawaiian islands.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., states that the dahlia space is practically all taken for the show of the Dahlia Society of California, which takes place at the Palace hotel, San Francisco, in September. Mr. Pelicano has just called one of his most admired 3-year-old dahlias Miss O. D. Baldwin, after an amateur grower whom he has known for many years as an enthusiast. The flower, which has a good, straight stem, is almost the hue of an American Beauty rose. A beautiful white seedling has been named Eva, after Mr. Pelicano's daughter. Two other splendid seedlings, shown in the store, are unnamed. Other products of Mr. Pelicano's dahlia farm, the tuba begonias, are becoming highly popular as corsage bouquets, because of their beautiful pastel colors and luxuriant size.

One of the windows in the store of the Charles C. Navlet Co. has a novel exhibit that attracts constant crowds. In theatric style, a new seedling, the Pearl Fenton, is displayed within a handsome gold frame, as if it were on a miniature stage. The Pearl stands in a vase, against a back-drop representing a sunset effect. Electrically lighted and sky-blue curtains, drawn back, within the frame, carry out the idea of a stage. The dahlia, which is red and gold, harmonizes with this setting. The rest of the window is filled with other dahlias, each in a similar vase, giving the idea of an audience of flowers.

Fred Bertrand, of the Palace hotel flower store, was busy with two hotel weddings. Miss Behlow, daughter of a wealthy merchant, had an elaborate floral ceremony August 24 and Miss Lowry had one equally elaborate at the end of August.

Beautiful marble seats, fern stands, tables, etc., in carving as delicate as lace, are beginning to arrive from Italy, with Venetian and Florentine vases. They are part of the goods purchased by Victor Podesta for Podesta & Baldocchi.

he will captain. He says he is assured of J. A. Axell as anchorman and he expects a purse of $250 for the winners.

Early fall is suggested in a window arranged by George P. Clarence McLaughlin, of Joseph's, has returned from a vacation in the redwood forests. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Heavier funeral work was the only sign of improvement last week, but deliveries of stock were not heavy. There was a heavy rain storm, which about put an end to the outdoor sweet pea season, and this is expected to help along the movement of some of the later short-stemmed fall items. Zinnias are arriving more plentifully. There have been some fine offerings in dahlias. Early mums are not selling so freely as might be expected. The cut of gladioli is still increasing. The quality of gladioli for this year exceeds anything yet seen among local growers and this has been one factor in keeping prices steady on a rather easy market.

Carnations are a little short of what might be desired as to quality, but there are so many other low-priced items available for funeral work that this shortage is really causing the trade no inconvenience. There promises to be full production in time for the winter demand, since most growers are giving as much greenhouse space to this flower as in past seasons. A number of local growers are going in strongly for Laddie. The cut of roses is again slowed up, as far as outdoor stock goes, the result of the recent rain, but enough stock is in sight to care for all general needs. The cut of Cecile Brunner roses has been increasing and the same is true of Ophelia and Hadley. One grower notes a big increase in the cutting of Russell. Orchids are in heavier supply and the cut of bouvardias shows a slight increase. Lily of the valley is plentiful and gypsophila is increasing in quantity. Stephanotis is plentiful at present.

Various Notes.

An elaborate decoration was handled last week for the Winter Garden theater by Melby's Flower Shop. Autumn foliage and gladioli were the main items featured.

Dr. Walter A. Moore, of the Hollywood Gardens, was a week-end visitor on Vancouver island, where relatives are spending some time.

Mrs. Alois Hellenthal is now in British Columbia, where she has joined her family on a two weeks' vacation trip.

Still another vacationist at present is Felix Rosaia, who has gone to Solduc, where he will spend three weeks. Mrs. Rosaia is in charge of the business during his absence. Some nice Columbia roses have been featured in recent window showings at this shop.

A better demand for ferns, especially the smaller items, is reported by the Art Floral Co., and from now on a steady increase is anticipated.

William Goldsbary is back from a trip to Vancouver and Victoria for the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, and advises that he found general business good across the line. A full line is being offered by growers there this year.

George Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros., who has been on an extended trip through Oregon and California, with his family, has returned and is again at work. He reports a splendid trip and that he found crop prospects in California all that could be asked. P. Rosaia and his wife have come north from San Francisco and he will hereafter be connected with the store here. Charles E. Sullivan, of this firm, is away on a two weeks' rest, while Miss Laura Rosaia has returned from her vacation.

McCoy's have been featuring a number of novelty dahlias in their window displays and have been able to report a steady demand for these, as a result of the showing made.

ered at this time are coming from Frank Bell. He is having a steam shovel dig a long tunnel at his place, partly under his greenhouse, and will use the space so developed as a winter storage space for coal.

Work on the new home of the Woodlawn Flower Shop is showing satisfactory progress. The steel beams were installed last week, so the fixtures and office arrangements may now be started. Completion is desired as soon as possible, so that the holiday season for this year may be handled in the new shop. Harry Crouch has returned from a fishing trip in the Olympics. He announces that the second daughter in his family, now nearly a month old, has been christened Marjorie Jean.

A visit to the gardens of Thomas Wylie shows a collection of fall flowers which would be hard indeed to equal.

A number of active plans for extending the business of the City Flower Shop among local consumers of flowers have been developed by Sylvester Meucci, and, when the slowness of the current season is considered, good success has been had to date.

Kenney's Home of Flowers notes an increase in the demand for funeral pieces and there has also been a fair run on general decorations.

Ralph Anderson, until lately with Kenney's Home of Flowers, has announced that he will go east shortly.

Mrs. Ruth Muench, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, is still at home. She is

The Fremont Floral Co. has in its greenhouses a fine showing of ferns for immediate delivery.

Much interest was aroused in the dahlia show held last week by the Orpheum Floral Co. It has been decided to carry this on for a whole month. Sales of bulbs already show that the 1920 record will be easily passed. Ben Del Fanti is helping out in this shop until Mrs. Sandahl is able to return to work.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop has been featuring the arrival of pottery in its windows for the last week, and has moved a great deal of stock. Among the popular patterns shown have been Rozane, Mostique, Dogwood and Sylvan. Ophelia roses, Cecile Brunners and sweet peas, along with asters, gladioli and maple foliage, were used on a recent wedding decoration. H. M.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its August meeting at B. F. Barr's palatial home Thursday evening, August 25. About forty members and their wives were present. An inspection trip over the nursery was first in order. Many acres here are planted with conifers and sections of peonies, irises and ornamental shrubbery; all look most promising. Eighteen acres of tobacco, which was being housed, was of the usual Barr quality. Thirty acres of corn and twenty head of Holstein cows bring to the owner a handsome check each month. A corn roast followed and T. J. Nolan was high man, consuming more ears than any one else present.

"Hot dog" sandwiches were also in generous supply.

The meeting was called to order by B. F. Barr, in the absence of President W. B. Girvin. A. M. Herr and the other members who attended the Washington S. A. F. convention gave their impressions, in general, of the convention. The flower show committee reported that the Hiemenz auditorium had been leased for November 10 to 12, when the show will be held. Also it was reported that the committee had called on nearly all the growers in the county and had found a fine spirit of coöperation in putting up an exhibit. All things point to a most successful show. The next meeting will be held on the evening of the third Thursday in September, at 6 o'clock, when Charles B. Herr, of Strasburg, will be the host.

Under the direction of Mrs. Albert M. Herr, the Iris Club of Lancaster will hold a dahlia show next month, which promises to be fine. The June show was of an exceptionally high order.

John M. Moore, of the Rosery, is cruising, with friends, on the Canadian lakes.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club had twenty-one members in attendance at the Washington S. A. F. convention.

WHAT A FLORISTS' CLUB CAN DO.

Portland Organization's Work.

Our occupation as florists and gardeners and nurserymen must mean to us much more than just the money it brings us. We must feel that we are contributing to the sum of human happiness, benefiting many others besides ourselves. In this worthy labor, making our city beautiful, our lives more livable, our people most happy, we, the Oregon Florists' Club, are called upon to do a great part; it is at once our obligation, our duty, our pleasure. We have in the past done much in benefit of our community. We are at present striving to aid and assist in several commendable enterprises in civic improvement, practical education and artistic development. It is our intention and purpose for the future to be identified and associated with all public or private movements tending toward betterment and embellishment of our state and city.

Our society has just cause to be proud of what it has done. Prior to its organization as the Portland Floral Society there was no place for business competitors to meet on neutral ground and get personally acquainted; there was far more trade discord, petty jealousy and even enmity than there is today after these years of association and fellowship, and there is not one of us, I am sure, who does not feel that our association has been of personal as well as commercial benefit.

Genesis.

The idea of a florists' and gardeners' club was conceived in the spring of 1912. A preliminary organization was effected in April of that year and definitely established July 1, 1912, with E. T. Mische as president. Of the original sixty-eight members there are still thirty on our rolls—surely a fine record. Right from the start we got into the swim of floricultural activity, working with the dahlia show in September, 1912. In November, 1912, we staged alone a fall flower show that filled the armory and was of decided educational value. In May, 1913, we started the flower garden contest, which encouraged planting of home gardens and grounds and was a stimulus in landscape gardening. Scoring periodically was done by competent judges and prizes awarded. The following year F. A. Van Kirk was elected president and held the office two years. The fall flower show was repeated in November, 1913, at the armory and $200 dorated to the children's fruit and flower mission. The garden contests were continued in 1914 and to a lesser degree in 1915. In March, 1915, the Rose Festival Association asked our society to undertake the festival center decorations, plans for which were prepared by Julius Dossche, a charter member of our society, and though time was short, the stunt was pulled off by the good teamwork of Messrs. Dossche, Van Kirk, Forbes, Bacher and Steele and all the old reliables, and a fine impression made that the Portland and general public fully appreciated.

The following seasons, our society, working alone and with the city park

FLOWERS AND CO-OPERATION

Let us learn from the flowers the lesson of co-operation. A single flower, growing alone, makes no great show. Many flowers, growing in harmony, will transfigure even a desert.

bureau, ably did its part in making the festival center the high spot of attraction during the rose festivals.

Club a Civic Factor.

In 1916 S. W. Walker was elected president and served two years, followed by E. J. Steele, who likewise served two years, our dependable old standby, F. A. Van Kirk, taking the post of secretary, which he holds today. Berger Tonseth was elected president in 1919 and reëlected in 1920. In 1920 our outstanding public work was again in the festival center, held two weeks later than its accustomed date on account of the Portland gathering of the A. A. O. N. M. S., which brought 100,000 visitors to Portland, every one of whom was enthusiastic over the display made. E. T. Mische prepared the landscape plans and the city park bureau supplied much of the plant material, but without the practical aid of our association members, the results would have been far less gratifying. This past season, with Mr. Mische, Mr. Forbes and the energetic Mr. Van Kirk, the central attraction in connection with the Portland Rose Society was the rose and flower show staged in the public auditorium. We all of us still remember its beauty and attractiveness; the crowds who attended certainly showed their appreciation of its beauty and educational worth. Shows held by us or in conjunction with us are successful; our Oregon Florists' Club is now recognized as a factor in civic movement. What we purpose we perform. Future planners of Portland festivals appreciate and realize what results can be secured in obtaining our coöperation and assistance. We take pride in "delivering the goods" as individuals and as an association.

Powerful in State Work.

Not only in Portland are we becoming known. We have assisted at the Gresham county fairs and at the state fair at Salem. Our assistance there has brought results which I trust this year,

The Man Who Wore The Brown Derby

Isn't it so, that some florists are tight?
Tighter than the hoop on a barrel when it comes to spending a dollar on advertising.
They seem to figure out that because they know themselves so all fired well, that it must be, everybody else does.
All of which reminds me of a story. A story of a fight, after the fight was over.

James J. Corbett, the pugilist, was walking down Broadway some time ago, when he was a great popular hero.
An enthusiastic individual stopped him on the street, grabbed his hand and began to "pump" it with great ardor.

"Well, well! Hel-lo Jim, how are you?" exclaimed the fellow. Corbett shook his head and studied his face, but could not recall having seen him before. "Ah, stand back there and let me look at you. Just the same old Jim, ain't you? How have you been all these years?"

Corbett said, without much interest, that he had been fine, whereupon the fellow exclaimed: "Why, Jim, I don't believe you remember me at all!"
"Well, for the moment, I just can't recall you," said Corbett.
"Oh, shucks; yes, you do. You remember the time at New Orleans, when you beat Sullivan in 1892?"
"Certainly I remember ——"
"And you remember the enormous crowd that waited for you outside the arena and cheered you when you came out?"
"Yes, I can't forget a thing like that."
"Well," came the triumphant yell, "I was the fellow in the brown derby!"
To which let me add, that long ago I found out that if I wanted others to know what I know Stumpp knows about the florists' business and filling F. T. D. orders the way they should be filled, I'd have to do something besides wear a brown derby.

That's why I keep right on "throwing away" my money in these talks you and I have together every week, which every time cost me $30.

under the invitation they have issued and we have accepted, will be greater than ever in profit and in the satisfaction of work well done. There are other things which might be referred to: We are doing some coöperative advertising, with a good, substantial fund subscribed; we have provided decorations for returning soldiers; we have shown floats in the festival parades, not in competition, but to show our spirit of working together for Portland's good; we have had our own social pleasures, starting with our annual ladies' night in November, 1914, and our annual summer picnics.

So much for the past and present. The future is bright; we are well established, well founded on good work done so far, and confidently face the new prospects before us. In canvassing opinions and suggestions of florists, gardeners and seedsmen, I find most of them optimistic, full of pep and ambition. While in past years flowers and beautiful yards might have been considered luxuries and not indispensable, that idea has pretty much disappeared. We and our lines occupy our fixed place in the economic needs of the people, and as long as we do our part conscientiously we are sure of business prosperity.

Your officers stand ready to do their part, but this or any other society is worth what the individual makes it; it 's up to each and every one to do his part to the best of his ability.

which consist of the smallest number of basal leaves, lose all their leafage before they are placed in pots. No change in handling is necessitated by this loss, these bulbs being potted and treated precisely like the others.

A most remarkable thing is the subsequent loss of leafage by the plants as they grow in the greenhouse. Those plants which are in the form of rosettes when repotted will in a few weeks be seen to lose their lower leaves gradually, so that by Christmas there will be but little of the field leafage left. Of course, the leaves in this case are from bulb scales. The loss never simulates wilting or any other apparently unhealthy condition, but looks simply like a gradual ripening process.

This loss of leafage is by no means confined to the scale leaves. The same loss takes place in the stem leaves of those plants which were in a more or less advanced stage of stem development when repotted. The lower leaves gradually ripen and dry up in the same way, often leaving naked a few inches of the stem at the surface of the pot. This leaf loss takes place even when the plants have not been subjected to frost in the field.

Treatment After Repotting.

The plants are repotted from the field in all stages of development, from a rosette of basal leaves only to plants in full bud. All can be potted in the same way and handled alike afterwards. It has been the practice to keep the pots on the benches in the greenhouse without heat from the time of repotting in October as long as the night temperature does not go below 40 degrees. As soon as there is necessity for heat, a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees is maintained at night until early December and then increased to a maximum of 60 degrees. The plants continue to flower during this period and from this time forward.

At digging time the early seedlings, which have already bloomed in the field, should be separated from the others and the stems cut off, but they can be potted like those which have not flowered and made to flower again by Easter, thus giving one small and one normal crop of flowers in eighteen months from seed. They require no different treatment from those which have not flowered. However, if the florist desires, he can plunge them outside or treat them in all respects like imported bulbs.

Grouping the Seedling Stocks.

As the bulbs are potted from the field it is possible to segregate them into five or more groups. One group will be in full bud and will bloom within ten days or two weeks. Another can be made to bloom for Thanksgiving, another for Christmas, another in February, and the last for Easter. The last group will include the most backward of the plants in the field which have not flowered, together with the early-flowering forms which are to bloom the second time. Of course, by holding them at different temperatures, all except those in bud, and possibly even those, can be made to bloom at the later date.

As will be noted from the statements already made, the seedlings at potting time are exceedingly variable, the greatest variation occurring in the time at which they flower first, but there are also great differences of form aside from mere stature. As has been stated, the early-flowering plants are short, twelve or fifteen inches high, but those in full bud at repotting time are two to two and one-half feet high and bear three to five flowers or more, while the first ones to open have one or two flowers as a rule.

Below those showing buds there are plants in all stages of growth. Some have a few inches to a foot of stem with no buds showing, while others present a varying degree of basal leaf development with no signs of stem growth. It is in this late group, which has the most prolific development of basal leaves, that the grower will find the most robust plants and also the most floriferous ones. It is not at all uncommon for these, when the flower stems appear, to show particularly large ones, bearing eight to fifteen flowers.

Of all the field stocks thus handled, the preference is for the late-flowering forms, which bear a luxuriant growth of basal leaves, forming a large rosette at the surface of the ground at repotting time. These are invariably vigorous and productive. Each of these basal leaves in seedlings tips a bulb scale, and it is found that the plants which hold back and build up a large store by the development of an abundant, strong basal leafage before throwing up their flower stalks are the strongest and most productive.

The plants which have bloomed in the field are exceedingly interesting from the fact that they bear mostly double-nosed bulbs, which when potted will give at the second blooming two stems bearing two to five flowers each. Why this preponderance of double-nosed bulbs occurs at this stage so prominently in field-grown seedlings is not entirely clear. The condition is more general than in pot-grown plants, i. e., those kept in pots in the greenhouse through their first flowering. It looks sometimes as though the stem in the field is of such great diameter as actually to force a separation of one side of the bulb from the other, thus compelling the formation of two crowns for the next season instead of one, as normally obtains in bulbs of the same size developed vegetatively from small bulbs.

Basal Leaves Are Brittle.

In the handling incident to the transfer of the seedlings from the field to the pots some and frequently all of the leaves are broken off, for the basal leaves of seedlings, attached as they are to the tips of the scales, are quite brittle. There are, consequently, a goodly number of the bulbs which are entirely without leafage when ready to pot. No attention is paid to this, these bulbs being potted like the others. They invariably come on again in fine condition from the same crown; in other words, they are not to be distinguished from the dormant imported bulbs except that they grow more rapidly.

Strange as it may seem, these repotted seedlings, although moved with care and wilting but little, have to make in large measure a new root system after being potted from the field. Plants at all stages of growth, even up to full, well-advanced buds which will open in ten days, can be successfully repotted, but even these make an almost entirely new root system.

For this reason it will not do to subject the plants to heat until the pots are filled with roots again, any more than it is permissible to subject poorly rooted imported bulbs to such treatment. This point should be kept in mind. The grower should realize that he can not subject these vegetatively potted plants to heat at the same stage of top development as dormantly potted bulbs. He should remember that these seedlings, which are all the way from large rosettes to plants in full bud and are perfectly "fit" in appearance, may have a great paucity of roots until new ones have had a chance to develop.

It will probably be much better not to attempt to set a time limit on the period required for the lily plants to reroot at a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees at night. It will be much safer for the grower to depend upon the condition of the root system, which is most accurately gauged by an examination of the plant knocked out of the pot. The same conditions should govern the application of heat here as with imported stocks, with which the grower is familiar.

Wintering Seedlings Outdoors.

The previous discussion is based on the assumption that the lily seedlings are to be brought into the greenhouse for their first flowering, or in the case of the early ones for their second flowering, upon the advent of cold weather in late autumn. If the intention, on the other hand, is to carry them outdoors, it will be realized that the plants are at two decided disadvantages with reference to the approaching cold weather.

In the first place, all plants that have not flowered are going into the winter in full vegetative vigor and, in the second place, they are shallowly set on clean-tilled ground. Under such conditions in the climate of Washington, D. C., they may not winter successfully.

A heavy mulch of coarse material, such as cornstalks, might protect the bulbs sufficiently, but it is believed to be much the better method of treatment to dig and reset them at the proper level before the ground freezes in the fall. The digging can be done either before or after the tops are cut by freezing weather, but before there is danger of the ground freezing to any great extent. All the top growth should be cut off and the bulbs reset about four inches deep and mulched, preferably with an inch or two of manure, after the ground freezes a little. In the latitude of Washington, D. C., the digging and resetting can be done most advantageously about November 1, when it is advised that dormant bulbs generally be planted. Handled in this way, the seedlings will have a maximum period of development and will still have time to get a firm hold on the soil before winter sets in.

When Seedlings Have Flowered.

The disposition made of the bulbs after flowering will depend entirely upon circumstances. If the florist sells potted plants, that, of course, is the end of the transaction. He will then produce more seed and grow a new crop of seedlings for each winter's flowering, as already described. If, as is more likely the case in all middle latitudes, he wishes to work up stocks of vegetatively propagated bulbs to be handled like imported stocks, it will be necessary to preserve the bulbs as his potted plants flower. In this case, the flowers can be cut with short stems for formal pieces, or even with a foot of stem cut. The pots should then be kept rather dry and allowed to dry up completely within a month or six weeks. Any time after April 1, or before if the soil can be worked, the bulbs can be planted in the open ground.

The plants will bloom again in late

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

W. A. Hammond, Ashland, Va., returned from the S. A. F. convention well pleased with the trip, on which he was accompanied by his son, who expressed pleasure at this, his first trip. The Hammond Co. specializes in carnations, growing 90,000 Mrs. C. W. Ward exclusively. Vice-president H. A. Higason, of the Hammond Co., Richmond, Va., considered the demonstration of Max Schling the gem of the meeting. "Something one could not grasp in any other way, no matter how well written," he observed.

One of the sights at Washington was the many beds of cannas, consisting chiefly of The President, King Humbert and Yellow King Humbert. "Never saw them look finer," opined H. the purpose of buying stock," observed Mr. Morris, "unless it might chance to be something new, as here we wait for the traveling salesman and together go over the stock in the store and figure out our needs. Then again, the trade press keeps the business of its advertisers before us. In fact, nothing but novelties would interest us away from home, and you may quote me as predicting the limiting of exhibits to samples of new or uncommon items in the not distant future."

Norfolk, Va., may become the headquarters for a wholesale rose growing industry to supply outdoor stock to all parts of the country, particularly the east. The Breck-Robinson Co., of Lexington, Mass., has met with great success in experimenting with growing roses on ten acres of leased land and plans to enlarge. The soil and climate seem ideal. The Conard & Jones Co., of West Grove, Pa., also has fields near Virginia Beach, which is convenient to Norfolk, known all over the world as the great market gardening test section.

Richmond, and, having become thoroughly acclimated, he has become acquainted, so to speak, with the stock and growing conditions. Considering roses, Hadley is as fine here as it is grown about Boston. Hoosier Beauty produces more blooms, but on shorter stems. Ivory is the best white summer rose. Columbia is good, while Premier will be discarded and more Mrs. Russell grown. The Dunlop rose is also well favored. Carnations, chiefly Matchless, Enchantress and Mrs. Ward, are stocky, owing to drought, but they will soon go ahead and will be in ample time. Chrysanthemums are in splendid shape. Someone will receive a contract shortly for several new houses to go up in 1922.

The cut flower market continues dull. The supply continues heavier each day, especially in roses. Extremely warm weather is bringing out all the crops and some fear a little reaction later on. Last week was one of the hottest of this summer, the temperature averaging 104 degrees for the state.

Gladioli are getting smaller and scarcer, but asters are holding their own. Omaha has been fortunate in getting opportune rains. The outside asters are much better than the bench-grown in size, stems and colors. Good bargains are to be had on job lots. Fine asters are to be had from $2 to $3 per hundred, with $4 per hundred for the best.

Roses are in good supply and are barely clearing the market each day. Columbia and Premier are the main cut. Prices vary from $3 to $4 per hundred for the short to $9 to $15 per hundred for the best. Most of the funerals have been small and the out-of-town orders have fallen off in proportion. Delphiniums are getting smaller, and now that gypsophila has passed, milkweed, Euphorbia corollata, has taken its place.

Various Notes.

Out-of-town visitors calling on the trade last week were Clarence Bowen, of the Durable Products Co., Cleveland, O., and Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

The annual "Powwow" prosperity floral parade took place at Council Bluffs, Ia., Friday, August 26, amid much cheering. There were floats of all kinds, among which those of the florists were notable. The Gardiner Floral Co. was represented by a car decked in a mass of green, from which asters nodded gracefully. The float of Wilcox & Sons was beautiful in a mass of green foliage, from which innumerable asters showed their heads. F. L. Lainson had a splendid float, for which he received honorable mention. T. The Market.

Convention week was dull on the Baltimore market, but during the succeeding week the "bottom dropped out" entirely. There is nothing unexpected in this, for August, the quietest month in the year in this locality, is always at its worst during the last two weeks, there being more people out of town during these two weeks than at any other time during the year. But from the first of September business will begin to pick up.

Stock, which a few weeks ago was of such good quality, has certainly made a splendid recovery, with just enough rain and delightfully cool weather the last two weeks. Stock of fine quality is to be had and, as the demand is light, prices have broken considerably. Roses are of exceptionally fine quality for this season and the supply is good. Gladioli are in fine supply and of splendid quality. Like roses, they are too plentiful. The retailers get their choice and the remainder find their way to the street. Local asters are in poor supply. This is one flower that did not recover. There is a good supply of all miscellaneous stock.

Rejuvenated Business.

The retail flower business is going to open this fall under the most auspicious conditions. Customers who have been absent from the city are due for a surprise when they enter their favorite flower store this fall, for every store has been in the hands of the interior decorators this summer. Some show more elaborate renovations than others, but every one of them shows the skill of some artistic hand.

Robert L. Graham's uptown store looks double its former size this season. In this store is one of the finest mirror arrangements I have seen on the walls of a flower store.

John Cook's store has been in the hands of the decorators all through the month of August. The work was done under the supervision of Herman Cook, who, before he devoted all of his time to the business, was an artist of no mean repute. Mr. Cook has certainly demonstrated his art in the blending of colors in the Cook store.

At the store of Samuel Feast & Sons the entire place is spick-and-span. Everything is as neat and clean as the proverbial new pin. Mrs. Hill is in her accustomed place, with always the smile of welcome that the public has come to know so well.

At William J. Halliday's, Miss Groves has been spending the quiet times during the summer in giving that store a renovating that makes it look like a corner of Arcadia. The Hamilton store shows the handiwork of the interior decorator, as does Mary Johnston's. Not one in the list but has been getting ready for a fresh start this fall.

Various Notes.

John J. Perry has called a meeting of his committee on the street flower pageant which is to be held in October. Mr. Perry says he is going to have tentative plans to offer at the next club meeting, September 12, and he says that from now until Charlie Hochstead turns over the big bell that will lead the parade there is going to be nothing but work. Exeryone should be planning his float. Don't put this off until the last minute. Take time now and think up something unique. You have only about a month left to do it in. Last year there were good numbers of people outside of the business who would have been glad to participate in the parade, had they been able to get someone to decorate their floats. The automobile industry, especially, was disappointed. These outside industries are going to be solicited this year. This work should pay florists well. No float can be entered unless decorated with natural flowers. Tate.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Business picked up noticeably during the week ending August 27, cooler weather bringing in a better quality of cut stock and boosting the demand beyond the supply. Roses, especially, are showing the effects of cooler days and are rapidly approaching winter quality. This market is experiencing something new in the almost utter absence of carnations. The condition will not be for long, however. Most outdoor stock is in abundance, gladioli especially so. Asters are good and sell well. Splendid blooms from bulblets, are seen and are used up mostly in funeral work. Roses are much better, coming in large quantities and with good stems and foliage. Ophelia and Columbia are the most prominent and are cleaned up well at all times. Carnations are in small supply.

Dahlias have made their appearance, but are poor and short-stemmed. However, all indications are that there will be a good crop later on, as the frequent rains have done wonders. Buddleia has been arriving in large quantities and finds ready sale. Other outside stock is also in ample supply.

Griner intends to grow a general line of pot plants and cut flowers. He has cut some of the best asters that were seen on the market this year and he deserves credit from the fact that he carried water two miles to water them.

E. G. R.

AN OUTDOOR FLOWER SHOP.

About six miles south of Dallas, Tex., just a jog away from the famed Hutchins road, is a farm known to those for miles around, the Stuart Flower Farm. The owners and workers at this establishment are George M. Stuart, his wife and their daughter, Mary. Mr. Stuart had business connections in Dallas for years, but the noise and hustle of city life was anything but pleasing to the Stuarts. He was made manager of the Trinity Rod and Gun Club, about six miles south of Dallas. Although this was away from the big city and its noise, yet the Stuarts wanted a home and an enterprise of their own.

The idea of an outdoor flower shop, where they could grow such flowers as cannas, sweet williams, daisies, forget-me-nots and phlox, occurred to Mrs. Stuart. So, six years ago, a tract of land near the gun club was purchased and work began. Mr. Stuart retained his position with the club until such a time that he could profitably spend his whole time with the garden. The tract purchased was selected for its sandy soil and its shallow layer of water, from which water for irrigation could be pumped with ease. The Stuarts have made a success of the idea.

The entrance to the farm is picturesque. The visitor is greeted with a long avenue, flanked on either side by about 500 feet of Shasta daisies, forming a border for bed after bed of showy zinnias of almost every hue, magnificent cannas and dahlias. Two great verandas surround the pretty little bungalow, where customers and visitors are entertained while looking across this beautiful display of outdoor flowers. The Stuarts are constantly experimenting with different varieties in order to find flowers that will thrive in Texas.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The flower market is still slow and dull, with an occasional spurt, usually on Saturday or Monday. There seem to be fully as many weddings this month as there were in June this year. There is a demand for white roses and valley. There is a flood of late asters swamping the market, as well as gladioli, and both are moving slowly. Gladioli are bringing $2 to $3 per hundred and asters about the same price. Dahlias are now beginning to arrive in greater quantity and are moving slowly. Centaureas, calendulas, marigolds, bachelor's buttons, cockscomb, etc., are arriving in quantity.

Roses are getting better daily, although the supply is still a little short of the demand. Easter lilies are scarce at present and Japanese lilies are still arriving in abundant quantity.

Various Notes.

Edward Lewandowski is now running the store for his father.

The Hall Greenhouses, Clyde, O., have incorporated with a capital of $25,000. J. B. Hall, Mrs. Amy Hall, E. Eugene Hall, T. Hall and Frank E. Hall are the incorporators.

E. A. Wilhelmy has opened his new store, at 10016 Euclid avenue.

W. A. R.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

The market was more active last week than during any other entire week in August. Funeral work has caused a demand for all stock and plenty has been cut to meet the demand. A return of high temperatures, 96 degrees and even higher, has been hard on roses. The young stock is good, however. Outdoor flowers have not been hurt by the heat, as there has been much rain.

Prospects for fall stock are bright with all the growers.

Various Notes.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. is cutting an unusually fine lot of Kaiserin roses. All the carnations in the Pleasant Hill range have been benched for this year.

Miss Ollie Bird and Miss Watson, of the Denison Greenhouses, at Denison, Tex., were here a day on their return from Yellowstone park.

Chrysanthemums in the Longview Farm greenhouses are in excellent condition. The plants have a growth of thirty-six inches.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley took a week's rest from business and motored through Kansas.

E. A. Humfeld is wholesaling asters and gladioli. Mr. Humfeld has had a bad two weeks, with summer flu and a case of ivy poisoning.

Stock in the greenhouses of the Sunset Hill Gardens is looking fine. The houses are filled to capacity with plants for fall. Fancy snapdragon and other outdoor flowers are being cut in large quantity.

Andrew Kempf is recovering from the injury to his leg. He has discarded crutches and is using a cane.

Mr. and Mrs. John Klaus and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Parker have returned from their trip to Chicago.

E. Farnham, Carrollton, Mo.; Frank Stuppy, Dr. Murphy and A. Adolph, of St. Joseph, Mo., were among the week's visitors.

Many of the orders for the Henry Guettel funeral were filled by the Apollo Flower Shop. Some of them came from New York. A blanket of Russell roses from the employees of the Palace store here was one of the large pieces.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Newell and their daughter have returned from a trip up the St. Lawrence to Canada and the Thousand islands.

The funeral of Lieutenant Richards, of the flying service, was the occasion of a great deal of floral work. The W. L. Rock Flower Co. made a pair of airplane wings, seven feet long, of silver magnolia leaves and Easter lilies, with a solid shield of white asters. The company also made a 6-foot cross of red roses and pink lilies, and a number of smaller orders.

The two new houses of the Alpha Floral Co. are completed and the old house has been remodeled. Under the greenhouses is a reservoir 7x12x144 feet, which is filled from a pond on Mr. Elberfield's property and into which water drains from the roofs. It holds enough water to last three months in case of drought. The reservoir has overflowed twice with the recent heavy rains. Carnations, mums and plants will be grown in the houses. Outside are grown all kinds of garden flowers.

TATE'S TIPS

THE COMING SEASON.

Why Business Will Be Good.

At a recent florists' club meeting the business of the evening had been transacted and, following the usual order, the question box was taken up and discussed. One of the first questions read by the president was, "What is the outlook for the florists' business this winter?" The writer was surprised to hear such a question asked, for when we take into consideration the business of the last season, there should be no question as to what the coming season holds in store for the florists. However, as I noted the eagerness with which this question was taken up, it was quite evident that there was some misgiving.

The impression that this question and the discussion upon it conveyed was one of fear. Is there any foundation for this? Or, why should the outlook for the florists' business not be as good or better during the coming season than the last? One man, in discussing this question, hit the nail on the head when he said, "The florists' business during the coming season is going to be just what florists themselves choose to make it." Now, let us get down to brass tacks and see if florists can do as this man said and make the business just what they want it.

Why So Little Loss?

In the first place, there is no question as to what any florist wants the business to be, and the first important step in bringing this about is coöperation. I mean by that coöperation that will boost the business as a whole. "No chain is any stronger than its weakest link." In the readjustment since the war the florists' industry has suffered less than any other. There must be a reason for this. The writer has given some study to this phase of the question, and the only plausible reason that the prices of flowers have been maintained seems to be lack of production. And florists say, in defense of the high prices, that flowers cannot be produced for less, and the writer is ready to admit this fact. But have you ever stopped to think that since the war closed millions of dollars' worth of other commodities have been sold at a loss? This can mean but one thing. When the public is willing to pay high prices, caused by underproduction, flowers must be, in a sense, necessary.

During the war there were a number of things that we had always looked upon as the necessities of life that we found we could get along well without. There were meatless days and the familiar sugar bowl disappeared from the restaurant table. Everyone will remember many little things that we were forced to get along without. While all this was going on in every city in the country, there were more flowers being sold at better prices than ever before. It is a well established law in business that when a scarcity of any necessary article exists, the price of that article is bound to advance.

The point I wish to emphasize is that the experience of the last four years would indicate that flowers have become a necessity in the lives of the American people. They are not a necessity to the extent that the people cannot get along without them. Let us be honest with ourselves. One of the worst things that has happened to florists in the last few years has been the easy prosperity which they have enjoyed. Have the florists of the United States not become just a bit self-satisfied? In other words, it has been easy for them to produce their usual crop and dispose of it at a fair profit, without having to fight for trade Does not the condition of the national advertising committee indicate this? Our slogan, aside from the stationery and delivery trucks of the individual florists, is getting more publicity from sources outside of the industry than from the florists themselves. When an asset, such as "Say It with Flowers" is admitted to be, is allowed to lie idle there is something radically wrong.

We are told in the issue of The Review for August 4 that, out of the 15,000 florists in this country, there are just 3,500 who are willing to pay the small fee for membership in the society that gave this slogan to the trade. Let us suppose that the slogan was copyrighted and none but S. A. F. members could use it; how many of the 11,500 now outside of the ranks would become S. A. F. members? There is not a man in the business who uses this slogan who is not morally bound to be a member of the society that originated it.

But I am getting away from my subject, "What is the outlook for the florists' business during the coming season?'' One of the most significant things during the discussion was a letter written from Germany by Samuel S. Pennock to a member of his company. Mr. Pennock wrote of the fine flower stores throughout all of the large cities of Germany. This letter was written in July, and Mr. Pennock wrote that the stores there at that time would compare favorably with ours at Christmas and Easter. True, flowers were cheap. For instance, a dozen and a half of snapdragons were bought by Mr. Pennock for about 10 cents in American money, but, when we remember that the salary of a private in the army of occupation is equal in purchasing power to that of a general in the German army, we realize that every other commodity is proportionately cheap. The point I wish to emphasize is that, if florists in Germany, after what that country has been through, are still in a position to do business, surely there is no cause for alarm for their brother craftsmen in America, if, like them, they will face the situation, and by good business methods get the business on a stable foundation. But this is not all. No industry can stand still. We must either go forward and expand or go back.

of using nicotine solution? We have applied this at the rate of a 2-inch pot ful to each gallon of water in a knapsack sprayer. Will you tell us the cause of the trouble and suggest a remedy? H. M. & S.—Wis.

Either an overheavy fumigation or spray will cause leaves of Primula obconica to turn pale around the edges. A 2-inch pot of nicotine is a strong dose. With one of the standard forms of tobacco extract, one part of nicotine to 800 or 1,000 parts of water will kill aphis. You will find fumigation with one of the tobacco papers safer and cheaper than spraying. If white fly troubles you, use hydrocyanic acid gas, as directed in the special article in The Review for July 14. C. W.

CRAPE MYRTLE.

Why do I never see crape myrtle advertised? It is in full bloom in the south now; all colors are there, pink, purple, red and white. They stay in bloom from about June 25 until the last of October. It looks as if it might be hardy enough to be grown in the north. M. W. H.—Miss.

You may see crape myrtle advertised under its botanical name, Lagerstrœmia indica. It is not hardy in the north, although it is sometimes grown there in pots or boxes. C. W.

Kearney, Neb.—C. E. Charlson, who with J. E. Charlson operated the Kearney Floral Co., has sold out and will again enter the florists' business as soon as he finds a desirable location.

Uniontown, Pa.—The business of the late E. H. Trader is being carried on by his son. For the last two years he has been rebuilding and remodeling the range and he will soon be in a position to renew the cut flower growing.

Beckley, W. Va.—Sometime during September or October a new company will open a retail store here, under the name of the Wilding Floral Co. Samuel Mighton, of Sullivan, Va., an experienced florist, will be in charge of the store.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

The market last week was unusually quiet, although there were large quantities of stock coming in. Roses are plentiful, but there is a glut of asters on the market, as well as of gladioli and other outdoor stock, of which only the best is moving at a fair price. Much of the inferior grades is being dumped. Most growers have finished planting their houses for the season. Carnations are nearly all in and the supply of these is small in this vicinity, owing to the early dry season. Many growers had to buy stock to fill up their houses.

Various Notes.

A hail storm passed over the city Friday night, August 26. The hail, in general, was light except in one small section of the city on the northwest side, where the hail came down heavily, damaging the Humboldt avenue greenhouses of the Holton & Hunkel Co., Benjamin Gregory's greenhouses and those of Gustav Pohl.

There was a large display of flowers and plants in the Horticultural building of the Wisconsin state fair, in Milwaukee, last week. Fred Rentschler, of Madison, and Ward B. Davis, of Oshkosh, sent in the out-of-town entries, but a great many local florists are also exhibiting.

Frank Eberfeld and his wife and daughter have returned from an extended automobile trip. They motored to New York and returned via Washington, D. C., to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Visitors last week were Mrs. Charles Schulz and Bruno Schulz, of Menominee, Mich. A great many visitors are expected to attend the state fair in the next few weeks. P.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Conditions here were good last week with some of the florists and just the opposite with others, but, in general, things are about normal in comparison with other years. Gladioli still remain the most plentiful, with asters following closely. Gladioli of the varieties America, Schwaben, Mrs. Francis King, Peace and Augusta are the most profuse. Asters can be had almost at one's own figure.

Some exceptional cosmos is now arriving in quantity and, being the first to come, moves well. The first of the new carnations arrived during the course of last week, but, as usual, were short-stemmed and usable for funeral work only. Miscellaneous stock of all kinds is arriving in large quantities and moving slowly, because of the enormous amount of other flowers that can be used to better advantage.

Various Notes.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is receiving some excellent dahlias from H. Goekel, of Fort Thomas. Alex Ostendorff, of that firm, reports good sales in them.

H. W. Sheppard reports an exceptional week in general. His seasonable window display, representing a bathing beach, is a noteworthy one.

George H. Kessen, of H. W. Sheppard's force, together with Ray Murphy, of the William Murphy Co., Alfred C. Murphy and Samuel Kuhn, has returned from a three weeks' sojourn at Les Cheneaux islands. The trip was enjoyed by them all, as the photographs taken show. While on the trip, the party called on W. E. F. Wilbur, of Les Cheneaux, and were entertained royally.

has returned from his vacation through the east and he looks the better for the trip. C. E. Critchell has returned from the S. A. F. convention.

William H. Mayhall, of E. G. Gillett, and family have motored back from Conway, Mich., where they have been for the last week.

Julius Baer reports a good week in telegraph orders and he also deserves mention on his excellent window displays of late.

Harold S. Lion, of the ribbon house of Lion & Co., New York, was married quietly to a Miss Wildberg, of this city, whom he had met at a summer resort in the Adirondack mountains just before the S. A. F. convention. It was a surprise to the parents of both parties, but everything is lovely now.

Among the visitors last week were Mr. and Mrs. C. Ohmer, of West Palm Beach, Fla., and W. Gray, of Hamilton, O.

Sunday, September 4, S. F. Leonard, Chicago, will celebrate his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary.

An early frost will cause much damage to the Michigan bean crop, as the hot, dry weather set the beans back several weeks.

Three shipments of bulbs, totaling seventy-two cases, arrived in New York, August 25, on the steamer Adriatic, from Southampton, England.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed last week against Arthur T. Boddington & Co., New York, as reported in detail on a forward page of this issue.

Cable advices from Serati Arai, Yokohama, warn his American correspondents that the supply of giganteum bulbs will be less than at any time expected and that prices are rising sharply.

Alexander P. Dewar, manager of the seed store of R. & J. Farquhar Co., Boston, returned from Europe August 22. Some of his observations on conditions abroad are given on another page of this issue.

The condition of the aster seed crop this year is reported to be highly promising by Herbert & Fleishauer, McMinnville, Ore., who have the hope that it will make up, in a degree at least, for the loss of the aster seed crop last autumn.

F. B. Dawson, of Charles Sharpe & Co., Sleaford, England, was a visitor in Chicago last week. His American visit is much longer than he first planned. He said that he would be in Chicago again, probably in October, before he sailed for home.

Practically all of the surplus of bur clover seed in North and South Carolina has moved from growers' hands. Prices paid growers ranged from $8 to $10 per hundred pounds. The production in these states is about the same as last year and normal.

During the two weeks ending August 20 over 600,000 pounds of sunflower seed arrived in New York from Argentina. The arrivals of other seeds from Germany, France, Denmark, Holland, United Kingdom, Argentina and Chile were as follows: 360,000 pounds of crimson clover, 77,000 of red clover, 30,000 of white clover, 55,000 of alfalfa, 222,000 of orchard grass, 60,000 of rye grass, 146,000 of vetch, and 82,000 of rape.

The movement of Kentucky bluegrass seed from growers' hands in Kentucky during the last three weeks was slower than earlier in the season. Up to July 30 about seventy-five per cent of the crop had been sold by growers and this was increased to eighty per cent or eighty-five per cent by August 20. Prices of $2.15 to $2.25 per bushel being paid for rough, cured seed during the week ending August 20 averaged 10 or 15 cents less per bushel than during the week ending July 30. The cleaners confirmed the former reports that the quality is inferior to that of last year because of a greater percentage of lightweight seed.

THE official roster of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford Conn., now is: President, Arthur B. Clark; secretary and treasurer, Frederick M. Clark.

R. & J. FARQUHAR Co., Boston, reports an excellent call for evergreens, herbaceous perennials and strawberry plants and a good demand for all early bulbs for forcing.

R. B. HOWE, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, returned home this week. He and Mrs. Howe attended the Washington convention of the S. A. F. and afterward spent a few days in New York city, Jersey City and in Massachusetts, where some of Mrs. Howe's family reside.

THE Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. has had some splendid window displays of dahlias and gladioli at its Faneuil Hall square store, at Boston, Mass. The company is doing an increasing business in these. It is also featuring some evergreens in variety for fall planting. A good demand exists for bulbs and strawberry plants.

"THE onion sets are about all in and I never in my life saw sets of such good quality," said Charles Hollenbach, of the Peter Hollenbach Seed Store, Chicago. "The sets are short, of good quality and there will be firm prices holding on them this year. The sets are small, hard and dry, the quality being even better than of those in 1916, which was the best year ever for high-quality onion sets."

APPROXIMATELY ninety-five per cent of the 1921 crop of meadow fescue seed, estimated at 1,000,000 pounds of clean seed compared with 500,000 pounds produced in 1920, was sold by growers prior to August 20. The movement this season has been considerably above normal, much of the seed having been bought before harvest. Prices offered to growers recently ranged from 10 to 12½ cents per hundred pounds, basis clean seed.

THE movement of orchard grass seed in Kentucky recently became active and by August 20 about seventy-five per cent of the crop had been sold by growers. A uniform price of $2 per bushel, basis clean seed, was paid to the growers. During the three weeks ending August 20 approximately 278,000 pounds of orchard grass seed arrived at New York, all but 28,000 pounds coming from Denmark. The exportable surplus of this seed in Denmark is considered to be smaller than normal because of drought during the spring.

CALIFORNIA BULBS.

The report on the crop of bulbs in California, compiled by R. O. Lincoln, of Santa Cruz, gives the following data on the condition of the crop of California bulbs:

"Yellow calla bulbs are making a fine, vigorous growth and every indication is for a fine crop of exceptionally good bulbs.

"The local growers operating under permits from the Federal Horticultural Board were rewarded with a good crop of baby gladioli the first year and make good offers for the second year crop, with which the stock can be released. However, it is noted that the stock does not make the large sizes it does in Europe.

"There will be a limited offering of Susiana Mourning iris next summer. This root-stock does exceptionally well in California, blooming in April and curing in July, several months earlier than in France.

"Spanish and Holland iris will be in what is considered a good resultant crop, as realized by growers who brought stock in last year. Permits are being secured this season for stock of varieties not hitherto imported. Replantings are now under way for next summer. There is every indication of the California bulbs giving absolute satisfaction under greenhouse forcing if the grower gives the bulbs the necessary attention.

"The acreage of Freesia Purity for 1922 is slightly in excess over what it has been in previous years, due to there being sufficient planting stock available. With normal weather, which is not likely, there should be sufficient stock next year to fill all early orders. There will probably be a slight drop in the price of half-inch, but the price of ⅝, ¾ and ¾-inch up will be about that of last year."

WATERMELON VARIETIES.

The Tom Watson variety made up the bulk of watermelon receipts at middle-western markets the past season, according to a recent survey made by the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. This variety has been popular for many years because of its carrying qualities, its fairly good quality, and its uniform shape and size as compared with other varieties.

The Irish Grey variety, commonly referred to as the "Sweetheart" in many western markets, has been gaining favor in Chicago and other markets and receipts of this variety showed a material increase the past season. The Irish Grey usually has commanded a premium over the Tom Watson, because of its excellent flavor and attractive coloring.

The Excel is another variety of which shipments have been liberal. In Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Minneapolis prices for the Excel and the Tom Watson range nearly the same.

The Tom Watson is the leading variety in eastern markets, also, although in Boston this season nearly as many Excels were received.

The Irish Grey does not sell readily in either Boston or New York. In Pittsburgh, however, the Irish Grey usually is in good demand and brings high prices except when there is an oversupply. The Tom Watson is next in demand in Pittsburgh, with the Excel third among the leading varieties.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

"The chief concern of the southern seedsman," observed Lyon H. Williams, of the Williams Seed Co., Norfolk, W. Va., "is the fulfillment of contracts." At the same time, Mr. Williams was going over a batch of seed orders for advance shipment to Florida. "Even when using the utmost precaution we sometimes slip up," he added. Commenting upon the seed business in general through this section, Mr. Williams remarked that if all come out rather better than even, as they have done, they should be content and hope for better times, both in supply and demand. Manager R. S. Orr reports progress from the branch at Plant City, Fla. The home store is being refurnished with a complete set of Walker bins and other up-to-date fixtures.

"What impressed me the most favorably was the bulb displays," observed Manager L. T. Miller, of Schultz's Seed Store, Washington, D. C., referring to the exhibits of the American Bulb Co., Henry F. Michell Co., and Vaughan's Seed Store, as seen at the recent convention of the S. A. F. "'Highly commended' are words well applied and we hope to furnish our patrons with as high quality as possible, which must give satisfaction to all." It was unfortunate that, owing to indisposition, both Mr. and Mrs. Schultz were unable to meet their many friends in the trade, but Manager Miller saw to it that the Schultz automobiles did their quota of duty in conveying the visitors around the beautiful city.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

PETER YOUNGERS, of Geneva, Neb., widely known in the trade and at one time president of Youngers & Co., of Geneva, died suddenly at his summer home, at Mercer, Wis., August 15. Funeral services were held from the family home, at Geneva, August 18. There were many floral offerings.

PARK MANAGERS' CONVENTION.

Officers Elected.

The American Association of Park Superintendents is no more; that is, the name is no more. At its twenty-second annual convention, held at Detroit, at the Hotel Tuller, lasting three days, August 23 to August 25, it was decided that, in line with the reorganization of the association, the body would henceforth be known as the American Institute of Park Executives.

At the Wednesday night session of the convention, the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, George H. Hollister, Hartford, Conn.; vice-president, C. A. Bossen, Minneapolis, Minn.; secretary-treasurer, Emmet P. Griffin, East St. Louis, Ill., and directors, H. W. Busch, Detroit, Mich.; Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn.; W. H. Dunn, Kansas City, Mo.; John Meisenbacher, Tulsa, Okla.; L. P. Jensen, St. Louis, Mo., and George A. Parker, Hartford, Conn.

A resolution was passed, also at the Wednesday night session, advocating that the shores of all lakes and large streams be publicly owned for park purposes for at least 300 feet from the water. The institute also went on record as favoring the spending of more money for the preservation and protection of forests, specifically recommending the expenditure of $1 per acre for the upkeep of the woods of northern Michigan.

Barring Billboards.

The institute approved many other steps which would tend toward park development, among them the elimination of unsightly billboards from highways, the establishment of one centralized control for parks and forests in the large mountain districts, the preservation of farm woods and the purchase of at least ten acres of land about every country school for playground purposes.

The matter of tourists' camps in municipally owned parks was discussed. It was reported that these were being formed all over the country. Not only water and fireplaces are provided at these camps, but in many there are such luxuries as electric wiring and shower baths. The majority of tourists carry their own cooking equipment. In some places the accommodations are free and in some cases there is a small charge. A delegate from Council Bluffs, Ia., stated that as many as seventy-five parties of tourists were often accommodated in one night.

The beautiful, lake-surrounded town of Minneapolis was chosen as the meeting place for the 1922 convention.

In addition to the business activities of the convention, there were a number of interesting and instructive talks on subjects relating to park management and several pleasant entertainment features, which were carried out in accordance with the program printed in The Review for August 18.

SOUTHERN NURSERYMEN.

The Southern Nurserymen's Association will hold its twenty-third annual meeting in the Green parlor of the Patten hotel, at Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday and Thursday, September 7 and 8. The meetings will be called to order at 10 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. each day.

All the members of the association are invited to meet with the legislative and executive committees, which will get together the day previous, September 6, at the Patten hotel. This meeting should be full of interest to any member thinking about the future of the association and the nursery business.

The two days' program includes the following talks and addresses:

Invocation, by Harry Nicholson, Winchester, Tenn.

Address of welcome, by Robert Sparks Walker, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Response, by H. C. Caldwell, Ashford Park Nurseries, Atlanta, Ga.

"Farm Life Studies," by Dr. C. J. Galpin, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"Nursery Stock Investigations," by Prof. L. B. Scott, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

"Horticultural Possibilities of Seedling Apples for Nursery Stocks," by Prof. O. M. Watson, University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

"Nursery Advertising," by John Watson, Princeton, N. J.

"Some Impressions, Expressions and Obsessions," by Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C.

"Value of Inoculation in Soil Building," by A. H. Mason, Earp-Thomas Co., New York city.

"Tired, Retired, Rubbertired," by Charles T. Smith, Concord, Ga.

"Say It with Flour," by W. M. Howe, Near East Relief, Chattanooga, Tenn.

"Items from Iowa," by F. J. Wright, Successful Farming, Des Moines, Ia.

Cost figures of nursery stock to be used in preparing inventory figures for income tax report, Discussion led by E. W. Chattin, A. L. Ligon, John Fraser, Jr.

"Which—Winchesters or Budding Knives?" by W. A. Easterley, Cleveland, Tenn.

"Topics from Texas," by J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

"Assorted and Resorted," by S. W. Crowell, Roseacres, Miss.

The present officers of the association are as follows: President, Paul C. Lindley, Pomona, N. C.; vice-president, C. A. Simpson, Monticello, Fla., and secretary and treasurer, O. Joe Howard, Hickory, N. C.

PACIFIC COAST NURSERYMEN.

The nineteenth annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, held in July, resulted in the election of Howard Evarts Weed, of Beaverton, Ore., as president. The vice-presidents selected were C. D. Hobbs, of Milton, Ore.; F. W. May, of Yakima, Wash.; C. E. Wright, of Kimberly, Idaho; A. V. Wagner, of Pasadena, Cal.; F. E. Walton, of Centerville, Utah, and H. A. Layritz, of Victoria, B. C. The secretary elected was C. A. Tonneson, of Burton, Wash.

The members of the various boards and committees elected and appointed by the president were as follows:

Executive committee—J. A. McGee, Orenco, Ore.; A. Brownell, Portland, Ore., and J. M. Pilkington, Portland, Ore.

Board of trustees—J. J. Bonnell, Seattle, Wash.; S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore., and F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish, Wash.

Legislation—A. A. Kelly, Spokane, Wash.; Charles T. Hawkes, Caldwell, Idaho; S. A. Miller, Milton, Ore.; John Vallance, Oakland, Cal.; C. H. Smith, Centerville, Utah, and R. Layritz, Victoria, B. C.

Transportation—C. J. Atwood, Orenco, Ore.; C. B. Miller, Milton, Ore., and A. T. Gossman, Wenatchee, Wash.

Landscape—H. E. Burdette, Orenco, Ore.; Roy Woodruff, Eugene, Ore., and Mrs. Ruth Day, Spokane, Wash.

Membership—Albert Brownell, Portland, Ore.; F. W. Griffiths, Puyallup, Wash., and John Gill, Berkeley, Cal.

Revision of by-laws—M. McDonald, Orenco, Ore.; F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish, Wash., and E. J. Steele, Portland, Ore.

Reception—H. A. Lewis, Portland, Ore.; Mrs. B. A. Mitchell, Orenco, Ore., and Mrs. A. Brownell, Portland, Ore.

In response to a request of the association, fifteen seedling firms have agreed to adhere to the policy of selling seedling stock exclusively to the regular nurserymen. A cost accounting analysis has been instigated by the association, whereby growers will be able to determine the point at which certain fruit tree stock should be sold in order to realize the cost of production and a reasonable profit.

During the month of October a list of surplus stock for the trade on hand at various nurseries will be published by the association. This will be arranged in alphabetical order for each class, according to variety, with the number of trees and the grade of each designated. The names and addresses of those firms joining in the project will be given at the head of the list and the name given a key number, which will appear opposite that firm's stock wherever it appears on the list. The charge will be made pro rata for the actual space used in proportion to the actual cost of the paper and the printing of the pamphlet.

The board of trustees reported at the convention that the work for the last year was carried on for considerably less than had been anticipated. They asked for subscriptions for this year on the basis of two-thirds as much as last year, with $10 as the minimum.

NURSERYMEN GO VISITING.

Delightful August weather, with cloudless skies and a maximum temperature of 75 degrees, favored the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association August 24, when the members visited the Cherry Hill Nurseries, at West Newbury, Mass., and H. P. Kelsey, at Boxford, Mass. There were about sixty-five in the party, including ladies, most of whom journeyed from Horticultural hall, Boston, leaving at 8:30 a. m., over the Newburyport turnpike to the Cherry Hill Nurseries of the T. C. Thurlow & Sons Co.

The nurseries here were found in splendid condition and clean. Especially noteworthy were grand blocks of Cornus florida, andromedas and kalmias, many of the two latter being of large size and in perfect health. Rhododendron hybrids also looked remarkably well and Taxus cuspidata and other forms were seen in large quantities.

The peonies, which are noted specialties here, cover a large area of ground. Many other perennials are also grown. The wonderful spruce hedges, dividing sections of the nursery, were in perfect condition. They make great windbreaks and serve as nesting places for numerous birds, which keep harmful pests in subjection. A wonderful specimen of Abies concolor, deep blue in color and of large dimensions, excited admiration. One thousand dollars has been refused for this specimen.

Refreshments were served before the party left for Parker river, where a bountiful dinner of steamed clams, lobsters, clam chowder, fried clams, mackerel and all the other "fixins" incidental to a first-class New England shore dinner, were served, and done ample justice. After all had replenished the inner man, Harlan P. Kelsey said that Prof. Frank A. Albaugh, of Amherst, was desirous of starting a 10-week short course at the Massachusetts Agricultural College on general nursery practices, which would include propagation and everything pertaining to the nursery business. All present voiced support for the project and it was heartily endorsed by a unanimous vote. The next nursery visited was that of Harlan P. Kelsey, at Boxford. It is safe to say that the extent of this nursery and its contents were an eye-opener to many present.

Remarkably well-grown here are Abies Fraseri, Carolina hemlocks and Rhododendron catawbiense. The latter, of symmetrical habit, are well-named compacta, being about as shapely as boxwoods. The great feature at this nursery, however, is the unusual number of seedling azaleas and rhododendrons, numbering hundreds of thousands, which had been started in frames and now are mostly lined out in nursery rows. Wonderful work is being done here to build up an immense stock of home-grown plants of these two valuable shrubs. Mr. Kelsey served additional refreshments before his guests left and they all voted the day one of pleasure and profit. W. N. C.

The Market.

The local wholesale market, according to reports from the heads of the houses that compose it, was quite dull during all of last week, with an abundance of seasonable stock on hand and prices low, while the heads of the leading retail establishments say that the week was a dull one and funeral work was about the only thing that kept the force halfway busy. The approach of the fall season, which begins here with Labor day, the opening of schools and the return of the summer tourists, should make considerable difference in business.

The cut from the young rose stock has been large in all varieties. While the consignments of roses are heavy, the quality is poor and until cooler weather sets in it will continue so. The same may be said as to carnations. Young plants look well and promise well for a large crop the coming season.

There has been a good supply of gladioli, which have an excellent demand at any time when quality is good. Asters continued plentiful, with the demand for fancy sorts quite strong. The usual supply of outdoor stock comes in daily.

FRENCH HYDRANGEA

MONEY

To make it is easy for some, hard for others. HYDRANGEAS and ROSES make money for all, if you get the right stock at the right price and treat it right. The latter is your business, the first two are ours. Our are again good, better now than this time last year. Our collection contains all the worthwhile French kinds, in any shade of pink or white, while others come blue. And don't forget Otaksa. We can supply them from 4-in., 5-in., 6-in. and 7-in. pots at 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c each; no charge for packing. Delivery from September on. Get them early and pot up while they are full of life; it means so much for your success.

ROSES

Ramblers and Baby Ramblers, all on their own roots.

The Ramblers have been grown in the field for two years, every one tied up to stakes to ripen the wood; they are good. Dorothy Perkins, Excelsior and Tausendschoen, 30c each and charges for boxes.

The Baby Ramblers have been in the field for one year and have done well. The strongest only will be lifted. Do not compare them with budded stock, but as to blooming, they will do as well or better. Baby Rambler, Baby Tausendschoen, Clothilde Soupert, Ellen Poulsen and Erna Teschendorff. 25c each, no charge for packing. Delivery from early November on.

W. A. Rowe Floral Co., at Kirkwood, Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, September 7. President Ude says there will be plenty of interesting things to attract a large attendance.

All of those who attended the S. A. F. convention at Washington have returned and say they had a most pleasant week in the convention city and a week of side trips. George Kuehner, Frank X. Gorly and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Beneke, who spent last week in New York city, arrived home August 27.

W. J. Pilcher's young rose plants, as well as the old holdovers, are in splendid shape and a large crop of fine quality Premier, Columbia and Russell is looked for.

Phil Goebel, Jr., whose range in Webster Groves has been greatly increased during the summer, expects to double his output the coming season.

Fred H. Weber and family have returned from their two weeks' eastern trip, which was spent in Washington, Philadelphia and Atlantic City. Mr. Weber is looking forward to a busy fall and winter season.

John S. Carter, head of the Nicotine Mfg. Co., has returned from his eastern trip, which included the convention city during the S. A. F. meeting.

All in the trade interested in the "Say It with Flowers" bowling league should be on hand Wednesday evening, September 7, as thirty-six florist-bowlers will start the season of thirty weeks. The new alleys are at the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Arsenal street. The opening night schedule is as follows: Orchids vs. Carnations; Sweet Peas vs. Daisies; Roses vs. Violets. J. J. B.

The Market.

Business last week was dull, but it is now beginning to pick up and a remarkable amount of early wedding business has been booked with the stores. There has been a great improvement in flowers of all kinds. This is particularly true of roses and especially of Columbia, Butterfly, Mock, Russell and Dunlop. As high as $20 per hundred is obtained for these, the general run of roses bringing from $4 to $15 per hundred. American Beauties also are beginning to look up and sell well at from $1.50 to $4 per dozen.

The local crop of asters was virtually a failure this year. They are being supplanted by some exceptional stock from the north. Easter lilies are still scarce and bring $20 per hundred. Dahlias are to be had now in good quality. Some of the new varieties, including Autumn King, Flaming and a few of Vincent's Patrick O'Mara, have made their appearance, but not in sufficient quantities to amount to anything. However, they look promising for another year. Gladioli are about at an end, although fair spikes are being received from northern points and these sell at $6 and $8 per hundred. Carnations are looking better, owing to the cool weather, but a return of hot days threatens to set the stock back again. Some lily of the valley is obtainable at $10 and $12 per hundred for wedding work. The quality is good. Few orchids are seen, but no thought is given to their absence. Rubrum lilies are about at an end.

Various Notes.

Mrs. B. W. Ilderton, of the Palmetto Nurseries, Florence, S. C., visited Washington last week.

Wilhelmina Gude, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Gude, broke her arm in two places last week while swinging at her home, 3800 New Hampshire avenue.

Washington florists are to join with merchants in other lines in an appeal to Congress, to be made some time in October, for the repeal of the law which now imposes a rental tax on all who occupy space under sidewalks. The United States Supreme court recently held that this tax was a constitutional one and the only way that relief can be obtained is through appropriate action by the senate and house committees on the District of Columbia. Local merchants use space beneath the sidewalks for vaults for storage and other purposes. Some years ago someone got the idea that additional funds could be obtained for the use of the District of Columbia by placing a tax on such space based on the footage thereof. This year assessments totaling $70,000 will be levied on the merchants and the lowest individual assessment is $5.

The term of office of William F. Gude as rent commissioner of the District of Columbia has been extended seven months through the act of Congress prolonging the life of the commission that length of time. The duty of the commission is the adjustment of disputes growing out of rentals for dwellings and rooms here and was made necessary by the rapacity of some of the landlords during the war, who took advantage of the housing shortage to raise rents unfairly on houses, apartments and rooms. Mr. Gude has also been selected chairman of the temporary organizations formed to devise ways and means for securing a stadium in the District of Columbia. These organizations are named the District of Columbia Athletic Association and the Roosevelt Memorial Stadium Association.

James Dalglish, of J. H. Small & Sons, has returned to the store, after an absence of several weeks, during which he underwent an operation at a local hospital.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

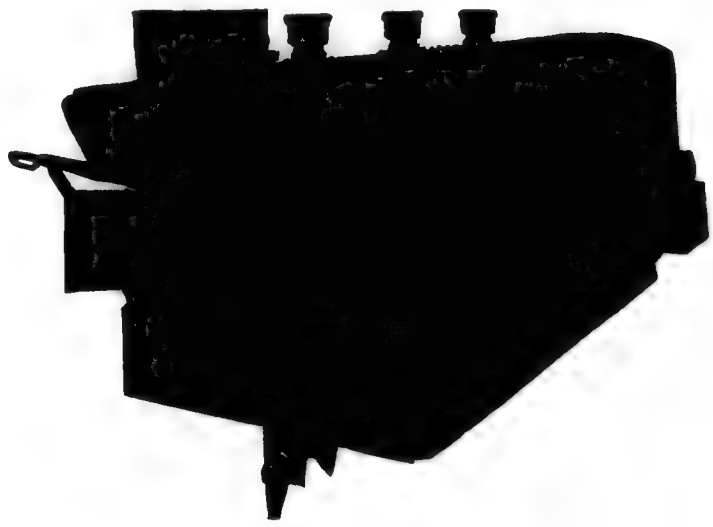
USING PIPES ON HAND.

I desire to pipe a small greenhouse, 14x24. It has raised benches, which run north and south. There are 30-inch side benches and a 50-inch center bench. There are two feet of glass in each side of the house and the south end is of glass. The north end adjoins the potting sheds, etc. I have plenty of 2-inch and 3-inch pipes. What size of boiler will be needed and what is the best way to pipe the house? The boiler will be placed in a cellar under the house. I wish to maintain about 50 degrees in zero weather.

C. H. H.—N. Y.

The 3-inch pipe may be used for the main flow and return. Inside the greenhouse it would be advisable to run a 2-inch flow pipe on each plate and another two feet below the ridge. Connect each flow pipe at the farther end of the greenhouse with two 2-inch returns or, if the amount of 2-inch pipe on hand is not sufficient to furnish the entire amount of radiation needed, three 1¼-inch returns may be substituted in each coil for the two 2-inch pipes. Place the return coils under the benches and connect each coil with the 3-inch return main by means of 2-inch pipe. Join the expansion tank with the highest point in the main. The boiler should be rated for 300 square feet of hot water radiation, although 250 square feet will answer if hard coal is to be used.

FOR HOUSE AND HOTBED.



Will you tell me how to pipe a small house, 14x40, that I am building? It is four feet to the plate and seven and one-half feet to the ridge. There will be no glass in the sides. I want to run a 6-foot hotbed on the south side of the house. Could I leave the side of the house open and ventilate the bed, without causing a draft in the house?

F. W. H.—Pa.

If the greenhouse is to be used for almost any of the ordinary crops except roses, there will not be any serious trouble if the plan outlined is followed. The temperature desired in the house is not stated, but if 60 degrees is to be maintained, it will be necessary to use one 2-inch flow pipe on each side wall plate and to connect each flow pipe with three 2-inch or four 1½-inch returns under the side benches. For 50 degrees use two 2-inch or three 1½-inch returns.

The above does not take into account the hotbed, which will need to be heated in some way, if the temperatures mentioned are maintained in the greenhouse. To secure 50 degrees in the hotbed, substitute a 2½-inch flow pipe for the 2-inch on the side of the house adjoining the hotbed and run three 1½-inch returns along the wall, placing two on the outer and the other on the inner wall. Connect these returns with the 2½-inch pipe provided for the above.

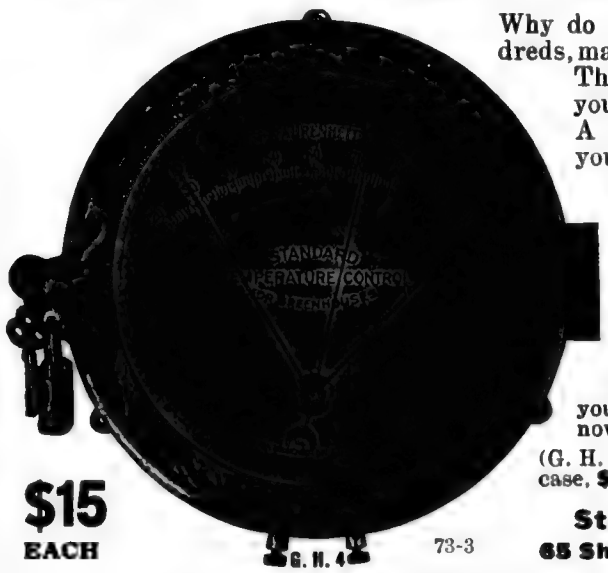
IMPROVING A SYSTEM.



I have two greenhouses, each 18x54. In one the side walls are built of stone and in the other the sides and ends are built of boards to a height of two feet, with two feet of glass on top of the boards. The walls are four feet high. From the center to the ridge is nine feet. I installed a Wilks hot water boiler, No. 24x48, last fall. I have one 2-inch flow running to each house under the ridge, with four 1½-inch returns on each side wall. These houses did not heat as they ought and I should like to know if the boiler is too small, or do I need a larger flow line? I should like to heat the houses to 55 or 60 degrees in zero weather. The boiler has 2-inch openings and is placed in a pit about fourteen inches deep, with an expansion tank about six feet above the boiler.

A. G.—Mo.

It is stated that the boiler is "No. 24x48." If that means that the grate is 24x48, the boiler is amply large. In fact, two houses of the size described have been heated with a boiler having a grate twenty-five inches in diameter. Doubtless part of the trouble comes from using too small flow pipes. Another source of difficulty is that the lower returns are but little, if any, above the grate, and the radiation is hardly sufficient for even 55 degrees in zero weather, unless a generator is used. It would be preferable to use a 3-inch flow main and a return main of the same size leading to each house, but, if the openings are only 2-inch, it would be advisable to use a 2½-inch flow to each house, with a return of the same size, locating the reducers close to the boiler.

Inside the greenhouses use three 2-inch flows, placing the additional flow pipes on the side walls. If fully 60 degrees is desired in zero weather, run an additional 1½-inch return along the exposed wall of each house. Unless the lowest returns are above the level of the grate, it would be wise to endeavor to raise the coils, and, if this is not possible, they may be arranged horizontally. The increase in the number of flow pipes will probably solve the

WHY TAKE CHANCES?

Why do you take chances of losing hundreds, maybe thousands of dollars in crops? That is just what you are doing if you have no Standard Thermostat. A freeze-out may completely ruin your plants over night, or reduce their value by hundreds of dollars.

The Standard Thermostat will ring a bell whenever your greenhouse temperature rises or falls to the danger point. Place the bell at your bedside or anywhere you please.

This is a word to the wise—a buy word to the wise grower. Sudden temperature ups and downs ruin thousands of plants every year. Protect yours! Install a Standard Thermostat now. It costs only $15.00. Write today.

All Ready For Your Last Minute Hurry Calls

You can't hold back time—but you can sometimes get ahead of it.
Get ahead by being ready before you need to be.
That's exactly what we did with both our cast iron and steel boilers. We made up a lot ahead.
Yours is now in our store house waiting for your last-minute-hurry-up-call.

Of course there is always a chance that so many will order the last minute that the stock of boilers won't last.
The safe thing to do is to order yours now, when you can surely get it.
We'll hold it and ship when you say. Make allowances for railroad delays. Neither of us can prevent that.

difficulty, but if it fails to secure a good circulation in all of the returns it would be advisable to place the system under pressure by means of a generator.

GREENHOUSE AND DWELLING.

Will you advise me, on the basis of the sketch I am sending, in regard to a greenhouse and dwelling now under construction? I have material on hand for 3-inch and 3½-inch mains and 1½-inch returns. I also have two boilers, rated at 750 square feet each. Would it be advisable to dispose of these and use one larger boiler? What amount of radiation will be required for both the dwelling and the greenhouse? Will you suggest a method of installing a boiler so that either building can be run independently? The climate here gives us several days of continued 10-below-zero weather and dwellings here are run near 75 degrees. The greenhouse would need 50 degrees as a minimum. J. O. S.—N. Y.

From the sketch it is seen that the greenhouse is 24x80 feet, with five feet of glass and two feet of board wall on each side. The piping suggested will provide one 3½-inch flow pipe under the ridge, supplying six 1½-inch pipes below. There is also on each side a 2½-inch flow pipe, which supplies a 2-inch return. As nearly as can be determined from the data furnished, it will require about 200 square feet of additional radiation to provide a minimum of 50 degrees in zero weather. It would not be advisable to change the piping now installed, but it would be well to run three 1½-inch returns on each side wall, supplying them from the flows on the purlin posts. If more than 50 degrees should be needed at any time, four additional 1½-inch returns could be added to the coils under the middle bench, but it would not be necessary for a temperature of 50 degrees.

It is not possible to determine accurately from the sketch the size of the rooms in the dwelling, and the area of the window openings is not stated. As much depends on these two items, an accurate estimate of the amount of radiation required for the dwelling can not be given. In a general way, 100 square feet would be needed in the living room and from forty to sixty feet in each of the other rooms, those having two windows requiring the maximum. The following formula will be found accurate for estimating the radiation for 70 degrees: Reckon one square foot of radiation for each square foot of window openings; one square foot for each ten square feet of exposed wall surface, and one square foot for each 100 square feet of cubic contents of the room. For sleeping rooms on the second floor, for which 50 to 55 degrees will answer, the radiation may be reduced one-third.

If the boilers mentioned are in good condition, there is no object to be gained in selling them, especially as they should furnish the heat needed in cold weather, while in mild weather one boiler would carry the radiation.

"YOU TELL 'EM."

Many hundreds of florists scattered over the United States, from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida, grow plants for wholesaling, and in many cases their sole means of marketing their stock is through the Classified advertisements in The Review. Thousands of others use the Classified ads occasionally, when they have some surplus not needed for their local retail trade. It has come to be common understanding that any good stock can be sold through the use of these little liners. Florists have told it to each other until everybody knows. But not everyone understands how strong the demand is at present. Any florist who has stock he does not need should send in a little ad. Throughout the middle west plants of all kinds are scarcer than in any recent year. It will be doing a favor to someone to let him have the stock. The response will be prompt. Like this:

Before the second ad came out I had sold over 20,000 plants from the first insertion. It certainly pays to advertise in The Review.—Joseph F. Schoos, Evanston, Ill., August 21, 1921.

We sold all our field carnation plants in two days after The Review came out.—Kemble-Smith Co., Boone, Ia., August 18, 1921.

We have sold all our poinsettia plants through the ad in The Review.—Henry Krueger, Toledo, O., August 19, 1921.

We have disposed of our last lot of stock through the ad, but we are getting the habit, so please insert the enclosed new advertisements for us.—Kirchhoff's Conservatory, Chicago, Ill., August 20, 1921.

We have had very good success with these Classified ads.—The Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo., August 19, 1921.

We shall have more stock to sell next year, as we have learned that The Review will move it for us.—Anderson Floral Co., Lebanon, Tenn., August 20, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Mendon, Mass.—Frank Russo was a heavy loser in a recent hail storm, when the glass in his greenhouses and stock to the amount of $700 was destroyed.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The September exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society will be held in the convention hall, at Newport Beach, Thursday and Friday, September 15 and 16, with the annual ball of the society on the closing night of the show. Plans for the show and ball were discussed at the regular monthly meeting, held in Music hall, Tuesday evening, August 23, at which there was a much larger attendance than has been present at several meetings past. The premium lists were issued and it was announced that a special premium list would be issued for the children's classes, which will be distributed through the schools as soon as they open for the fall term. It is expected that there will be more interest manifested in the coming show than in the last two or three, as there are so many of the summer residents here who have always given hearty support to the exhibitions.

Leiken's had an especially busy time last week, a number of social events creating an active demand.

The decorations of white hydrangeas and palms at the artists' ball of the Newport Art Club last week were loaned and arranged by Mrs. James Ware Putnam.

John T. Allan has returned to his home at Ochre Point from the Newport hospital after two successful operations.

The Market.

The florists of this vicinity are experiencing the usual summer lull in business, but everyone expects this condition at this period and, therefore, no one is worrying. On the other hand, everyone is taking advantage of the condition to get some recreation or too renovate stores and greenhouses. The growers have got this latter work well in hand and are well advanced in their benching for early cutting. Asters are a glut, but extra fine ones find ready demand at satisfactory prices. Gladioli and lilies are reported as more popular than last year and they are showing evidences of gradually increasing in popularity.

Various Notes.

Fred Dietz, of French street, was in New York the last week.

William A. Bowers was on a business trip through Connecticut recently.

Edward G. Brooke, Jr., of T. J. Johnston & Co., was a member of the committee of the Providence Chamber of Commerce in charge of the recent annual outing for the inmates of the orphanages and homes for aged parents.

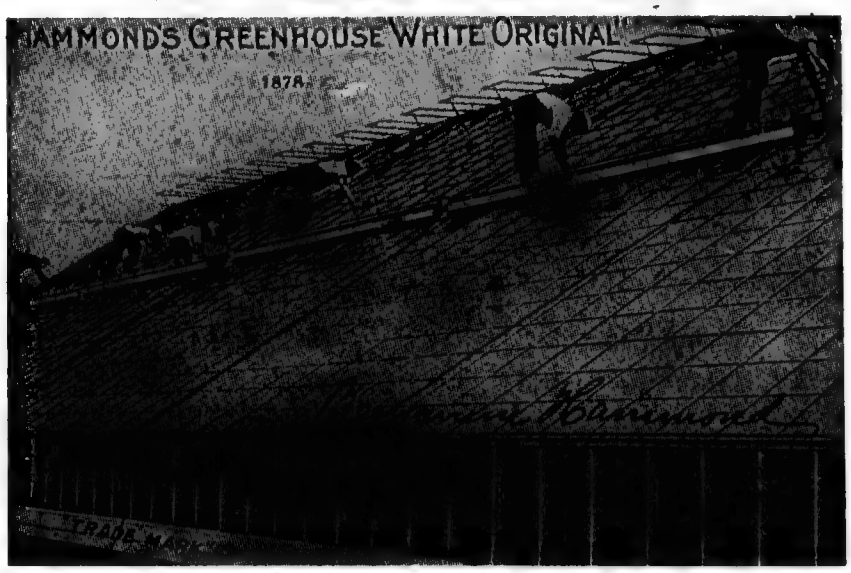
The Cumberland Greenhouses, Woonsocket, report an unusually heavy run of funeral orders during the last few weeks.

Robert Koppelman and bride, of Boston, have been spending several days with relatives in this city.

John Blick, of North Attleboro, took several prizes at the third annual gladiolus show, in Mansfield, last week.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe had the decorations for the Blackinton wedding, at St. Martin's church, last week.

A new steam heating equipment has been installed in the range of the Eastern Wreath Co., 466 Valley street.



Louis J. Reuter and family, of Watertown, Mass., are visiting at Westerly, where he was formerly an extensive rose grower with his father.

H. M. Bennett, of East Greenwich, is representing the nursery establishment of Chase Bros., of Rochester, N. Y., in that section.

William H. Coombs was granted a marriage license in this city the last week, the bride-to-be being Adelaide M. Smith. W. H. M.

Permanite

IN OUR OPINION

The Convention of the S. A. F. & O. H. was a huge success.

Permanite went over strong as usual and the Famous ONE HAND GLAZING GUN once more proved its superiority for efficiency in glazing.

Those who have used Permanite from the start are satisfied.

Those who have used other materials before using Permanite are more than satisfied. They know by comparison that PERMANITE IS THE BEST glazing cement on the market.

The Market.

Business has been slow. A larger supply of flowers has been arriving and that condition plus a slump in demand has caused an oversupply. Roses are especially plentiful and can be bought in quantity at your own price. Gladioli have also been more than adequate. The latter average about $6 per hundred. Asters are also more numerous than they have been. These have been bringing $3 per hundred, with a better quality demanding $4. Lilies are also available at $2.50 per dozen. These are the Easter and rubrum varieties. Some carnations have put in an appearance, but are the usual short-stemmed ones that appear at this time of year.

Summer garden flowers are better in quality than earlier in the season. Zinnias are especially attractive this fall. The colors are good and the blooms are unusually large. Delphinium is also attractive. Larkspur, scabiosa, salpiglossis, hydrangeas, phlox and other miscellaneous hardy stock just about complete the available varieties.

Various Notes.

Watson Hasselman and Mr. Huntington, with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co., have just returned from a motor trip through Indiana and Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. J. Baur and family have returned from a trip through the east.

H. O. Meikel, of Meikel & Warner, Noblesville, Ind., has been visiting in the city.

Edwin M. Morner, of Shelbyville, was here last week buying stock.

Mrs. Reynolds, of the Circle Flower Store, made an unusually large and attractive design for the Circle theater for the celebration of its fifth anniversary.

Smith & Young are installing a new Kroeschell refrigerator system.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carlstedt have returned from a three weeks' trip through the east. They visited New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington and were at the latter city during the S. A. F. convention.

The next meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held at the Smith & Young commission house Thursday, September 8, at 8 p. m. A large attendance is expected, as this is state fair week and a large out-of-town delegation will be here.

John Chisholm, formerly of Indianapolis, is here visiting friends and relatives. Mr. Chisholm now resides in West Virginia.

MR. GROWER

The best evidence you can get is from your brother Florist.

This is what they all say of "Wire Ties" and you will, too, after you once use them:

Racine, Wisconsin, June 2, 1921.
Mr. Wm. F. Buschardt, Baltimore, Md.
Dear Sir:—The "Wire Ties" are the best little time saver I ever had; it takes just a third of the time to tie up Chrysanthemums and makes a plant look neat and attractive.
Send me (5000) "Wire Ties" at once.
Yours very truly,
Peter N. Obertin.

Northampton, Mass., May 6, 1921.
Mr. Wm. F. Buschardt, 6 East Woodland Ave., Baltimore, Md.
Dear Sir:—We found your wire ties particularly useful for tying Chrysanthemums.
Very truly,
Butler & Ullman.

"Wire Ties" can be bought from any of the following dealers:

H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.
T. J. Noll Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo.
